HAD TO USE PUMPER FOR FIRE AT WASHINGTON STREET PLACES

Grass fires resulted in two calls for the fire department shortly after noon Tuesday. The first call came in at 12:12 o'clock for a fire on a bank in the rear of the properties of the late Mrs. Charles W. Gale and Mrs. Annie M. Page, on Washington street. When the firemen arrived the wind had pushed the fire along rapidly and Chief Howard L. Stanton thought it advisable to lay a length of hose. Owing to the great length of line run out the pressure was low and it was necessary to start pumping with Engine No. 3. After the pumping began the apparatus from Central station returned and left the fire to be handled by Engine 3 of Joseph Perkins road. The fire was quickly extinguished and with but little loss.

The second fire came soon after the apparatus arrived at Central station, for a fire in a lot off Washington street owned by Miss Jane Bill. The lot had recently been mowed and boys playing with matches had set fire to the drying grass. Water was again turned on as the fire was blazing near the home of Dr. R. R. Agnew. The fire was extinguished without loss to adjoining property.

Union Street Grass Fire

Boys playing with matches Tuesday night about 8 o'clock in a lot at the rear of 38 Union street, property owned by Thomas Brown, set fire to the grass and caused the firemen to be summoned to write a finale to the story. Squad A and Deputy Chief Taft responded and used large pails of water to extinguish the fire. There was no damage.

Fourth Fire Tuesday

The fourth fire Tuesday occurred at 9:02 o'clock in the evening and gave the firemen a two hour battle before it was subdued. The blaze was in the city dumping ground in the rear of Baltic street. A line of inch and one half hose was laid and water played onto the fire for over an hour before the flames were entirely extinguished. Squad A and Deputy Chief Taft responded to this call, returning to Central station about 11 o'clock.

TEACHERS' RETIREMENT FUND NEEDS $63,000 NOW

Teachers' applications for retirement pensions have been coming in at a rate so much greater than usual, that, to be actually sound, an increase of $63,000 will have to be made to the state teachers retirement fund, according to information which the teachers' retirement board has decided to lay before the state boards of finance and control this week.

As against 46 retirement applications received in two years ended June 30, 1925, the board received 61 applications in the single year ended June 30, 1926, and the average has never exceeded 25 applications a year. The reserve fund now totals $538,000. An addition of a quarter million dollars was asked in the last session of the legislature, but it was cut down to $225,000. A bill which increased the retirement allowance of 13 teachers from $300 to $500 a year and another increasing the minimum retirement allowance from $300 to $350 impaired the reserve considerably and the unexpectedly large number of retirement applications of the past year make the board deem it desirable to ask for an addition at this time.

A Baby in the Home

NO KING on his golden throne demands and receives more homage from his willing subjects than a baby in the home.

The smallest member of the family requires a great deal of attention. Sometimes, in caring for her child, a mother overtaxes her own strength. Particularly when there are other children to work for, she must learn to preserve her health.

Then her home becomes a place of order and happiness. She finds time to play with her children and the whole family enjoys the dimpled baby as he grows from day to day.

Many young mothers have learned that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps them to find the strength they need.

Before her marriage, Mrs. R. N. Frankum of 3947 Gold St., Omaha, Nebr., was a working girl. Like many girls, she sometimes had to stay at home from her work. A friend told her of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she found that it relieved her trouble.

She was in good health until her second baby came. "I began to take the Vegetable Compound again," she writes, "and was soon able to do my housework. Now I can say I never felt better in my life. Women ask me what I have been doing and I tell them about your medicine. I feel that I owe a lot to it."

FOURTEEN BODIES TAKEN FROM RUINS OF INN

Summer Resort in Catskill Mountains Was Reduced to Ashes by Flames—List of Missing is Fixed at Six—Charred Condition of Bodies Retards Work of Identifying Victims—Nearly Fifty Guests Were Asleep in Hostelry When Fire Was Discovered—Register and Employees' List Were Destroyed by Flames—Injured Cared for at Emergency Red Cross Hospital.

TANNERSVILLE, N. Y., July 14—(AP)—Fourteen bodies had been taken tonight from the ruins of Twilight Inn, a Catskill mountain hotel destroyed by fire early today. The list of missing was fixed at six.

The hostelry housed an exclusive summer colony of wealthy New York and Brooklyn residents.

State troopers, aided by 50 New York city policemen, on vacation at the police camp at Tannersville, were carrying on the work of locating the dead in defiance of three guant and tottering chimneys, the only standing remains of the building.

The work of identifying the victims lagged and at times was made impossible by the charred condition of the bodies. Efforts in this direction were based on a check up by attaches of the hotel of all those within the confines of the park that surrounded the inn. It was a private reservation and its gates were closed to all except guests.

It was estimated there were 48 guests asleep in the hostelry when the fire was discovered at one o'clock this morning, and there was little tangible basis for this estimate as the register and employees list were destroyed.

More than a score of injured were reported at the home of the superintendent of the hotel grounds which was made a receiving and distribution center for news. Throughout the day and early tonight the place was swamped by queries of relatives of victims in New York and Brooklyn and other cities. A dozen of the injured were being cared for at an emergency Red Cross hospital here.

Others were taken to hotels and the homes of summer residents outside the resort colony.

TANNERSVILLE, N. Y., July 14—(AP)—Officials at the scene of the Twilight Inn fire here, which is believed to have killed at least 14 persons, tonight gave out the following list of

FIFTH REGIMENT MARINES AVERT ANOTHER BLAST

DOVER, N. J., July 14—(AP)—The sheer courage of 100 picked marines under Captain A. T. Lewis, today averted another possible wave of explosions at the navy's devastated arsenal at Lake Denmark.

When fire was discovered in a wrecked storehouse in the northern section of the arsenal waste lands, near buildings filled with high explosives, the marines rushed in and ran a line of hose from a small lake a quarter of a mile away. Surrounded by tons of explosives the devil dogs succeeded in extinguishing the flames before they could spread.

The marines are from the Fifth Regiment, brought here from Quantico and each was selected for his expertness in some line of rescue work.

The number of victims still stood at 51 today but further human fragments including a leg, an arm, and three rings were recovered and turned over to deatification experts. No official announcement was made as to the number of missing.

Twenty-four of the injured remain in Dover and Morristown hospitals and all are reported doing well.

Captain Lewis said the marines were forced to clear a stretch of road and to tear down a wrecked and interlocked iron gate in order to bring up a pumping engine.

They dragged their fire hose over tumbled debris, boulders and uprooted trees and plunged into the maw of a potential inferno.

One devil dog battled with the fire at such close quarters, the sole of his shoe was burned off.

Major General Lejeune, commander of the Marine corps, arrived at the scene today. He paid highest tribute both to the marines who lost their lives and to those in charge of the rescue work.

"These men all made the supreme sacrifice for their country, just as if they lost their lives in battle," he said. "They deserve the same honor and consideration and their names will be placed on the honor roll of the Marine corps."

BODY OF CAPTAIN CLARK IS IDENTIFIED

MIDDLETOWN, July 14.—(AP)—George M. Savoy, 33, of 10 North George street, Meriden, was arrested this afternoon on a technical charge of manslaughter and is being held under bonds of $1,000 pending an investigation by the coroner.

On June 14, Savoy's automobile struck and injured Genevieve Serra, three, in Court street. The child ran out from behind another car into the path of Savoy's machine. The girl at first appeared to be slightly injured but complications developed and she died in Middlesex hospital last night.

HARTFORD NEGRO DYING FROM BULLET WOUND

HARTFORD, July 15—(AP)—Frank Jones, negro, was dying at the St. Francis hospital at an early hour this morning with a bullet wound in his stomach, received when he was shot on the second floor of a house at 120 Bellevue street by Robert Hayes, negro, of 49 Bedford street.

FLAG RAISING AT SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 14—(AP)—Visitors appeared at the summer white house today but no attempt was made to see President Coolidge and the seclusion of White Pine camp remained unbroken.

Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson motored from Lake Placid where he is spending the summer, to the executives offices and paid his respect to Secretary Sanders.

Another visitor was former Representative Homer P. Snyder, republican, of Oneida county, New York, who arranged to remain a day or more at Paul Smiths hotel during an automobile tour of this region. It was indicated he would pay his respects to the president.

Discussing political conditions in the state informally, Mr. Snyder expressed the opinion that to win this fall, especially if Governor Smith should stand for re-election, the republicans should nominate a wet for governor. He stood ready to inform Mr. Coolidge so, he said, adding that not only should the republican candidate for the senate be a wet, but the party platform at least should go to the extent of approving the action of the state legislature in providing for a referendum on the prohibition question.

As for President Coolidge, however, there was no apparent consideration given to political conditions. The day was one of the pleasantest with bright sunshine and balmy air, since his arrival in the Adirondacks one week ago, and after a fishing trip in the early morning, he spent the time in quiet relaxation.

Putting out on Lake Osgood in a guide boat for nearly three hours in the morning, the president added to his fishing laurels by catching a three-pound pike, and then content with the achievement, returned to the camp to give his attention to routine government business that had been brought to him from Washington.

The day was not so restful for some of the newspaper correspondents, who have accompanied him to the mountains, however. A. H. Kirchofer, of the Buffalo News, and Leonard Smith, of the New York Evening Post, had an involuntary ducking in the cold waters of lower St. Regis lake when their canoe capsized. They were fully clothed.

The two clung to the canoe and after being in the water nearly 15 minutes were rescued by Erwin Strobel, a native, who went to their rescue in a power boat. Major Coupal, physician to President Coolidge, attended them immediately and tonight they were none the worse for their experience.

The American flag was raised above the summer white house today on a new 30-foot flag pole. President Coolidge attending the setting up of the pole and the raising of the flag by his naval aide, Captain Wilson Brown. At Washington Mr. Coolidge has the flag on a standard beside his desk at all times and it was in continuance of this custom that he had the flag pole put up in front of his living cabin and office at White Pine camp. There was no ceremony attending the raising but all hats went off as the flag soared aloft.

Court Will Meet Friday to Assess Losses in Lake Denmark Explosion.

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP)—Rear Admiral R. E. Coontz today was named head of a naval court of inquiry which will meet Friday at Lake Denmark, N. J., to assess government losses in the arsenal explosion there.

Rear Admiral E. R. Harris was designated senior member of a separate board to determine damages to non-government property surrounding the explosion area. This board will meet at Lake Denmark tomorrow morning.

Rowang, serving with Rear Admiral Harris on the board of investigation will be Captain R. P. Crandall, Commander H. W. Browning, Lieutenant-Commander Ralph W. McDowell and Lieutenant Ira P. Griffen.

All the officers named are in the navy.

Rear Admiral E. H. Campbell, naval judge advocate general, in a memorandum said that the court of inquiry headed by Admiral Coontz would "inquire into all the circumstances surrounding the explosions" and would be confined to damages and injuries sustained by persons within the naval ammunition depot. It will seek to determine the cause of the disaster and means whereby further disasters of this nature may be averted."

A. E. Schoemaker, civilian attorney in the judge advocate general's office, was appointed legal adviser for the board of investigation.

BRIDGEPORT POLICE PROBE SHOOTING OF GARAGE MAN

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 14—(AP)—While medical skill tonight tried to save Floyd Weaver, owner of a garage, from death through a bullet wound, police efforts were directed towards determining why some one set fire early today to Weaver's place of business.

Weaver when he drove to St. Vincent's hospital last night said he had accidentally shot himself while in an automobile with a friend. A bullet was found in one lung Early today firemen, called to Weaver's place of business to put out a $5,000 fire, reported that some one had climbed in a window, scattered paper and oil about the place and set it afire.

The police in looking into the fire found that Weaver was critically ill from the bullet wound and could not talk. They sent for Mrs. Pauline E. Bauer, in whose company Weaver was known to have been a great deal and at headquarters she was questioned as to the shooting. She claimed it was an accident, but her explanation of it was withheld by the police until they got a statement, if possible, from the wounded man.

Earlier, Mrs. Bauer, in an interview said that Weaver accidentally fired the pistol while handling it. She said he had a permit to carry a gun and apparently was shifting the weapon from one pocket to another. She said that Weaver and herself went to the garage last night as the former had to make out bills.

Continuing, she said: "We left the garage about 10:30 for my home. It started to rain and we sat and talked in the car outside the house for about an hour. There were no arguments or anything which would have caused him to purposely try to kill himself. He was just ready to go and opened the rear door of the car to let out the dog, which he gave me and which we took with us wherever we went. It was dark at the time and he apparently picked up the revolver, which he had a permit to carry as he is in the garage business, to shift it from one hand to the other when suddenly there was a flash in our faces and he cried out: 'My God, I'm shot.'

"It happened so funny I didn't know just what to do. I exclaimed, 'Where were you shot.' He said 'I don't know; I just know I've shot myself.'

"I got out of the car and wanted to call the police, but he said: "Don't call the police; call a doctor.' I went up to my apartment to telephone for a doctor but could not reach one and ran down again and told him. He said: 'I will drive to the hospital myself,' and he started for St. Vincent's hospital."

Mrs. Bauer said she had known Weaver for 14 years, or more, that they had always been "pals" and had always gone around together.

"You knew he was married?", Mrs. Bauer was asked.

"Yes," she replied, "but he had not been living with his wife for over two years."

She said that Weaver knew his wife was in the hospital seriously ill and added:

"He would not shoot himself over that; life was too sweet for him to shoot himself over any woman."

"Do you think any other man would be jealous of you and try and revenge himself on Weaver by setting fire to the garage?" Mrs. Bauer was asked.

"I never had anything to do with any other man since my husband died, except Mr. Weaver," she replied.

Scott Given Life Sentence For Murder

Slaying of Drug Clerk Characterized by Judge as "Cowardly and Cruel Murder."

CHICAGO, July 14.—(AP)—Consideration of Robert B. Scott's plea of guilty and the expressed belief that he was without the instinct to murder and was dominated by his older brother, Russell T. Scott, led Judge William N. Gemmill today to sentence him to life imprisonment.

Russell Scott is under sentence to be hanged Oct. 15, next, for the murder of Joseph Maurer, drug clerk, shot to death when the Scott brothers robbed the City Hall pharmacy in down town Chicago the night of April 2, 1924.

"Russell Scott took the leadership throughout," said Judge Gemmill before imposing sentence. "He used threatening language. There was nothing of the kind shown so far as Robert was concerned. There is no longer any question or doubt that Russell fired the fatal shot. There is no question about both being guilty of murder, but they are not evenly guilty.

"Robert Scott was not the leader, he was seven years younger than Russell; had been in the employ of his brother."

Robert is 25 years old.

The actual slaying of young Maurer was characterized by Judge Gemmill as "the most cowardly and cruel murder since I have been on the bench."

Judge Gemmill said he gathered from the evidence that Russell Scott crept up behind Maurer and fired the fatal shot with his pistol six inches away from the youth's body.

The judge severely criticized "organizations formed to protect Russell Scott from his just punishment."

Robert Scott evaded a jury trial today by agreeing to take the witness stand and be asked one question concerning the slaying and any Judge Gemmill wished to ask regarding his life history.

"Did you fire the fatal shot?" brought a reply of "No, your honor."

Judge Gemmill asked if Robert was in the City Hall pharmacy the night of April 2, 1924, but Robert pleaded the circumstances of his and his brother's positions for not replying.

KING ALFONSO DINES AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE

LONDON, July 14.—(AP)—The British sovereigns brought out the famous gold plate of Buckingham palace, the rarest china and the most beautiful flowers, not to mention the choicest foods and wines, for the dinner tonight at which King Alfonso and the Spanish queen were the honored guests.

The Spanish royal colors—red and yellow, did not lend themselves to the floral scheme, but with pink and mauve bloom prevailing, the court florist produced decorations which excited the admiration of the 50 distinguished guests. These, besides the British and Spanish monarchs and their consorts, included the Duke of Connaught, Princess Beatrice, the Spanish ambassador and the Marchioness Merry Del Val, the prime minister and Mrs. Baldwin and the foreign secretary and Lady Chamberlain.

A custom of the Victorian era was revived when pipers of the Scots Guards marched round the great state table at intervals playing lively tunes.

King Alfonso attended the royal feast after one of the busiest days of his busy sojourn in England. In the afternoon he went to Hurlingham, donned his polo togs, and plunged into the thick of the polo battle between the E-1 Gordos and the Hurlingham Hurricanes, eventually assisting his Spanish side to a 7-5 victory.

SEVEN SHOT IN GUN BATTLE BETWEEN POLICE AND ALLEGED HOLDUP MAN

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—For the second time in 36 hours a gun battle was fought along crowded thoroughfares tonight.

Seven persons were wounded by flying bullets when police battled a hold-up man on Broadway this evening, while thousands of persons thronged the street during the theatre hour.

Glen Miller, 35, of Buffalo, was captured after a gun-fight in the "Roaring Forties," tonight during which he fired a dozen shots at policemen and was wounded four times. Six other persons, three women, were hit by stray bullets.

Miller, who said he arrived from Buffalo this morning, attempted to hold up the patrons of a restaurant on Eighth avenue near 51st street. Instead of obeying his command of hands-up, men in the restaurant rushed him. Miller fled, pursued by his intended victims, who enlisted traffic policemen in the chase. He ran toward the Broadway theatrical district, where thousands of persons crowded the streets.

A taxi-cab driver, seeing Miller's gun, and hearing the shouts of the pursuers, attempted to run him down as he crossed Broadway. The cab smashed across the curb into the sidewalk, scattering scores of men and women.

Miller took refuge in a store entrance and opened fire with a large calibre automatic. The police returned the fire from several directions, and the whole district was thrown into panic by the screams of the wounded and the crash of shattered plate glass windows. After five minutes Miller fell, too weak to continue firing.

All of the wounded were taken to hospitals. Ambulance surgeons attended a score of women who fainted or became hysterical during the battle.

Miller, with four bullets through his chest and body, was said to be in a critical condition. Philip Argus of Bayonne, N. J., was shot in the leg. his daughter, Edith, 12, was wounded in the arm, Stephanie Stephenson was shot through the shoulder, Bella Susai received a facial wound, and Louis Stern and Waldine Zadig were wounded in the arm and leg.

FORTY-NINE GEORGIA BANKS CLOSE DOORS

Closing Largely Attributed to Appointment of Receivership for the Bankers' Trust Company of Atlanta, Operating Company of a Chain of Banks Throughout the Southern State—Most of Closed Banks Were Relying on the Atlanta Institution for Funds—New York Bankers Disclaim Knowledge of Reported Agreement Not to Cash Checks on Florida Banks.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 14.—(AP)—Forty-eight Georgia banks and the Bankers' Trust company of Atlanta, operating company for 120 banks in the state, have closed their doors since Monday morning, the state department of banks announced tonight.

"Total capitalization of the banks as of December 31, 1925, was over $1,000,000 and total resources more than $10,439,120. Numerous banks were capitalized as low as $15,000 and ranged upward to $500,000 for the Georgia State bank. The liabilities ranged from $39,275.58 upward to $4,471,363.

The closing largely was attributed to the appointment of a receiver for the Bankers' Trust company. By a temporary injuction, officers of the company were restrained from altering in any way the status of the 120 banks in the chain.

Under the order issued by Judge G. H. Howard in Fulton superior court the affairs of the Bankers' Trust company were turned over to the receivers.

The banks reported to the state banking department as having closed today were:

Ball Ground bank, Bank of Lexington, Bank of Plainville, Bank of Powder Springs, Bank of Roopville, Comer bank, Madison County bank, Colbert bank, Bank of Hamilton, Farmers and Merchants bank, Chipley, Bank of Hiram, State bank, Cochran, Bank of Arnoldsville, Bank of Hazelhurst, Richland Estate bank, Bank of Alapaha, Temple Banking company, City Commercial bank, Woodbury, Bank of Warm Springs, Twiggs County bank, Jeffersonville; Bank of Stapleton, Barton County bank, Kingston and the Georgia State bank which has executive offices in Atlanta and branch banking houses in the following Georgia towns: Baxley, Bowdoin, Bronwood, Chatsworth'an, Cordele, Cumming, Douglas, Douglasville, Dublin, Greensboro, Hawkinsville, Mansfield, Maysville, Midville, Montezuma, Ocilla, Omega, Vidalia and Winder.

Five banks closed yesterday, including the Bank of Palmetto, the Bank of Chaincy, the Alma State bank, the Bank of Leesburg and the Commercial bank of Dallas. Two banks closed Monday, the Bank of Abbeville and the Farmers and Traders bank, Atlanta.

The opinion was expressed in financial circles that most of the banks closed were not insolvent, but because of the closing of the Bankers' Trust company, upon which they relied for funds, they were forced to close.

Many of the banks of the chain were said to have been able to make other financial arrangements and remained open.

All of the banks other than the Georgia state banks, were said to have been members of a chain.

Judge Orville Park, of Macon, general counsel for the Georgia Bankers association, expressed a similar opinion, explaining that most of the banks which closed today were relying upon the Bankers' Trust company and when the organization went into a receivership, they were forced to close.

The receivership of the Bankers' Trust company was granted upon the petition of the Bank of Umatilla, Fla., which alleged that the company had obtained $491,500 from the Umatilla bank to be placed on investment.

This money, the petition said, had been distributed among the Bankers' Financing company to finance banks in Florida, Georgia, banks for the Bankers' Trust company and the Barney Banking company, of Brooks county, Georgia, not a member of the chain.

Of the amount, the petition said, $23,000 had been retained by the Bankers' Trust company for its own purposes. The company paid $70,000 on account on June 14, the petition said, leaving a claim due for $441,500.

The petition charged that the Bankers' Trust company and W. D. Manley, its president, were insolvent "due to fradulent misapplication and misuse of funds of the petitioners and other institutions and diversion of funds from trust purposes to personal gain and benefit of the officers of the corporation."

The petition alleged that demand had been made for the money owed the Bank of Umatilla and that the Bankers' Trust company had admitted liability to pay. All creditors were asked to intervene in the suit.

IDENTIFY DEAD GIRL AS HOSPITAL ATTENDANT

BOSTON, July 14.—(AP)—The dismembered body found in the Mattapan section yesterday, was identified tonight as that of Edith Green, 20, a state ward and until recently an attendant at the Boston Psychopathic hospital. Identification was made by a young woman who said she was the dead girl's sister.

Hospital officials said that the girl worked there as a cleaner, and that previous to coming there she had worked as a cashier. In her references she gave no names of relatives. It was believed that a fellow employe, Bessie Landry, had given information to the authorities which led to the identification.

The case had been pronounced as that of an illegal operation and a search was in progress for the man responsible for the girl's condition and for the doctor suspected of operating upon her.

The police visited the home of William J. Ford in South Boston, and took him and his brother and father to the morgue for questioning.

Miss Green, whose parentage and origin was as yet unknown, was employed at the hospital as a day attendant from April 26 to June 13. She left there the night of the latter date and failed to return. She was dismissed on that account, and was thought to have hired a room in South Boston. Her last known address was 233 Warren avenue, in the Roxbury section.

Identification was made by Miss Landry, a fellow employe at the hospital who was aided by an original photograph and by what resembled a mole on the dead girl's back and two silver fillings in the upper back teeth.

It was learned that Miss Green had been a state ward since childhood and was one of three children. The police were told that she had left the hospital because of her condition. She hired a room in the Roxbury section on July 5 and left her belongings there, and that same night a young man called for her and took her away with him. She was never again seen alive. The name of the man was known to the police and they were searching for him tonight. They learned that on July 5 he took out marriage intentions for himself and Miss Green, but as far as could be discovered the marriage was not performed.

The company reported that three of the striking motormen returned to work and were put back on the pay-roll at the foot of the list.

JEWETT CITY

ENCOURAGING SIGNS OF CHESTNUT TREE RE-GROWTH

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 14. — Local farmers and lumber dealers are much interested in recent finds, some reported this week, in connection with the chestnut blight. This blight has totally ruined Griswold's great areas of chestnut growth, which were of so much value to their owners. All through the woods, along the country roads and in the corners of out field walls, there are to be seen the tall gaunt stems of the ruined chestnut trees, ranging from circumference of 30 inches to the great trunks, that will measure four feet through at the butt.

The blight struck this town in 1904, finding at that time, standing orders from the telephone, telegraph and electric light companies, for every chestnut tree, as soon as pole size was reached.

It has been hoped here that this tree might eventually develop resistance to the disease, which would prevent its being wiped out altogether.

This week, several farmers who are the owners of wood lots, have reported that around the stumps, where trees were cut, evidently thriving new shoots are in full growth, ranging in height from four to eight feet. Even after the blight here, had so far advanced upon one of Lisbon's lots, that over a hundred fine pole size chestnuts did not come into leaf, the trees were cut and sold to telephone pole cruisers, and many of them are holding out for fine service on the borough streets today.

In times past, thousands of cords of chestnut stove wood, hundreds of thousands of feet of boards and timber, and in late years many acres of standing poles, have gone to make the leading figures in Griswold's lumber assets.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Congregational church of Pachaug is to meet with Mrs. W. B. Montgomery this (Thursday) afternoon.

Mrs. Mary O'Toole and daughter, Annie, of Dorchester, Mass., have been visiting Philip McGovern.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Remick are at home after two weeks' trip, which included visits in New Hampshire and Canada.

Bert Shorey, employed by Chapman and Tripp is off duty with a broken wrist. Unloading lumber, the handle of the gear to hoist the truck body hit his arm, causing the fracture.

Miss Ida Tripp added Venus' looking glass Wednesday to the list of flowers she knows. This pretty and curious little plant is often found growing at the edge of a garden or perhaps beside the road. Its leaves are shell-shaped, and clasp the stalk so as to form little green cups. In the bottom of each cup three buds appear; these do not all blossom, but near the top of the stalk, a few buds will always expand and open a large, delicate purple-blue corolla. John Burroughs says in his "Bunch of Herbs" that the first born of this peculiar plant are still-born as it were; only the latest which spring from its summit, attain perfect bloom. Venus' looking glass is not nearly so common here as it was ten years ago.

DANIELSON

KILLINGLY GRANGE INVITED TO MEET WITH NORWICH

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 14—Killingly grange is one of the six granges invited to neighbor with Norwich grange July 26, and an effort is being made to have a large delegation attend from this town. Each invited grange has been asked to furnish two numbers for the literary program that will be a feature of the meeting. Killingly grange has ceased its usual round of activities for a summer vacation period and has no meeting scheduled until August 16.

Henry E. Trask, 69, died about 6 o'clock Tuesday evening at the home of his brother, Albert Trask, in the Killingly Center section of the town. He was born in Thompson, a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Trask. For a great many years he had lived in East Killingly and its vicinity and had been variously engaged as a stone layer, cement worker and farmer. Mrs. Trask died five years ago.

New telephone directories, for the Danielson division are ready and distribution of them will begin today (Tuesday). A review of the new issue will indicate the growth of the number of subscribers to telephone service in the territory within the Danielson division, this including all of the town of Killingly, the town of Brooklyn and parts of the towns of Sterling, Plainfield and Canterbury. Particularly interesting is the growth of the services in rural communities, even in out of the way places.

What Danielson's Twilight league means to the community as a whole is indicated by the great drawing power these games have night after night. Interest in the league grows week by week and it is the usual thing now to find Paco field, off Cottage street, crowded of an evening and enthusiasm running high. This is largely due to the fact that the players are all local boys and the rivalry between the teams exceedingly keen. The league has given baseball the greatest boost the game has enjoyed in Danielson in a decade.

Installation of an additional hydrant in the Riverview section and of an additional fire alarm box on Maple street have been authorized by the warden and court of burgesses. Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department said Wednesday morning that the new hydrant will be located somewhere in the vicinity of the residence of Attorney Arthur G. Bill, a section where a number of new dwellings have been erected in the recent past. This box may be No. 12 or No. 123, but this has not been definitely determined.

Dahlia growers are among the many who welcomed the rain that came during the early hours of Wednesday morning. While in town Wednesday Mrs. Lucy Hopkins of North Sterling mentioned the lack of development of several hundred dahlia plants at the Charles Rounds place in that community. Usually the garden of dahlias is one of the finest in eastern Connecticut this season it is far behind its usual state of development for mid-July.

Alexander's lake is yielding some bass, some very good ones. This particular lake always has been more or less of a puzzle to fishermen. There are fine bass in its waters, but there are periods when they will not be lured into striking. At other times they are responsive, as is attested by some recent good catches. Some three pounders have been taken from the lake within the past week. A few white perch also have been reported included in recent catches out of the lake.

Doing the Charleston, or watching someone else do it, continues to hold great fascination for a large number. Tuesday evening on the West Side several hundred people came from far and near to watch an exhibition of this exotic dance by three young girls.

Joseph LaBlanch of Packer was painfully injured a few days since at Central village while he was in collision, while he was riding a motorcycle, with an automobile owned in that place. LaBlanch was severely cashed across the chin, near the mouth, by broken glass from the windshield of the car.

The Buddies, leading the Twilight league, suffered their first defeat of the season Tuesday evening at the hands of the Nail Drivers after winning six straight games. The Buddies have been weakened ten penalty through the absence in camp with the Service battery of some hard hitting members of their team. On the other hand, the Nail Drivers are playing an improved game and are regarded as one of the strongest teams in the league.

At noon today (Thursday) such stores as make a practice each summer season of observing a half-holiday will close for the day. The closing will be more general today than on the first two Thursdays of July, because of other holidays and other considerations keeping some stores open that will close this noon.

Motorists who have experienced a trip through the area where highway construction is underway on the Danielson-Hartford route between Hampton and Willimantic report a "never-ending" feeling after taking the hazards of the ride. On account of the work, which is done to eventually have a much better highway, drivers who know about the difficulties of getting through are going by other routes in many cases.

Approximately half an inch of rain fell during the period between 2 a. m. and the early forenoon hours of Wednesday, in this territory, the first rain to amount to much in three weeks. This is not near enough of rainfall to make up the season's deficiency, but it was welcomed as a relieving contribution to a period of dry weather working havoc with growing things.

Mid-August will find a number of the members of the Danielson Methodist-Episcopal church attending the annual meetings to be held at Willimantic camp grounds. The meetings are to begin on August 14 and continue through August 22. The two Sundays included within the period will be marked by exceptional interest.

C. A. Hamilton, for many years a member of the national guard and formerly mess sergeant of the Service battery is at Tobbyhanna, Pa., with the troops again this year, but is a civilian. Mr. Hamilton has not fully recovered from a severe operation he underwent a few months ago, but went along to instruct the company cokos in their duties, that the battery members might have the benefit of his experience in the company kitchen.

Cards coming in from some of the members of the Service battery stress the fact that there isn't such a terrible drought in Scranton, which is not distant from their camp at Tobbyhanna.

J. C. Witter and A. V. Woodworth were at East Greenwich Wednesday on a business trip.

Large flocks of partridge and pheasants are reported by roamers of the woods, promising an interesting hunting season the coming fall.

George L. Botts of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

Tuesday evening's regular meeting of the warden and court of burgesses was largely concerned with the transaction of routine business.

It's early to talk about it yet, but men who keep a weather eye on political doings are beginning to discuss possibilities for candidates for representatives from Killingly for this fall's election.

Not a few here who have made Florida investments in the past three or four years are more or less disturbed by bank failures in that state and the effect these may have on land values down there.

Following an arrangement in force for the summer, the Danielson Rotary club will meet at noon today (Thursday).

Miss Annette C. Blanchette of Holyoke is spending a vacation with friends in town.

Corporators of the Brooklyn Savings bank are to elect trustees the coming week.

In extending its new main through Academy street, the Crystal Water company will have to cross Main street, on operation that will be more or less hampered by the constant heavy traffic.

A group of four young men hiking from Providence to Chicago made their way through Danielson Wednesday. One was frank enough to say they hoped for rides from motorists to cover a large part of the distance.

Murray, O'Hearn and Casey were the names given by three men in the City court when presented on a charge of intoxication, and stealing a ride from or on the New Haven railroad.

Officer Charles Satti, of the Webster police force saw them stowed away in a freight car on a south-bound New Haven train. He mounted his motorcycle, reached Putnam ahead of the train, and when it arrived here put the three under arrest and turned them over to the local police.

They told Judge Geissler that they lived at Brooklyn, N. Y., when at home, and they made no claim to any regular vocation or avocation. They were all philosophers of sorts and had evidently been in court before, but seemed to doubt the justice of being punished for the kind of a ride they had had on the New Haven. However they accepted the kind of sentences that the court dealt out to them.

John Murray got 30 days in Brooklyn jail, Benjamin O'Hearn, 35, and John Casey 40. The rides were really all of the same value but the judge wanted the combination broken. When Casey gets out of jail after his sentence and the costs have been paid, Murray will have been gone ten days and O'Hearn five days, if they meet later it will be at Brooklyn.

Harold Savage, 33, of Hartford, who was overcome by the heat Monday afternoon about 12.45, while riding on a train bound for Boston, was suddenly taken ill, after the train left Willimantic. Passengers saw him slump in his seat and then slide to the floor. The conducter was summoned and when the train reached Pomfret, word was sent to Putnam to have a doctor at that station. Dr. J. J. Russell, the railroad company's physician, who met the train at the station here, ordered the man sent to the Day Kimball hospital. He returned to his home at Hartford Wednesday. It was said at his home that Mr. Savage had been affected by the heat last Friday and that his collapse was the result of overwork during the hot spell. His condition, however, is not serious. He is an auditor for the Royal Indemnity company and was going to the company's office at Boston when stricken.

A Webster surgeon was called and after first aid had been administered the patient was taken to the Worcester Memorial hospital.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 846 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and rundown that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE NEGLIGENT SEASON

A young man got beyond his depth [illegible] in Providence [illegible] Those were [illegible] of the [illegible] to deal [illegible] emergencies of the police [illegible] and kept a boat [illegible] and when the police put [illegible] were so badly that they [illegible] to [illegible] ashore in [illegible] and lost by [illegible] while [illegible]

[illegible] view of the young [illegible] the [illegible] action, the [illegible] some [illegible] seems to be useless when [illegible] the [illegible] once would [illegible] seem to be justified, but that habit [illegible] of [illegible] one that grows con- [illegible] in omitting enough [illegible]

[illegible] first place a high [illegible] on the part of [illegible] seeking to [illegible] resorts. They take [illegible] without anticipating [illegible] are inviting [illegible] repeatedly. They [illegible] misfortunes but there [illegible] which they are [illegible] circumstance then puts [illegible] other shoulders [illegible] of negligence has [illegible] little chance [illegible]

[illegible] a life boat in [illegible] a car with pur- [illegible] for resuscitation [illegible] being unable to [illegible] when it is needed. Prepara- [illegible] emergencies amount to [illegible] more than a [illegible] of neglect all [illegible] while there are [illegible] drown- [illegible] many of [illegible] and should [illegible] the ap- [illegible] amount of per- sonal protection. The idea that a person can run the whole gamut of recklessness and rely upon the 100 [illegible] of others to save [illegible] is deplorably illustrated almost [illegible] in [illegible]

THE PRIMARY

There need be no surprise over the [illegible] developed a strong [illegible] primary system. [illegible] Those who fought it at the [illegible] was adopted, and fought it [illegible] believed that it would do [illegible] than good. There are [illegible] who have been growing more and more [illegible] that it has not worked out as they hoped and expected it [illegible] heard it as an excel- [illegible] but some of those theories [illegible] have not stood up well when [illegible] actual use.

There is a considerable number who [illegible] more than the [illegible] have accompanied the application of the primary sys- tem to recognize the mistake in adopt- ing it, and the recent experiences in several of the states including Penn- sylvania and Illinois have clearly demonstrated what has long been [illegible]

Under [illegible] conditions there's justifi- [illegible] for the increased opposition. And it is not sure that there will be any great progress made in the ef- fort to limit the amount of funds that a candidate can spend in a primary. [illegible] any such undertaking consideration must be given to the fact that candi- dates in states with a large popula- tion can be expected to spend more than those in small states, or states with minimal population.

Boiled down, the situation resolves itself into the fact that the primary was encouraged just what is now criticized. The primary has made it possible to do what was never thought of before it was brought into use. The primary has made [illegible] worse instead of better.

WHERE GREECE WINS

Probably no one even dreamed when the suggestion was offered and the repatriation of Greeks was start- ed [illegible] understanding be- [illegible] Turkey and Greece that it was going to mean the shifting of the rug market of the world from Constantinople to Athens. No one was screwed enough to be given credit for putting that deal over on Turkey, but that is what it seems to amount to.

There was the time when Turkey had 70,000 rug makers and 14,000 looms. That was before the con- flict between Turkey and Greece. There has been a shifting of popula- tions and today Turkey is credited with but about 25,000 rug makers and 5[illegible] looms.

There was a question as to what was going to become of those Greeks who were brought back from Turkey in the exchange, but it seems to be solved for a considerable number of them by the manner in which the rug making industry has been stim- ulated. This has been made possible, of course, by the fact that there were so many Greeks and Armenians in Turkey engaged in the rug making business. When they left Turkey they may not have carried their looms with them, but they could not be deprived of their skill. They have turned to what they are equipped to do with the result that they are not only taking care of themselves quite as efficiently in Greece as they did in Turkey but they are developing a business for Greece that means much for the future, though not for Turkey.

That Turkey might expect to retain its old time prestige of being the rug market of the world would be natur- al, but that doesn't appear to be the case when it is disclosed that buyers first visit Athens before going to Constantinople. A loss has been ex- perienced by Turkey that it did not anticipate. A gain has been made by Greece that was not expected, and so far as it can be judged from this distance the advantage would seem to lie with Greece, which couldn't have worked this out better had that out- come been in mind all the time.

SAVING BY GIVING AWAY

Times are changing. This is made evident in various ways. We have seen for a number of years how suburban trolley lines are giving way to automobiles and motorbus travel and it has been equally noticeable how that same form of travel has been having its effects upon the rail- roads. Many short runs have actually been abandoned and service is now being rendered over public highways.

From all indications the Long Is- land railroad reads the handwriting on the wall. It notes the falling off in travel on certain of its lines and it is unwilling to put any considerable sum into new construction on such lines for the future.

This is conspicuously indicated by the proposition which has just been submitted by the Long Island road to New York city, whereby it offers to give its Whitestone line to the city, together with [illegible] of shore prop- erty and a pier. The business on this line hasn't all gone, but it is dwindling. The real reason right now for this offer is that there is a program for grade crossing elimina- tion on this line which means an ex- penditure of $4[illegible],000, half of which will have to be borne by the rail- road. The railroad is convinced that it would mean money thrown away, that the future of the line does not warrant any such outlay and the best thing for it to do is to get rid of it, and the only way of disposing of it is to give it away, put it in the hands of the city, let busses take the place of the rails and there would thus be effected a saving of not only $2,000,000 to the railroad but $1,000,- 000 each to the state and city.

Should the company endeavor to abandon the line there would probably be a protest and it would not be per- mitted. The situation is set forth in a particularly effective manner when the road offers to give the line away because it recognizes that such an investment for grade crossings is a waste of money, since it is only a question of time when the traffic will be handled otherwise and the line will go for junk, and the road figures it has enough invested therein with- out putting $2,000,000 more into grade crossings from which there would be [illegible] change of salvage.

SELLING SHIPS

Ships are changing hands, and not all of them are government owned vessels. Not as many of the transac- tions involved government owned vesse as the country would like to see, provided, of course, that prices received for government property was on the same basis as those received for corporation ships.

There have been a number of trans- fers made by the shipping board this year, though such sales were at prices which brought the criticism that they ought to have been larger. Per- haps that would be inevitable. It is one thing to insist that larger sums should be obtained and another thing to get them.

Recently the board has announced that it will sell some of its biggest ships. That of course means that they will remain under the American flag and that the sale will be made at figures satisfactory to the board. If fair prices are obtained that is only what is to be expected. The desire is not what is desired and any such the shipping business, to stop its losses in that respect and to get our merchant marine into private hands.

It is possible for ships to be held at such high figures that only an emergency condition would make it possible for them to be disposed of. Under such a policy the government could expect to remain in the mer- chant marine business for ever. That is ot what is desired and any such a policy would be a mistake. On the other hand the throwing away of ships just because the government owns them is not to be thought of. When put on a basis of fairness, all conditions considered, sales will be made for the best interests of the country, and that is what must be considered.

HER FATHER'S LILLIES

It was a difficult task that Nellie Bayne had set herself—to look over her father's clothes in order to decide what disposal to make of them. Each worn and shabby garment brought some tender memory. A letter in one pocket and a memorandum in another touched her deeply, for they reminded her of her father's constant thought for others.

The letter was a boyish request for a letter of recommendation from a friend's son. There were a few scrib- bled notes of just and generous praise on the envelope, and Nellie laid it aside to send to the lad. She felt it would be inspiration to him, even if he could not use it as a letter of rec- ommendation.

As for the memorandum that Bayne had left and Nellie had found.

"See poor McLoy soon," was all there was of it.

"Poor McLoy," she repeated. "I haven't even thought of him since fa- ther died, and father never forgot him. I don't suppose I ever knew half the times that dad went to see Mc- Loy since he has been ill. I must go soon.

She came to the last suit that her father had worn. She remembered with painful clearness how she had brushed it that morning when he was start- ing downtown. He had with mock se- verity begged her to leave the nap of the goods intact, and she had retorted that if he didn't get a new outfit soon there wouldn't be enough left of this one to brush. In the waistcoat pocket she found a little roll of bills—only $7.

"Darling daddy!" she murmured. "You always had money for everybody but yourself. But this is sacred—this is yours. It's the last money your hands ever touched, and with it I shall buy lilies for you—the Mary lilies you loved, and take them out there."

There was something comforting to Nellie in the thought of buying lilies for her father's grave with those pre- cious bills. "Whether he knows it or not," she said to herself, "I'm doing something for him."

She put on her things and went out, intent upon doing this loving errand at once, but as she reached the street she thought of that penciled memoran- dum in her father's neat writing, "See poor McLoy soon." The words kept turning through her mind, and after a few moments' walk she turned with sudden resolution and took a street car.

"Dear heart, if it ain't Miss Nellie herself!" exclaimed McLoy as she opened the door. "It was meself tel- ling Pat this very blessed mornin' that we'd be seeing your pretty face here before long. Pat'll be that pleased he'll be like to cry. He's that weak he can't keep the tears back, Miss Nellie. Many's the one he's shed since your father, God bless him, left us."

"How is he? How is Mr. McLoy?" asked Nellie. "Are you getting on pretty well?"

"The doctor says he has a chance, but we're having a hard time to get the medicines. It's hard to get out to work, but I'm doing some washings at home. The heart was scalded out of me wantin' so much to go over and tell you how sorry we are about your father going so sudden."

"Thank you, Mrs. McLoy, I knew how much you'd both care."

"There never was anybody like him." Mrs. McLoy lifted her apron to her eyes. "Many's the time he's help- ed us out of hard holes since this trouble came to Pat, and niver a hard word once for the money we owed him. It's himself has said over and over a'lin that working for Mr. Bayne was like takin' out sick benefit insurance, so angel good has he been to us. Come in the other room, Miss Nellie dear. Pat's heard your sweet voice, and it's sure I am he's wearyin' to see you."

As Nellie walked in the dusk on her way home she looked into the brightly lighted windows of a florist shop and gazed at a tall stalk of white oratums. "Father's lilies," she said smiling wist- fully. "But he wouldn't have liked me to buy them for him."

There was a little glow of happiness in her heart as Mrs. McLoy's parting words rang in her ears, "Bless you for this given dollars, you'll never guess what a godsend it is just now. You're your father's own child, Miss Nellie dear."—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Dog Show

Mr. Editor: Replying to Mr. Chase's letter of today where he states that he appreciates the authority with which I speak owing to its being the first time I ever showed a dog, I would like to recall to his mind that there were several exhibitors of Shepherd dogs—who make a business of following the shows—that were very much disgrunt- led, in fact so much so that one, (a German, too, and considered an author- ity on dogs) broke all rules and regula- tions of the show and took her dogs out and went home.

I do not question the breeding of Brunolf of Pine Tree. He is a very beautiful dog and worthy of the honor he received, and in using the words "made over" perhaps I should have said "improvement," and yet I feel sure if the dog of yesterday were to walk down the streets of today, Ger- many would not think very much of some of the improvements.

When Mr. Chase was at my house looking my dog over I was perfectly frank in telling him who the man was that told me I had a real dog, so I do not think it necessary to print his name in these columns. That man has handled German Shepherds ever since they became a fad here, and still handles them, so he ought to know one when he sees it.

I had the pleasure last summer of seeing two beautiful German Shepherd police dogs, trained to catch criminals, just imported from Germany and they were the exact type of my Tock II, which only strengthens my conviction that I own a real German Shepherd without any frills or fancies and had I known that only the "improvements" were to be judged, I would never have entered him, for he was certainly in a class all by himself.

Please don't misunderstand me, for I am a good sport and a good loser, and I am willing to stand corrected where correction can be made, but I still maintain that this was a time when the "real article," was out of place with the "improvements."

Stories That Recall Others

Indoor Golf

A few days ago a doctor and a non medical friend went to a city in an- other state to attend a convention, both being members of the same or- ganization. They registered at the best hotel and prepared to have a thoroughly enjoyable time. In addi- tion to business sessions the convention program offered opportunities for recreation. There was to be a golf tournament and the doctor's friend took his golf sticks along. The first day was strenuous, with reports, speeches, round table discussion and the like, so both retired early and fell asleep.

They did not sleep long for some reason their dreams were disturbed and each had a tendency to scratch himself. Finally they turned on the light and began to investigate. A small object appeared on one of the beds and skidded around a turn.

"Well, sir," said the doctor, "I be- lieve that's a cimex lectularius."

"You'd better talk English to me," said the friend. "What's its other name?"

"Oh, I suppose you'd understand better if I said it was a bed bug," ex- plained the doctor.

They turned back the covers and it seems as though the bed bugs, too, were holding a convention. They te- lephoned to the night clerk who seem- ed to think they were joking, or else unduly alarmed.

"What club would you use in a case like this?" asked the friend of the doctor.

"Suit yourself," the doctor advised.

The friend got out his bag and after looking them all over decided on a driver and from then on the slaughter began and all night others kept com- ing to attend the inquest. Now the golfer is wondering whether he can recover his old time golf swing.

A Squalling Tug

John was out walking with his fa- ther when he saw a small tug towing a lighter and a barge and heard the tug whistle loudly.

"Oh, papa," exclaimed John, "the big ship's got the little one by the tail and it's squealing."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sixty years ago today, Miss Ma- rie Tempest is still a favorite of the English stage and reported to be "the best dressed woman in London." Back in the '90s Miss Tempest was as pop- ular on the American stage as she was on the English, and she is still re- membered by hosts of admirers among theatre-goers. It was in comic opera that she first gained fame and it was on the comic stage that she first ap- peared in America. In 1900 she for- sook the comic opera stage for legit- imate comedy. Among her most suc- cessful roles were those of Nell Gwynne in "English Nell" and Becky Sharp in "Vanity Fair." Miss Tem- pest was born in London and receiv- ed a convent education in Belgian. In preparation for a musical career she studied in Paris and at the Royal Academy of Music in London. She made her first appearance as a prima donna of light opera in 1880.

TRAFFIC

By the Albert Russel Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research University of California, Los Angeles

Costs New York $1,000,000 daily. Every city pays tribute.

Gallon of gas lasts 40 minutes in idling car.

It is estimated that traffic conges- tion costs the citizens of New York city one million dollars a day.

Chicago, it is said, must contribute six hundred thousand daily because of the inadequacy of its traffic sys- tem.

This city pays a similar tribute to traffic congestion in proportion to its size.

One important factor in the higher cost of living in cities is to be found in the amount of money which must be paid for the delivery of commodi- ties.

In one city, for example, it has been discovered that it costs as much to deliver potatoes from the freight sta- tion to the consumer as it does to bring the same potatoes a thousand miles by rail.

It costs six cents per minute to keep a truck of average size on the streets, whether it is running or not. Anyone can see how rapidly the cost of delays piles up.

The gasoline costs alone make con- gestion a heavy burden. An average small car will consume a gallon of gasoline during 40 minutes of idling. On this basis a large taxicab company estimated that if it could save two minutes on each trip it would reduce its gasoline costs by more than $100,- 000 per year.

There are many economic burdens resulting from traffic congestion which it is difficult to measure in dollars and cents, but which, nevertheless, are very costly in their total. Consider, for example, the inconvenience which thousands of citizens suffer through traffic delays, or in attempting to find a parking place for their cars. Truck- ing concerns, taxicab companies and street railway corporations must pro- vide a larger number of operating units because of decreased speed of operation.

All of the business activities of a city are adjusted to a certain speed with which business can be transact- ed. Congestion has stepped in to dis- turb this balance by decreasing the speed of operation, and thus costly readjustments are required.

All these increased burdens result- ing from traffic congestion eventually fall on the ultimate consumer in the form of increased costs of everything he buys. The relief of congestion is not, therefore, the problem of any small group, but one in which the en- tire public should be interested.

The proper organization of public authorities to deal with the problem of congestion has everywhere indi- cated that much of the economic loss can be relieved.

Wherever there has been an intel- ligent handling of the problem, the costs of the reorganization have been repaid many times over by the de- crease in economic losses resulting from congestion.

Wrinkles Removed "While You Wait"

It has been discovered that the mere application of a spoonful of Powdered Tarkroot mixed with a spoonful of lemon juice, actually re- moves wrinkles and creases in fifteen minutes or less! There's no rubbing no work, and the expense is trifling—less than three cents! It is only nec- essary to spread the mixture over the face, sit down before the mirror, and watch those unwelcome marks of age illness or worry disappear like magic The effect is incomparably better than that produced by massaging.

The mixture of course is perfectly harmless. While on the face a pleas- ant soothing sensation is experienced It is easily washed off. Aside from its remarkable effect on wrinkles, there's nothing better for baggy cheeks or chin. No woman who purchases a package of Powdered Tarkroot from her druggist will regret having done so

THE ALUMINUM GYRATATOR CREATES AN UNUSUALLY TURBULENT WATER ACTION
NO WATER LINE
THE MAYTAG TUB CAN BE FILLED TO THE BRIM

THE scientific design of the Maytag cast aluminum tub, together with the gyratator action, creates an un- usually cleansing, more turbulent water condition in every inch of the tub all of the time. A water action that puts every drop of water—every bit of soap suds to work.

This more cleansing water action, found only in the Maytag, washes clothes clean in half the usual time—washes bigger tub- fuls in but 3 to 7 minutes. Does a whole washing—50 pounds of clothes (dry weight) in one short hour. Washes everything without hand-rubbing—even collars, cuffs and wristbands.

The Maytag has no waterline. A few pieces are washed just as effectively in a pailful of water as a big tubful of clothes are washed with the tub filled to the brim.

Phone the nearest Maytag dealer! Use a Maytag in your own home without obligation or expense. Test it thoroughly. Compare it with other washers. If the Maytag doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

STAFFORD MAN, INJURED IN COLLISION, IMPROVES

The condition of John Hlobik of Stafford Springs, injured in an automobile accident in Providence Monday was said to be somewhat improved at St. Joseph's hospital there Tuesday. Hospital officials said he had not recovered sufficiently to go to the bedside of his son in a Hyannis, Mass., hospital, where the junior Hlobik is suffering from a fractured skull received in an automobile accident.

The Hlobiks, father, mother and son, Joseph, were on their way to Hyannis in response to a call that John, Jr., was dangerous hurt when a truck, with defective brakes, operated by Ernest Ricci, crashed into their car on Broadway. John was struck down Saturday night by an automobile operated by Miss Evelyn Crowell of West Dennis. His skull was fractured. It is not expected he will live. Mrs. Hlobik and her son, who were slightly hurt, have been discharged from the Rhode Island hospital and have gone to Hyannis.

Inspectors of the State Board of Public Roads have examined the truck operated by Ricci and said Tuesday would prefer a charge of reckless operation against him. The truck is owned by William Marino, of Providence.

BOY BURGLAR WAS LIVING IN SHACK

In a shack in a bit of woods off the road that runs back of the golf club grounds, the police arested a 14-year-old boy about 2:30 Wednesday morning for whom they have been on the watch since a series of petty burglaries began about the Fourth of July. The boy had kept out of reach by staying away from his home on the West Side, apparently living in the shack which he had fitted up with provisions and articles stolen from time to time. He is of Polish parentage.

Arrest of the young burglar followed a report received at police headquarters Tuesday night that a man who had stopped his automobile on the back road had been told to get out of there by a boy who pointed a pistol at him. Capt. Thomas Murphy dispatched Officers P. Murphy and F. Gwizdowsky to the place and they brought the boy in as the police had previously located his shack and had been watching for him.

It was found that the pistol he had was an old useless weapon.

Places which he is credited with entering are the National Biscuit Co., the Lane Battery shop and Frank L. Maples grocery store at 101 Elizabeth street, it is understood the boy confessed to entering the Maples store six times. It was entered last Sunday night and again on Tuesday night.

Three employes of the Max Gordon corporation, James Hackley and Alex Weaver, colored, and Patrick Cox, white, were arrested Wednesday afternoon when this boy picked them out of a group of workmen, saying that they had been stealing metal junk from the corporation. The arrests were made by Sergeant Myron Morgan; Officers Charles Smith and John O'Neil.

S. naval advisor and is not expected to return until the early part of September. INFLUX OF SUMMER BOARDERS PUTS BOZRAH AT POPULATION PEAK

The season for summer boarders is at its height in the neighboring town of Bozrah, as can be plainly seen by any one passing along the roads of the town and observing the groups of young people and children, as well as adults, that throng the yards and porches of the farm houses or can be met strolling along the highways. They bear the marks of non-residents and their numbers indicate that the influx of summer boarders has brought Bozrah to its peak population figure at this season of the year.

On the main road between Yantic and Colchester there is scarcely a house but has its quota of summer boarders, mostly from New York city and vicinity, while at Fitchville there are two large summer boarding houses, Spruce lodge on the Fitchville pond and the new Prospect house farther along toward Colchester, which has just been built and opened this season. Farm houses on the side roads likewise have their share of summer visitors.

Something of a building boom has also been evident in Bozrah this year. Residents there point out several causes for this, one of them being the extremely low tax rate of 15 mills, said to be the lowest tax rate for any town in the state. Easy transportation is provided by the bus line between Norwich and Colchester and another thing mentioned is the prospect for places along the pipe line of the Deep River reservoir obtaining water from this source. The advantage of electric service in the town has been provided by the formation of the Bozrah Electric company, with offices at Bozrah. In many cases the residents have eagerly availed themselves of the electric power and lights as soon as it was available, both for house and farm uses. The company is now planning to extend the service to the town limits of Colchester, also to the town of Franklin and to Gardner Lake where it is expected to serve about 150 new customers.

The company now serves about 75 families and with the extensions planned by the end of the year it is expected to serve about 200 homes as well as several of the mills in these towns. The villages of Leffingwell, Fitchville and Bozrah are now being served with power and lights and the citizens of these towns have about all taken advantage of this new asset to the town.

The men and materials for the extensions are now on hand and the work on the new lines will start at once. Nathan Gilman is president of the Bozrah Electric Co., which buys its energy from the Norwich gas and electric department and re-sells it to the consumers in that town, thereby becoming one of the large customers of the Norwich department.

SACRED HEART FETE ON NORWICH TOWN GREEN

The Norwich Town Sacred Heart parish held a most successful lawn fete on Huntington Green Wednesday evening, from 7 o'clock on. The attendance of several hundred included not only members of the Catholic parish but representatives of other denominations and friends from the city. Mrs. Dennis Houlihan was general chairman assisted by a number of committees, each comprising energetic women of the parish, who put in full time in making the fete the success it proved. Among the attractions was the Italian band of Norwich, which played a varied programme of lively music throughout the evening, from 7:45 until the fete closed. The band was located at the front of the green between the two side streets at the approach. Bordering the green on three sides were tables decorated in gay colored crepe paper, light green, red, white, blue, etc. Here good things were dispensed by those in charge of each table.

The committee members, also girls and boys who in any way assisted, had white paper caps with red bands. Vases of summer flowers adorned the tables. Electric wires strung above the tables furnished the light which shone through red, white, green, orange and blue bulbs. This was made possible through the courtesy of manager C. W. Taggert, of the Norwich Gas and Electrical Co., by which the electricity was generously provided. By special request the privilege of holding the fete on Huntington Green was granted by First Selectman William S. Murray who also had the green mowed for the fete. The articles for sale included hot dog sandwiches, cake, soft drinks, ice cream, peanuts, candy, with aprons, quilts and miscellaneous articles. A big attraction which provided much fun was the fish pond in which a variety of small articles came from liberal donors.

A long line of automobiles parked around the green and on West Town street while many listened to the band concert.

The wiring was under the direction of William P. Carrigan, chairman, who was assisted by Thomas Shahan, Everett Woodworth, John Nichols, Harry Koskie and others.

Following were the committees under the general supervision of Mrs. Houlihan: Hot dogs and rolls, Miss Anna Shahan, chairman, Mrs. John Lyons, Mrs. Everett Woodworth (cashier), Mrs. James Kivlin; cake, Mrs. Delore Herbert, chairman, Miss Catherine Casey, Miss Mary White (cashier), Miss Agnes White; ice cream, Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy, chairman, Mrs. George Smith, Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, Mrs. Charles Cook, Mrs. John Meehan, Thomas White (cashier), Miss Alice Kennedy; soft drinks, Delore Herbert, chairman, Charles Bradley, Frederick Portelance and others; candy, quilts, etc., Timothy Flide; miscellaneous articles, Frank O'Neil, chairman, Francis Herbert (cashier), Miss Blanche Richards; aprons, Mrs. Richard Quinn, chairman; Mrs. Walter Moran (cashier), Miss May Herbert; fish pond, Miss Mary Burns, chairman, Miss Dora Marchand (cashier), Miss Sadie Portelance; peanuts, Miss Mary McNally, chairman, assisted by several small boys; balloons, Miss Catherine Shahan, chairman, assisted by Misses Juanita Gorman and Miss Mabel Fedler. Miss Dorothy Jarvis assisted the committee on hot dogs and rolls.

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are 13 names on the list. One was a Connecticut operator convicted in another state. One case was appealed. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles. The list is as follows:

Reginald Beale, Middletown; Clem Blanchard, Thomaston, Ralph Charriott, South Norwalk; Albert Clifford, South Manchester; Uhland Culpeper, Groton; Wm. V. Doll, Southport; George F. Donnelly, Meriden; Joseph J. Gregey, Meriden; John J. Marrin, Hartford; George F. Ryan, New Haven; John Sungella, Bristol; Joseph Swedok, Meriden; Lawrence Wilkinson, Evanston, Ill.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF OPERATING UNDER INFLUENCE

Delifa St. John of Jewett City was arrested Wednesday night shortly after 7 o'clock by Constable Lucius Fenton on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. St. John was locked up at the Norwich police station under bonds of $500 and will have to face the judge in the morning to explain his actions.

The arrest took place at Taft's station when the automobile driven by St. John lost a wheel and necessitated his stopping at a garage. Constable Fenton found the accused in the garage and it is alleged that the man admitted having driven the car from Jewett City to Taftville.

Bridge Plank On Fire.

A plank in one of the West Main street bridges was discovered on fire shortly after midnight Wednesday by Officer William Sharvan. Men from the central station responded to the call and extinguished the blaze with chemical.

VEGETABLE CROPS ARE SUFFERING FOR RAIN

That the drought of the past weeks has done considerable to damage and kill crops being raised by vegetable gardeners in this section was disclosed Wednesday evening when the members of the Norwich Vegetable Growers association met at the home of Frank E. Peckham on Corning Road. Practically all of the members have suffered a loss of some of their produce, especially that which had been planted on high or dry ground. Grass has been hit to a great degree this summer, and it is certain to bring about a shortage in the hay crop, so necessary for winter feeding. Cucumbers, and beets have also been badly hit by the continued lack of rain and unless rain in large quantities falls in this section within a few days the killing of vegetable growth is expected to increase to a large extent.

During the evening the members of the association visited the grounds of Mr. Peckham, looking over his tomatoes, carrots and cabbage plants; also the green house tomatoes and celery at the farm of L. R. Peckham nearby. At both places growth was well advanced and the plants were in a healthy condition.

Practically all members reported that native crops of tomatoes and summer squash were coming along fast and are beginning to be sent into the local markets, with increased production to make the offerings larger within a week. Native cucumbers, shell beans, green corn and raspberries are also coming along nicely and the association expects to bring them into the market on or about August 1st.

The members of the Norwich association also made plans to hold a clambake at Quonochontaug some time during the month of August and a number of them announced that they were planning to make up a party to attend the field day of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers association to be held in New Haven at the experimental station, later this month.

PLAINTIFFS GET JUDGMENT FOR COMMISSION CLAIMED

In a suit for agent's commission brought against Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gollas of Norwich, judgment for the plaintiffs to recover $1,597.50 has been given by Judge C. B. Waller, who heard the case in the common pleas court. The three plaintiffs are Vera Pokutny, administrator of the estate of Sam Pokutny, Michael and Dimitry Pisarko, administrators of the estate of Peter Pisarko, and Peter Owdly, all of Norwich.

Sam Pokutny and Peter Pisarko are the two men whose deaths occurred in a murder and suicide case at Taftville and the suit was brought by the administrators of their estates on the claim that these men had been employed as brokers to sell a farm in Preston for Mr. and Mrs. Gollas. They claimed that they secured a customer at the price of $15,000, who paid this price for the farm.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Waller says:

"I find that the plaintiffs were employed as real estate brokers by the defendants to secure a customer for a farm owned by the defendants located in the town of Preston, and that the compensation of the plaintiffs was fixed by express agreement of the parties at 10 per cent. of the sale price. I find that the actual sale price of the property was $15,500.

"The amended complaint sets forth the sale price at $15,000 and I understand the plaintiffs counsel has waived the right to offer an amendment to the complaint.

"Judgment may be entered for the plaintiffs to recover of defendants the sum of $1,597.50."

PUTNAM MAN ADVOCATES BUILDING LOAN ASSOCIATION

The advantages of the Building and Loan association were comprehensively given by John Reardon, past president of the Putnam Rotary club, in an address before the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon, at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Reardon's talk was enthusiastically received and proved very interesting. He said in part:

Building and loan associations have become one of our best recognized forms of saving because of the fact that every dollar put into the bank goes for building of homes as a general rule thereby adding to the invested capital of the community in which it is located. It is a form of banking that is both profitable and a pleasure to be connected with. It is profitable from the fact that your money is invested in the finest kind of collateral and that is real estate.

It is a pleasure to the man of woman that takes advantage of its liberal but stringent rules and becomes an owner of a home. And show me the man or woman who has not dreamed of that cosy cottage, or bungalow, and through the coming of Building and Loan associations were encouraged to take out shares that were payable monthly, and after a very short time has elapsed, could see their dream come true. I tell you, that joy is not theirs alone.

It is a neighborhood one, a town one, it is not alone the individual who owns the home that benefits but the entire nation. You have made that home builder a desirable citizen; he will take more pains to find out about his tax rate: he watches the town or city governments more closely; he analyzes more closely the government doings and is alive to many things that would pass over his head if only just a poll tax payer. I believe B & L Ass'n. are one of the best possible assets to any community, they are as sound as any other form of banking, the business is supervised by the state as other banks are and the rules laid down are stringent.

My advice to any young man or woman is take out shares in your B. & L. Ass'n., and watch your savings grow. My advice also to you men and women who are looking for safe places for your spare cash is take shares also in your associations, the returns are in keeping with sound banking principles in which your money is safeguarded by first mortgages.

I have been interested in this form of saving many years. I have seen homes built that I believe would not have been so except for such associations.

There was a time when banking interests in small towns frowned down on them but that time has gone by, for no reputable man can raise his voice in condemnation of them, on the contrary they are and should be welcomed by all banking interests for its purpose is solely the building of homes and that goes good in any community.

I am enthusiastic over this form of saving because it is systematic and sound, I believe there are many thousands of homes in our country that would never have been built but for these associations. I have backed this judgment for many years myself by thousand dollars I ever saved was thousan ddollars I ever saved was through them and well I remember how large it looked to me, so I say to the men who give of their time to look after them you are performing a labor of love and are sacrificing your good time for the benefit of your community.

John J. O'Rourke was the five-minute speaker of the meeting and gave a very interesting resume of the life of Thomas Jefferson, saying that now 100 years after Jefferson, the people are becoming to realize more than ever what wonderful principles were given to the country and the world by this man. Jefferson although not much of an orator gave to America some of its finest principles. Time changes but the principles never. Jefferson was a firm believer in the people and his work was in getting the government out of the hands of the chosen few and onto the broad shoulders of the people. He succeeded and today his principles are just as good as they were 100 years ago.

At the business session of the club President E. A. Harris presided and William G. Park was the song-leader for the day. Several communications were read by Secretary Jewett, one being from the Cape Breton club inviting all members of the club who vacationed in the north to call on that club.

President Harris spoke briefly on the fall conclave which is to be held at Lenox, Mass., the latter part of September. He also spoke of a challenge from the Pittsfield club baseball team to the Norwich club, champions of the 20th district, for a game at Lenox. The Norwich club accepted this challenge and will play in defense of their title at the conclave.

Willis Austin, chairman of the aviation committee of the chamber of commerce, read a letter from the New England Aircraft Corporation of Hartford, relative to Norwich's interest in establishing an airport here. It is suggested that they land at East Great Plain and take up passengers to show just what aviation means to the general public.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Because of illness, Senator George McLean of Simsbury, was unable to be present and address the meeting as planned.

But there were enthusiastic addresses by Governor John H. Trumbull, Senator Hiram Bingham, J. H. Horaback, chairman of the Republican state committee, Miss Katherine Byrne, of Putnam, the vice chairman, Mrs. Russ, of Derby, national committee woman and others. DELANEY IS SLIGHT FAVORITE TO WIN OVER BERLENBACH THIS EVENING

New York, July 14.—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach, holder of the world's light-weight championship, enters the ring in the most important fight of his picturesque career at Ebbets Field, tomorrow night, when he dangles his crown before the flashing right hand of Jack Delaney. The match is scheduled for 15 rounds to a decision.

Ring critics have made the Bridgeport challenger a hairline favorite to defeat the champion, contending Delaney's boxing ability and his tremendous punching power should be more than a match for Berlenbach's crushing left hand. The champion, however, has his backers, several selecting him to retain the crown by a decision over the full distance.

Delaney expects to win as decisively as in the first meeting, when he stopped Berlenbach in the fourth round after the latter had chalked up a series of 23 consecutive knockouts in amateur and professional bouts. Their second meeting, December 11, 1925, resulted in a decision for Berlenbach in 15 rounds.

The two principals completed their training activities today, both taking a long walk to taper down after three weeks of hard work.

Delaney pulled stakes from his camp on the Housatonic river near Derby, Conn., and came to New York to spend the night, while Berlenbach postponed his return to the metropolis until just before the weighing tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Reports from the two camps were favorable as to the condition of the contestants. Delaney is still under the 175-pound limit, while Berlenbach experienced only slight difficulty in getting down.

Dan Hickey, the champion's veteran manager said Paul would likely scale 174 1-2 while Delaney is expected to weigh about 173.

Humbert J. Fugazy, promoter of the match, said today he expected a complete sellout of tickets. The advance sale has hurdled the $400,000 mark with all indications pointing to a half million dollar gate. Five thousand unreserved general admission tickets will be placed on sale at the park tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, while a few unreserved tickets also will be available.

The champion, fighting on a percentage basis, is expected to receive $300,000 if the bout is a sellout. This will increase his earnings over a three-year period to half a million dollars adding his ring earnings second only to those of Jack Dempsey. The challenger's share of the receipts will amount to about $50,000.

The match itself is expected to crackle with action. Delaney is at his best against an opponent who assumes the offensive, while Berlenbach's aggressiveness has always been one of his chief assets. Both men have dismantled a finishing punch, the champion placing chief dependence on a sweeping left, the challenger on a deadening right.

The headliner is supported by an attractive card of preliminary matches in the 10 round semi-final, Sergeant Jack Adams, Delaney's sparring partner will meet Arthur Dekuh, Italian heavyweight. Ted Moore, the English middleweight, is scheduled to go eight rounds with Jimmy Francis of New Jersey, while in a four-rounder, Monte Munn, the ex-assemblyman from Bridgeport will face Gordon Munro, former amateur heavyweight champion.

Billy Reynolds of Jersey City and Thomas Lotenzo of New York will meet in the four round curtain-raiser. The first fight is scheduled for 8:15 o'clock eastern daylight time, with the 10th match carded for 10 o'clock.

Both Berlenbach, will have a slight advantage in weight and reach in his favor against Jack Delaney tomorrow night. The challenger, however, is one inch taller than his rival. Physical statistics of the principals follow:

MISS WILLS TO RESUME HER PLAYING THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—Helen Wills, America's queen of the courts, who two years before underwent a similar foreign invasion in the role of conquering her French rival, Suzanne Lenglen, was armed with that announcement by the national champion upon her return from Europe today with other members of the Whightman Cup team that would from Miss Wills that she had been practice Friday with a view to defending her title late next month at Forest Hills, N. Y. Interrupted in her European campaign a little more than a month ago by an operation for appendicitis, the champion said she was "feeling fine" and expected to enter the tournament competition Aug. 2 in the annual invitation event at Seabright, N. J.

The California girl, whose thrilling match with Mlle. Lenglen last February at Cannes attracted world wide interest, was unwilling to venture an opinion as to whether she could defeat the French star in a return engagement. But Mary K. Browne, Wightman team captain, frankly admitted Suzanne to be "a most wonderful" player—the best in the world today."

Miss Browne, who twice met defeat at the hands of Lenglen, tempered that admission by an expression in confidence in Miss Wills, asserting the latter "would have done exceptionally well against Lenglen at Wimbledon." Players must compete against the French girl several times to get her style, she explained.

She said she did not believe, however, that the champion ought to attempt to defend her crown this year. "If she does, it may wreck her health," the Wightman team captain continued.

That Miss Wills has unwavering faith in her powers to recuperate quickly was indicated by announcement of her teammates that she did not surrender the idea of playing at Wimbledon until the day before her scheduled appearance. "The California girl asked that her name be retained on the list as long as possible, so confident was she that her recovery from the operation would be sufficient to warrant her participation.

The American champion was generous to Mlle. Lenglen, in her explanation of the latter's delay in appearing for a match before Queen Mary Wimbledon and her subsequent withdrawal from the tournament maintaining that the episodes were not due to an eccentric turn. Miss Wills defended her rival by declaring that "she must have been ill."

She amplied this remark by admitting that Mlle. Lenglen' plays "awfully well but there's nothing eccentric in her steady game."

Eleanor Goss, Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, and Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, joined Miss Wills in a tribute to French and English officials and spectators. "They were very nice to us," was the simple way in which the American champion described the foreign receptions.

HEYDLER REFUSES TO ALLOW BRAVES' PROTEST

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—President John A. Heydler today denied a petition for a replay of the Boston-Pittsburgh National league game of May 5, protested by the Braves on the ground of interference by Catcher Taylor while Earl Smith was at bat in the sixth inning.

The Braves contended that Taylor was prevented from making a throw to second to catch McInnis stealing, and that the Pirate first sacker later scored what proved to be the winning run, 3 to 2. A report from Umpire McCormick indicated, however, that a low, inside pitch compelled Smith to jump. He became overbalanced, and fell forward across the plate, and McCormick refused to allow a claim of interference on the ground that rule 53 required the batsman to attempt to avoid pitched balls.

The arbiter's judgment is upheld in Heydler's verdict.

FARRELL WINS SHAWNEE OPEN GOLF CROWN

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Pa., July 14.—(AP)—Johnnie Farrell, of New York, won the annual Shawnee open golf tournament today. His score for the four rounds was 293. One stroke ahead of Bob MacDonald, of Chicago, and Bobbie Cruickshank, of New York.

Two strokes behind MacDonald and Cruickshank was Bill Melhorn, Chicago, with 297.

Farrell rather surprised the field with a dramatic finish after running into difficulties during the last nine holes of the fourth round. At the end of the second round yesterday, Farrell held a lead of 5 strokes. The Quaker Ridge youth almost threw his chances away when he hooked his drive away from the green and holed out in six. He needed a three to win. Going to the 18th although his drive stuck itself in the rough, a noble chip shot placed him one foot from the pin.

Willie MacFarlane, former open champion, and winner here last year was compelled to withdraw from the tournament after the second round because of a nervous affection of the eyes until next year.

MISS BROWNE RAISES THE SPIRIT OF MRS. JESSUP

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—Tribute was paid today by Mary K. Browne, to the courageous uphill fight of Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup as turning the tide of victory in favor of America in the recent Wightman cup matches against England.

Miss Browne, captain of the winning team welcomed home today, asserted that Mrs. Jessup made the "most courageous stand against Mrs. Dorothy Sheppard-Barron of England that I have ever seen in tennis."

"After Mrs. Jessup had won the first set," she explained, Mrs. Sheppard-Barron assumed a lead of five to one in the second. Mrs. Jessup then tied the score at 5-all, but could not quite pull out the set.

"Mrs. Jessup started the third set slowly, losing four straight games. Then Marion started to pull back, point by point, winning six games in a row for match victory. Her gameness and example provided a wonderful stimulus to Miss Ryan and myself in capturing the odd match for the

WARRIORS LOSE SENSATIONAL GAME TO EAST ENDS IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

The Warriors lost a tough game at the Duwell field, Wednesday evening, when they were nosed out by the East Ends in a tight game 4 to 3.

The Warriors got off to a three-run lead in the first two innings, but lost it when the East Ends counted four times in the fifth.

Pavlak twirled for the Warriors and with the exception of the fifth inning, pitched great ball. He allowed eight hits in all, three of them coming in the big inning. Pavlak in pitching his game was aided by sensational support by his teammates. In the fourth with two men on the bases, Joe Jackson pulled off a wonderful one-handed catch of E. Papineau's hard drive, while in the sixth, Fitzgerald came through with one every bit as good when he robbed Bamford of a sure hit. Fitzgerald, like Jackson, took the ball at top speed and with one hand.

Harry Mills was in the box for the East Ends and after a bad start in the first two innings, when the Warriors scored all their runs and five of their seven hits, was invincible.

The Warriors entered the scoring column first pushing across a single counter in the very first inning. Hamil singled to left and was forced at second on Jones' is grounded to short. Jackson stole second, went to third while Pepin's threw out Kamp at first, and scored on Bill Burns' single to left. Gibbs got on by an error, but Marchand closed the inning with a grounder to Moran.

In the second, the Warriors continued their attack on Mills with two more runs. Coughlin led off with a double and Pavlak fanned. Hamil popped to Moran Jackson then scored Fitzgerald with a single to center, but Kampf closed the frame with a fly to E. Papineau.

There was no more scoring until the fifth, when the East Ends launched their only attack of the game, scoring four runs, which proved enough to win the game. J. Papineau, the first batter was safe on an error by Gibbs. Gaudette singled, and Papineau took second. Morin flied out to center, but Mills walked, filling the bases. Dugas flied out to left, but Coughlin came through with a single to left, scoring Papineau and Gaudette, Mills going to second. Mills stole third, and Coughlin, second and both crossed the plate on steal when Hagar did singled to center. Fitzgerald stole second, and stayfiles' one base hit to center. E. Papineau put an end to the rally by striking out.

The Warriors made a final bid for the game in the seventh, and came close to tying up the contest. With two out, Jackson singled, stole second, and went to third on a passed ball. Kampf hit a slow roller down the third base line, which Mills picked up and threw to first. The Warriors claimed that the throw pulled Coughlin off the bag, and that Kampf was safe, thus tying the score. Umpire Quirk however saw the play differently and called the runner out. The score:

Danny Goes Visiting

One should always be his best
When he finds himself a guest.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

What Danny means by that saying is that when one is a guest one is in the position of receiving favors and therefore should be polite and considerate of the feelings of others. This, of course, is very true, but it isn't always easy. There is such a thing as being a willing guest, and again there is such a thing as being an unwilling guest. But in either case it is wise to appear at one's best.

Jimmy Skunk had asked Danny why he hadn't been over to visit him under the bathhouse over near the beach. Danny had politely explained that he had been so very busy and there had been so much to see that he had kept putting that visit off.

"Pooh!" exclaimed Jimmy Skunk. "You don't mean to say there is much to be seen over here on this marsh, do you? If you want to see things, come over to the beach. Come over where the tide washes up things every day. That is the place to see things

"I shall be looking for you," said Jimmy tell you what, come over to visit me tonight. It is going to be a moonlight night and we'll take a walk down the beach. As long as you are with me, there'll be nothing for you to be afraid of."

Danny would have liked to refuse the invitation, but he didn't see how he could. So at last he agreed to go to visit Jimmy Skunk.

"I shall be looking for you," said Jimmy, and ambled away in the direction of the bathhouse under which he made his home.

After Jimmy had departed Danny wished that he hadn't given his word that he would go over there that night. Then he remembered what Jimmy had said about seeing things on the beach, and finally he actually got impatient for the coming of the Black Shadows, that he might safely start for Jimmy Skunk's home.

When Danny finally reached the bathhouse he was tired. He tried to be polite, but he couldn't help showing that he was tired. Jimmy Skunk saw this. "You'd better rest a while," said he. "The moon doesn't rise until late tonight and what is more, the tide is not out yet. I am tired myself, so we will rest a while before we start out. When the tide goes out then we'll go down on the beach and I'll show you things."

Meanwhile Danny had been poking around and he had discovered a dry, horned, queer looking thing. It was shaped like a star. Yes, sir, it was shaped exactly like one of the stars which Danny had often seen twinkling high overhead.

"If you please," said he, "what is this thing?"

Jimmy Skunk came over to it. "Oh, that?" said he. "Oh, that's a dead starfish. I'll show you some live ones by and by."

"A fish!" exclaimed Danny. "What are you trying to tell me? Do you think I'm so innocent that I do not know a fish when I see one? The idea of trying to tell me that this is a fish! I guess you must be joking, Jimmy Skunk. I guess you are just trying to have fun with me."

"Nothing of the kind," replied Jimmy. "I said what I meant and I meant what I said. I don't suppose it really is a fish, but it swims in the water when it is alive and it is called the Starfish. So there you are!"

Danny looked very hard at Jimmy Skunk. "I suppose if you say so, it must be so," said he, trying to be polite. "But how a thing like that can swim I don't understand at all."

"Pooh!" said Jimmy, "that's nothing. The Starfish can turn itself inside-out."

This was a little too much for Danny. He did his best to be polite, but he just didn't believe a word of that.

The legend of "Ghost" bridge was disclosed recently when a former resident of this place who has reached four score years told of the incident that gave this spooky name to the iron bridge that is now being replaced with the modern structure of concrete on the state highway. The name has stuck to it all these years. Underneath this bridge there is a deep pool and many moons ago Yantic river was well stocked with fish, pickerel, perch, dace suckers, roach and pout. When the Hayward rubber mill was running here 40 years ago there was quite a hamlet, inhabited by the people who worked in the mill and they often walked to the village of Bozrahville. About that time people who had to cross this bridge began to hear strange noises at stated times and the word went the rounds that the bridge was haunted. On investigating the mystery, a local fisherman was found under the bridge fishing in the pool and he was making the noises with his mouth, as a practical joke.

THE DAWN OF A BETTER CIGARETTE

List to THE TALE of OLD CAP HAYS, changed his cig-rets ~~ changed his ways

Now old Cap Hays
Was a sad-faced party.
Never pulled a laff
That was hale and hearty.
Sot in his ways
Like a stubborn mule,
And lived his life
By the ancient rule.

Didn't give a hoot
For a new idear,
Looked on Progress
With an eye of fear.
Smoked the same cig'rette
From ingrained habit,
And didn't know why
No more'n a rabbit.

Today Cap Hays
Is a much-changed man,
His mate, Moran,
Worked a magic plan.
He slipped OLD GOLDS
In Hays' ditty box,
Gave him a thrill
From his bean to his sox.

FINAL HONORS PAID TWO S-51 MEN BURIED AT NEW LONDON WEDNESDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 14—Two of the crew of the submarine, S-51, which was sunk off Block Island on the night of September 25, last, and whose bodies were removed with those of 27 others at Brooklyn Navy yard several days ago following the arrival of the submarine there, went to their final resting places today, in St. Mary's and Cedar Grove cemeteries, respectively. One of the bodies was that of John Joseph Sheehan, motor machinist's mate, first class, a native of New London, but latterly residing at Poquonoc where he has a family. His body was borne to Sacred Heart church, Groton, by buddies this morning at 9 o'clock. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William J. Fox, the pastor. The services were largely attended. Rev. Fr. Fox was assisted in the service by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, as deacon, Rev. Michael Reagan as sub-deacon and Rev. Raymond O'Callahan master of ceremonies. The choir sang the Gregorian mass. The body was taken to St. Mary's cemetery, where a volley was fired over the grave and taps were sounded.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the body of Franklin Pierce James, adopted son of New London, for the motor machinist's mate formerly resided in Maine, was buried in the naval plot in Cedar Grove cemetery. The service was conducted by Chaplain M. M. Leonard, submarine base, and as the flag draped casket was lowered into the grave a volley of three rounds was fired and taps sounded. Conspicuous among the few mourners at the grave was James' wife, who was grief-stricken, almost hysterical as the casket was lowered from sight.

FRANK E. CLARK DIES SUDDENLY, AT NIANTIC

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 14—Frank E. Clark, 75 well known resident of Niantic, died suddenly of heart disease at his residence this morning. He was for many years employed by Fred A. Bo[illegible]smith. He is survived by his wife, a [illegible] daughter. Mr. Clark suffered a de[illegible]se in health several months ago, but he was not entirely incapacitated. This morning he rose as usual and apparently was feeling in good spirits. About 9 o'clock he suffered a heart attack and collapsed while walking about the house. Medical assistance was summoned but Mr. Perkins had expired before a physician could arrive.

The police court had three adjourned cases to claim attention this morning. That was the only business that presented itself. David Andus, held here as a fugitive from justice in Milwaukee, had concluded to go back to the state that was made famous by beer and there answer to a charge of grand larceny. He was handed over to an officer from Milwaukee and New London was spared farther expense in dealing with him.

Charlie Meyers was to have appeared to answer for a breach of peace, but as doctors who examined him yesterday declared that he was of impaired mentality he was committed to Norwich State hospital at Brewster's Neck. That disposed of the case in the local court, and the complaint was nolled. Meyers is the man who hurled a box through a window at the Green Front cafeteria a few weeks ago, when he said he desired the experience of a "thrill" that arrest would bring. His sanity was doubted then. He will now be treated for his malady that he may be cured, if that result can be attained.

Charles R. Brooks was arraigned by adjournment of his case for a breach of peace. His mentality is doubted by members of the police department and others who have had to do with his affairs. One doctor who examined him yesterday believed he "is not all there," but another who put him through tests was disposed to regard him as mentally right though not of full wisdom. The court today gave him a jail sentence of three months and then suspended execution of the judgment, that he may establish that he means to work. He is to keep away from his family, as he is a handicap rather than a help to them.

An employe of Waterman & Wolf, automobile sales station, corner of Main and Richards street, made complaint to the police this morning that several windows in the place were smashed last night. Patrolman William Graham was assigned to investigate the complaint and this afternoon four youths, all minors, were arrested charged with perpetrating the damage. The boys were ordered to present themselves in the police court tomorrow morning. One or more of the alleged youthful offenders has been in the juvenile court several times, mostly for thieving.

Miss Elizabeth Nichols, of 115 Mohegan avenue; Miss Marjorie Smith, 12 Addison street; David Crape, 100 Green street; Bernard Lacey, 40 Williams street; Mrs. Allen Harvey, Stonington, and Miss Charlotte Montgomery, 234 Huntington street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital were discharged today.

Celinda Anderson today sold the dwelling house, corner of Huntington and Shapley street, to William and Estella Gambles.

Now that the city is restricting the parking of cars in many streets signs are appearing inviting autoists to "drive in" and pay 25 cents for the privilege in vacant lots and other spaces about the city. But the autoists do not seem to take advantage of the chance to leave their cars. They prefer the cheaper parking in the streets.

A tree stump, that of a stately elm removed from Pearl street, has been dragged through various highways to Hamilton street, where it is to be used for filling in the cove. It weighed some ten tons and tore the surface of the streets through which it passed because of its great weight and jagged roots.

The number of marine craft hailing from this port has dwindled in recent years, so that there are very few vessels now enrolled as belonging in New London that are in the coastwise trade. There was a time when New London stood near the top of the list and several score of vessels claimed New London as their home port. What has become of these craft mariners claim not to know, but they are agreed that there is no business for them. The vessels have not been broken up, but they have disappeared and never will return to their former calling. Barges and the railroads have displaced them as coal carriers, and the fishing business has been transfered elsewhere, for there are more fish caught and consumed than in years that are passed. There was a time when halibut and cod fishing industry employed several hundred men and scores of vessels—another form of employment for vessels that has disappeared.

Builders declare that there is little construction work in progress in this city at present, though smaller work, that of repair makes the demand for mechanics in that industry fairly good.

YOUTHS MASQUERADED AS SOLDIERS AT CAMP

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 14.—Albert Strom, 21, and John Fitzgerald, 22, both of Hartford were presented before Justice of the Peace Charles Watrous at Niantic last night charged with gambling. Each was fined $10 and costs and in default of payment Strom and Fitzgerald were committed to the county jail for three weeks. Strom and Fitzgerald were arrested by Lieut. Donald Witter, officer of the guard of the 169th regiment which is encamped at Niantic, the arrests being made following Strom and Fitzgerald impersonating soldiers. The two Hartford men entered on the camp grounds dressed in blue denim, the same material as dungarees and which garb is worn by members of the machine gun detachment. They then started gambling games and used loaded dice. When the gambling was discovered it developed that Strom and Fitzgerald started the games. Their arrest followed and when it was found that they impersonated soldiers in order to bring about the gambling, the prisoners were turned over to State Officer George Sisson.

Mrs. Richard P. Freeman, Mrs. Thomas T. Dorsey, Miss Madeline Freeman, Mrs. Emily Spiers, Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson, Mrs. Stephen R. Wightman, Mrs. Robert A. Bilgood, Mrs. Effie Tobin and Miss Mabel Prentice, attended the state gathering of women voters of the G. O. P. Women's party at the Allyn house, Hartford, today. The meeting was attended by nearly 500 women and United States Senator Hiram Bingham was the principal speaker.

William Baldwin, of the Coast Guard, New London, has received interesting news from abroad. The word came to his mother, Mrs. Mary Baldwin, of No. 76 Cottage street, Meriden, that his brother, Rev. Francis Xavier Patrick Baldwin, was ordained to the priesthood in LaSalette Missionary Order by a cardinal at Rome Sunday. The young priest will tour Europe and visit relatives in Ireland before returning, to this country. He expects to arrive home the latter part of August.

Father Baldwin was born in Meriden and attended St. Rose's school. He entered LaSalette seminary, Hartford, 13 years ago and remained there eight years. Five years ago he went abroad and spent the first two years at the University of Friburg, in Friburg, Switzerland. The following year he studied at La Salette headquarters at Susa, Italy, and during the past two years pursued theological studies at the University of Rome. Father Baldwin is a brother of Sister Catherine Marie of St. Augustine's Noviate of the Sisters of Mercy at Hartford, and a nephew of Sister Mary of Torrington, who recently celebrated the silver anniversary of her profession in the Sisters of Mercy. He has another sister, Miss Catherine D. Baldwin, basketball player for the Travelers Insurance company of Hartford and three brothers, Merritt Baldwin of New Haven, Philip Baldwin, a yeoman in the United States navy stationed at Newport, and William Baldwin of the coast guard at New London.

A man who is a stranger in New London will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning charged with intoxication. He was arrested this evening on State street, near Potter street. He was in an ugly mood and was inclined to fight, but was quickly subdued by Patrolmen Patrick Sheehan, George Cockell and Frank Philopena. Two other drunks were arrested when Patrolman Frank Philopena found George Pinlet, a stranger, and John Billings, a native, rolling about the railroad tracks near John street. Billings is an old offender.

An automobile owned by Miss Mary Murphy, nurse, 66 Montauk avenue, collided with another automobile on Ocean avenue, near Gardner avenue, this evening. Miss Murphy's auto was damaged, probably getting a sprung axle. None of the occupants sustained injury.

J. D. Avery reported to the police last night exclaiming that he was talking to Lieut. Waters, submarine base, residing at 1140 Ocean avenue, that an automobile carrying Connecticut registration, N-5435, which is registered in the name of Edward F. Bell, 17 Tilley street, struck and killed earlier in the day a dog owned by Lieut. Waters when the automobile was passing the intersection of Ocean and Neptune avenues. The dog, Avery stated, was valued at $500. Lieut. Waters desired the driver of the automo- of responsibility and reckless driving. This afternoon Lieut. Waters visited the police station and stated that he did not want the arrest of the driver of the automobile, the registration of which had been provided by the police, because Lieut. Waters was not positive that it was that automobile that killed the dog. He stated that he desired to withdraw the complaint made by Avery.

Miss Sallie L. Brown, 38 Fair Harbor place, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, returned to her home today.

David Gilmore, 607 Bank street, a patient in the contagious ward of Lawrence-Memorial hospital, has been transferred to West Haven sanatorium.

A live wire of the Connecticut Power company fell from a pole on Montauk avenue, near School street, this morning and pedestrians were in danger of receiving a shock from it. A resident of that section notified the police of the fallen wire and a repair gang of the power company was dispatched to place the wire back on the pole.

Miss Josephine Luker, supervisor of nurses at Lawrence hospital, and the Misses Catherine Drury, Catherine Desmond, Geneve Dray, Mildred Webber, Mary Mathews, Beatrice Potter, Dorothy Bedrick and Veronica Casey, have returned to the hospital, after a vacation of two weeks.

Oliver D. L. Burrows, teller at the National Bank of Commerce, is ill at the residence of his brother, in West Mystic.

Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger, pastor of the Catholic church at Portchester, formerly assistant at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, New London, renewed acquaintances in this city yesterday.

Kenneth Streeter, son of Councilor and Mrs. Edward L. Streeter, Jr., is seriously ill at the home of his parents, 35 Squire street, suffering from ptomaine poisoning.

Uhland Culpeper, Groton, is one of a dozen automobile drivers, whose licences have been suspended this week for driving while under the influence of liquor.

TODAY'S EVENTS

This is St. Swithin's day, and as everybody knows, the popular belief is that if it rains today it will rain for 40 days after.

"Honest Liars" Coming to Lyceum, New London

"Honest Liars," a farce with Robert Woolsey and the same cast that opens at the Sam H. Harris theatre, New York, on Monday, July 19, is coming to the Lyceum theatre, New London, for two days, Friday and Saturday, July 16 and 17. There will be a matinee on Saturday.

This is a fast moving story of the happenings in a private sanitarium where anything could, and does, happen. The authors are Robert Weenolsen and Sherrill Webb, college boys, who have given the tale a new spice of humor and a generous helping of brisk dialogue.

George MacFarlane is producer. He has mounted the play with three lavish settings. Frank Smithson staged and supervised the production for Mr. MacFarlane.

In the cast are Kathleen Lowry, Jay Wilson, Adelaide Rondelle, Alfred Kappeler, Nell Pratt, Margaret Walker, Kinsworth Arnold, Harriet Harbaugh and Vincent Strain.

Broadway Theater

Those looking for entertainment—plus should not miss the program that is offered by the Broadway theater the last half of this week starting today.

The Keith-Albee, five act, vaudeville program promises to outshine all previous efforts. As fine and diversified a program as one could wish for, has been arranged.

The Lodge in the Wilderness, a Tiffany production, will be shown for the first time here today at the Broadway theater. The picture is based on a story of the same name by Sir Gilbert Parker.

In the cast of this tremendous interesting dramatic story of a lumber camp are Anita Stewart and Edmund Burns, the featured players who are ably assisted by Victor Potel, Duane Thompson, Lawrence Steers, Eddie Lyons and James Farley.

There have been many forest fires depicted on the screen, but the one that is staged in this drama, if once seen, will never be forgotten by an audience.

The acting of Miss Stewart and Edmund Burns was of the highest quality, their scenes being not a bit overdrawn and with a naturalness that carried conviction.

Howard's Buttermilk Cream
Best for Freckles, Sunburn and Tan

Old Time Recipe of Buttermilk Cream In a New Way—A Gentle Massage with Fingers Before Retiring Is All That Is Necessary

Big Demand for New Dressing Table Package Amazes Druggists

The old-time application of Buttermilk and Cream to whiten and preserve the skin and remove harsh little wrinkles and ugly sallowness is grandmother's recipe and women throughout the country are again using it to ensure a beautiful complexion and snow-white hands and arms.

Buttermilk, however, is not always obtainable, but a specialist has at last perfected a method of concentrating buttermilk and combining it with a perfect cream which you can buy in small quantities ready to use at any first class drug store by simply asking for "Howard's" Buttermilk Cream.

There is no secret about it nor is there any doubt about the result—it's just a common ordinary buttermilk in the form of a wonderful cream gently massaged with the finger tips around the corners of the eyes and mouth.

To get the best effect, be sure to follow the simple directions. Lee & Osgood Co., and all good druggists guarantee a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money.

IMPORTANT—Even the finest face creams fail if the soap you use is harsh. Howard's Buttermilk Cream Soap keeps skin smooth, soft and pliable.

WEDNESDAY'S STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 14.—(AP)—Alternate periods of heaviness and strength characterized today's stock market. Issues started upward soon after the opening under the leadership of General Motors which attained another new record high at 161, 3-8, turned downward around mid-day when selling developed in some of the rail stocks and then bounded upward again in the last hour under the stimulus of aggressive pool operations in Dodge Bros. "A" and a few specialties. Total sales were 1,534,400 shares, as compared with 1,602,300 on Tuesday.

Wall Street operators for the advance were again forced to contend with a large volume of selling for both accounts based on the speculative theory that a technical reaction was overdue after they were aided by a series of constructive trade developments. Those included the announcement that freight car loadings had crossed the million mark for the seventh time this year in the week ended July 3; reports of a small decrease in crude oil production in that week and an increase in the price of heavy steel melting scrap at Pittsburgh, with bookings of steel for the first 10 days of July running above those of the corresponding period last month and another series of favorable dividend and earnings statements.

The advance in the rails has slowed up temporarily although a strong investment demand is reported for several of the high grade issues. In some quarters there is a tendency to await further developments in the negotiations for the adoption of the revised "nickel plate" plans because of the opposition which has developed in the past few days. Uncertainty over the interstate commerce comission's decision on applications for a revision of freight rates on western roads was another restraining factor.

Important shifting of speculative interest took place in the industrial group, with more than a score issues mounting to new high levels for the year. At the close the average of 20 leading industrial issues showed a small net loss, but final quotations also disclosed a varied list of individual net gains ranging from 1 to 4 points.

General Motors closed 1 1-4 points net higher at 159 3-4, with total sales running over 475,000 shares. Dodge Brothers "A" was bid up 3 1-2 points to 71 1-2 on sales of over 75,000 shares. Other outstanding strong spots were Bethlehem Steel, Bush Terminal, Commercial Solvents "B", General Electric, International Harvester, International Nickel, Westinghouse Mfg. and Westinghouse Air Brake.

Case Threshing Machine, which has advanced from a low of 62 1-2 to a high of 138 3-4 this year, broke nearly 8 points during the day to 131 1-4. Coca Cola, Fleischmann, Macy Department Stores and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe also showed substantial recessions.

Wheat prices made further recovery despite suggestions that the estimated decline in the yield of the Canadian crop probably was exaggerated. Cotton trading quieted down somewhat with final quotations six points lower to 15 points higher. Raw sugar was unchanged, but futures were easier. Coffee prices held firm.

Call money remained at 4 1-2 per cent all day. The New York stock exchange reported a good supply of available funds all day with a very active demand. Time money and commercial papers rates were unchanged.

Sterling was irregularly developed in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly firmer around $4.85 7-8, but French francs ruled about 5 points lower around 2.53 cents and Italian lire again sold below 3.40 cents. Belgian francs rallied 10 points to around 3.33 1-2 cents in response to drastic measures being taken to stabilize the currency. Other changes

DISPLAYING BRAIDED RUG IN CONNECTICUT BUILDING

Local people who visit the sesquicentennial at Philadelphia this summer will be interested to note a handsome braided rug in colonial design in the Connecticut building which is the work of William E. Dean, formerly of this city. Mr. Dean has lost his sight but is able to do well a great many things among which is the making of braided rag rugs in rich and handsome effects. A number of these rugs have been marketed for Mr. Dean by the state board of education of the blind and it is one of these that has been placed on display at the Connecticut building as part of the exhibit that this board has placed there through the courtesy of State Librarian George S. Godard. Mr. Dean is the father-in-law of Rev. William H. Bath, formerly district superintendent of the Norwich district of the Southern New England Methodist Episcopal conference.

LISBON SELECTMEN OFFER REWARD FOR CONVICTION IN ASSAULT CASE

If there were any new developments towards discovering the man who made the vicious assault on Miss Anna Donnelly of Lisbon Monday night, they have been kept well under cover. Officers engaged in tracking down the various clues worked during the day but gave out no information as to whether or not any of the clues had resulted in shedding light on the mystery. The selectmen of the town of Lisbon to stir people to action and endeavor to bring out all possible information, have offered a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of any person or persons who may have been guilty of the assault.

At the Backus hospital Miss Donnelly continues to gain in strength and Wednesday night her condition was given as comfortable. The girl has not been allowed to have visitors, only immediate relatives having seen and talked with her. She still shows the effects of her desparate struggle with the brute who made the assault and it will be some days yet before she will be allowed to return home.

BOYS STOLE BATHING SUITS FROM COLUMBIA COTTAGE ROOF

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 14—Leonard Hall, 18, of this city was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in Tolland county jail, when convicted of a charge of theft, tonight, in the Columbia town court. The original charge had been of entering and ransacking a cottage at Columbia lake, owned by Raymond and Edward Squier.

The testimony centered about the theft of two bathing suits which had been left on the roof of the cottage while the occupants were away. With Hall was a 13-year old boy also of this city, who appeared as a witness for the state. Other witnesses were Walter Kranz, 13, a member of St. Joseph's Boy Scouts encamped at the lake, who saw the boys prowling about the cottage; Leroy A. Dissinger, physical director of Plainfield Community house also a camper; Edwin Snader, his son, Mason and Conrad Schroeter of Columbia, also Constable Harvey S. Collins.

Both the boys accused admitted stealing the suits. Fearing detection the 13-year old boy had discarded the suit he took in Schriefer's barn and Hall had thrown his intoa barrel on Constable Collins' garage after being taken into custody by the constable. Both boys said that they had used no gas entrance to the cottage but found all doors and windows locked. Hall's was the master mind in the theft and he was severely reprimanded by Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins for leading the younger boy into bad habits. Grand Juror Joseph N. Clarke prosecuted. Hall's trial was followed by a juvenile court in which the young boy was charged with theft. He was given a suspended sentence to the reform school and placed on probation for six months in charge of Town Clerk James P. Fenton of this city.

Tore Up Flower Beds

Thomas Quinn, 45, who was formerly employed by the street department, was arrested Wednesday afternoon at the Laurel Hill home of the young woman bookkeeper of the same department, whose it was claimed Quinn was making a disturbance by tearing up the flower beds. He was charged with breach of the peace.

Officers Charles Smith and Daniel J. O'Neil drove to Laurel Hill in the motor patrol wagon when the complaint against Quinn was telephoned to police headquarters.

Perhaps time is money, because it manages to slip away so fast.

VERDICT FOR GORMAN IN SUIT OVER LUMBER

In a suit brought by John F. Gorman against Osca L. Ellen and Harry Peterson, all of this city, for $150 damages, Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court has handed down a decision for Gorman to recover $83.25. The suit was tried before Judge Waller about two weeks ago.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Waller says:

"I find that the defendants agreed with plaintiff, John Gorman, that if he would remove all the old shingles and rubbish he could have the lumber taken out of defendant's barn.

"Acting under this agreement the plaintiff, John F. Gorman, removed the old shingles and rubbish from the defendant's property at an approximate expense of about $50 and the defendants then refused to allow the plaintiff to take the lumber removed from the barn. The old shingles and rubbish were practically of no value. The lumber removed from defendant's barn was of a fair and reasonable value of $75 located on defendant's property.

"I find that the defendants have failed to establish either that the agreement was procured by false and fraudulent representations of the plaintiff or that there was unreasonable delay in performance by the plaintiff of alleged in the second and third defenses.

"I find therefore that the plaintiff John F. Gorman, is entitled to recover of the defendants $83.25."

Two or three weeks of fairly sustained weather like that of the closing days of last week would, it was said by merchants Wednesday, bring up the volume of white goods sales with a rush.

CLAIMS OF FRAUD IN PUKALLUS BANKRUPTCY

On the claim that there has been fraud as to creditors in the disposition of property and some payments made in connection with the bankrupt estate of Henry Pukallus, a Norwich builder, three suits have been brought in the United States district court by Attorney John B. Burke, trustee in bankruptcy for Pukallus. The suits are returnable the first Monday of September at New Haven.

In the Pukallus bankruptcy, claims of nearly $8,500 have been filed while the assets are about $1,500.

One suit is brought against Bernard Sebastian of Norwich for $1,025.73 and costs. According to the papers, on Feb. 27, 1926, Henry Pukallus claims to have owed Sebastian $379.98 for an alleged loan made by Sebastian to Pukallus. On this day, Pukallus, for the purpose of defrauding his creditors assigned, transfered and sold to Sebastian, a certain amount of lumber, machinery and auto trucks in payment of said claimed indebtedness mentioned above, which said lumber, etc., were in reality worth $1,025. The plaintiff claims that said transfer and sale of lumber, etc., be adjudged null and vpid and fraudulent as to creditors, and that if it is not practicable that said property be returned to the trustee, that the said trustee may have judgment against the defendant in the sum of $1,025.73 with interest and costs.

Trustee Burke brings suit against Mrs. Bertha Pukallus, wife of Henry Pukallus of this city, and the Bankers Trust Co., of Norwich in which judgment in the sum of $3,983 is asked for. It is alleged that on Dec. 17, 1925, Pukallus owed the Bankers Trust Co. the sum of $4,000 on a note, payable three months after date. On Feb. 18, 1926, before the note became due and payment was demanded, Pukallus paid the Bankers Trust Co., the sum of $4,000, less the sum of $18 rebate.

The J. F. Garrity Co., of Boston, Mass., is also made a defendant in a separate action brought by Trustee Burke. Damages of $903.49 are claimed. It is alleged that on or about Feb. 3, 1926, the defendant sold to Pukallus, lumber of the agreed value of $903.49, and he (Pukallus) gave three notes. On Feb. 24, 1926, Pukallus paid these notes in full, by delivering a certain lot of lumber and a Graham truck. In the last two suits mentioned, it is alleged that said debts were illegally paid by said Pukallus, and that the remaining creditors were unlawfully deprived of receiving their proportionate share of the bankrupt estate.

Judgment to Recover Loan

Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court has handed down judgment in favor of Steve Keseujas of New London against Arthur Zondiros and John Zondiros, doing business as the New England Fruit Co. Judgment is given for $435.75. Judge Waller finding that the plaintiff loaned the defendants the sum of $348.60.

NOLLE IN EMBEZZLEMENT ON PAYMENT OF $25

In the police court Wednesday morning Harry Beam, 29, of New Haven, was presented on a charge of embezzlement and City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins moved for a nolle of the case on payment of costs of $25. Judge Arthur F. Libby then adjusted the matter in that way.

In recommending the nolle City Attorney Robbins stated that Beam is a contractor for roofing work and has a place of business in New Haven. He employs workmen according to work on hand. The local charge of embezzlement came when Beam used $25 given him by an employe, to be paid over to the latter's mother in Norwich, to purchase a new tire for his automobile. Restitution was made for the sum of $25. A small hotel bill owed locally was also paid up.

It was understood that the police at Mapleville, R. I., were to come to Norwich Wednesday morning to hold Beam on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses, but they did not arrive, it being understood that the amount in question had been sent to the Mapleville claimant Wednesday morning by special delivery.

How Dependable Lumber is Dried

During the war, the exacting requirements of aeroplane construction for dependable dry lumber became so insistent that the lumber interests of the country, with the aid of the scientific bureaus at Washington, were forced to reduce lumber drying to an exact science.

HERETOFORE the drying of lumber had been a long drawn out process, largely dependant on chance, never with an exact knowledge that certain results would be obtained.

As a result of exhaustive studies the drying of lumber has been reduced to the same exact basis as the manufacture of steel.

After the 80% to 90% moisture content of green lumber has been reduced to about 20% by 6 to 8 months air drying the 20% moisture is reduced about 8 or 9 per cent by automatic kiln drying. These kilns are marvelous in their accuracy of action.

If wet lumber is suddenly subject to a blast of great heat, the outside pores of the wood become dried out, close up and the lumber becomes case-hardened.

So that the lumber can be dried from the inside out, through and through the kilns are automatically arranged to alternately steam and dry the lumber. A blast of steam opens the pores and a blast of heat dries them. This action goes on over a period of several days. The outside pores of the wood are kept open to allow the inside pores to dry out. The result is a thoroughly, accurately and dependably dried piece of lumber.

Machines tell the exact moisture content of the lumber at any stage of its drying. When it has arrived at the right point it is removed from the kiln for slow even cooling.

It is this lumber that we buy. We keep it dry and at the right moisture content of an average home. So that when you buy it you can depend that it will not dry in your home and warp or twist. It is dry and will give you a lifetime of use, taking paint easily and holding it indefintely.

Dry lumber is the cheapest lumber you can buy regardless of what it cost you. Our lumber experts are always glad to confer with you. Phone or step in. No obligation.

MURDER WARRANT OUT FOR BOSTON PHYSICIAN

Dr. Thomas E. Walsh and His Wife Wanted in Connection With Death of Edith Greene, Whose Dismembered Body Was Found at Mattapan—Report That Walsh Had Surrendered Proved Unfounded—Dead Girl's Sweetheart Waives Examination and Is Released in $2,000 Bonds—Claims He Refused to Aid Physician in Disposing of Remains After He Learned Girl Was Dead—Another Physician Said to Have Aided Walsh in Dismembering Body.

BOSTON, July 15—(AP)—Dr. Thomas E. Walsh and his wife wanted on murder charges in connection with the death of Edith Greene, were reported by police tonight as ready to surrender. An earlier report that Dr. Walsh had given himself up proved unfounded. And police said that arrangements for the surrender were cancelled when the physician failed to keep an appointment with an inspector.

Through his lawyer, Dr. Walsh stated that he was in poor health and did not wish to surrender until arrangements for the prompt furnishing of bail had been completed.

The girl's sweetheart, James V. Ford, and told the police earlier today that Walsh performed an illegal operation on the girl at his request for $150.

With Dr. Walsh's surrender in prospect the latter charged with being an accessory before and after the fact, the police concentrated upon finding another physician thought to have aided Dr. Walsh in operating upon Miss Greene, and dismembering her body. The parts were found in three packages between two cemeteries, and identification was aided by the publication of photographs of the head in yesterday morning's papers. Miss Greene was a 19-year-old state ward and a former employe of the Boston Psychopathic hospital.

Ford waived examination and was released in $2,000 bonds this morning after he had told the police he paid Dr. Walsh $150 to perform the operation, but that he refused to aid the physician in disposing of the body when he learned of the death last Sunday. Warrants charging Walsh and his wife with murder were issued this morning.

Reports that the other physician had been seen in company with Walsh led the police to extend their investigation, although no formal charge against the latter had been lodged as yet. Walsh, who was born 49 years ago in Ireland and received his medical training in Boston, has had trouble with the police several times over a period of years. Three times he has been accused of malpractice and in 1921 lost his license to practice as the result of the death of Beatrice French from an illegal operation.

ALLOWED FORD LIBERTY AFTER HIS CONFESSION

BOSTON, July 15—(AP)—A charge that Superintendent of Police Michael Crowley allowed James V. Ford to be at liberty for seven hours after a confession to complicity in an illegal operation on Edith Greene, dismembered victim, was made tonight by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien.

WOMAN RETAINS POSSESSION OF HIGHLAND LAKE COTTAGE

WINSTED, Conn., July 15—(AP)—Wounded about the face, but triumphant, Mrs. Marion Hemming of Hartford remained in possession of "The Cabin" at Highland lake tonight after a skirmish with three men armed with crowbars who attempted to oust her.

With the aid of the law in the person of a lone motorcycle policeman, her victory was made complete. She not only holds the cottage on the lake front, which she has refused to turn over to its owner, and a former sweetheart, Louis S. Griffing, of Hartford, but the guards who have been keeping her virtually a prisoner have been placed under arrest, and for the night at least she is free to go and come as she pleases without fear of defeat in her plans.

Defeat was near late this afternoon when three men, John T. Smith, Otto Seaman and Frank V. Treyball, each armed with a crowbar, descended upon her voluntary prison. They had been acting as guards outside the property, which Mrs. Hemming claimed had been given to her by Griffing after she assured he had promised to marry her.

The front door was forced open and as it swung inward, it struck Mrs. Hemming in the face, cutting her upper lip. Her 12-year-old son who has remained with her during the skirmish for possession of the cottage, also was slightly hurt.

Mrs. Hemming was forced out upon the porch and the three guards began to remove the furniture from the house. The Hartford woman was crying hysterically. Her defeat was short lived however, for it was at this point that the law came to her assistance.

Samuel A. Herman, counsel for Mrs. Hemming upon learning of the action taken by the three guards, appealed to the police and a motorcycle officer was sent to the cottage to preserve order. Later warrants signed by A. T. Steele, prosecuting attorney, were issued calling for the arrest of the guards. A legal technicality presented itself however, it being discovered that the warrants had not been signed by Judge Hadleigh Howd of the town court. Witnesses were rushed to the town hall. Judge Howd placed his signature on the warrants and they were served. The three guards were placed under arrest charged with breach of the peace and their cases were continued until Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. They were ordered by the judge to return to Hartford where they were said to be employed by the head of a detective agency.

SEARCH FOR MISSING LOG OF SUB S-51

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Preparation of the board of inquiry report on the findings on the sinking of the submarine S-51 was begun today, but the engine room log is needed to make the report complete, navy officials said.

Search for the missing log, recovery of which, it is believed, will assist in determining whether there might have been engine trouble when the submarine sank, will be continued as the report of findings is prepared, Captain David L. Weaver, junior officer of the board of inquiry, said tonight. It was reported yesterday to be aboard the U. S. Vestal, now at Norfolk, Va.

The board of inquiry adjourned today after eight hours deliberation. No testimony was taken but the session was spent in reviewing the records, Capt. Weaver said. He added that a week or ten days will be required to prepare the report of findings, after which it will be forwarded to the secretary of the navy.

LABOR LEADERS ENTER PLEAS OF NOT GUILTY

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Michael W. Mitchell, Joseph Wall and John Dennis, labor leaders, today pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging them with violation of the anti-trust law and conspiracy to prevent shipment into the metropolitan area of steel piece manufactured elsewhere.

Alderman William J. McGeory of Yonkers, N. Y., and Thomas O'Leary, named in the indictment, made special pleas at bar. They contended they had been rendered immune to prosecution by reason of testimony they gave before the special grand jury that investigated the alleged conspiracy and violation of the anti-trust law.

All were released in bail $3,000 each.

PUBLIC NO LONGER HAS CONFIDENCE IN COURTS

DENVER, Colo., July 15.—(AP)—Indicted by its own members, on charges of failure to hold public confidence and inability to enforce the laws of the land against marauding criminals, the American judiciary today started the taking of testimony in an effort to fix responsibility for predilections and to find a remedy for existing conditions.

Sitting as an inquisitorial body, ready to meet the charges expressed or implied that the public no longer holds confidence in its courts or the administrators of the law, the more than 2,000 delegates at the 49th annual convention of the American Bar association spent the day listening to reports of its various committees and special affiliated organizations.

The reports of the committees presented facts as ascertained by the lawyers concerning the failures and successes of the law, the needs of simplification, here, greater co-ordination of law making agencies there, more vigilance in this quarter and extension of power in another.

Chief in importance of these reports were those of the committee of jurisprudence and judicial procedure, which denounced "the growing prevalency of the use of expert witnesses and with their contradictory testimony," which is giving rise to the belief "that such testimony is purchasable," the report contained recommendations providing for the employment of expert witnesses only at court order as salaries to be fixed and paid by the state and to permit the trial judge to comment on the value and weight of such testimony in instructing a jury.

Another report severely condemned the "failure of the law schools of the country to teach the constitution to law students."

The report of the criminal law section urged establishment of a "special crime census" division in the census bureau to "provide first hand information that might be helpful in arriving at a solution of the crime probe."

While the convention was listening to the reports of its bureaus and committees, the political pot began boiling. Tomorrow at the closing session, a successor will be chosen to Chester I. Long of Wichita, Kas., retiring president.

BALLOON DETROITER WINS ELKS NATIONAL CONTEST

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—The big gas bag Detroiter, won the Elks National balloon race and is believed to have broken a world's record for distance covered when it landed today at Jennings, Fla., approximately 824 miles in air line from Chicago. It was the last of the four balloons in the race to report.

Word was received here late today that the Detroiter had made a safe landing and won the Elks' trophy after being unreported for 48 hours following the start of the race. It was piloted by Charles O. Williams, Jr.

The Hi-Ball, also a Detroit entry, made the second best record of 633 miles for bags of 35,000 cubic feet capacity when it landed at Portland, Ark., early today. The Goodyear IV of Akron landed near Huron, Tenn., and the bag of Captain H. E. Honeywell, of St. Louis, was forced down yesterday at Thompsonville, Ills.

The race started here Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock when the four bags took the air from Grant park in the downtown lake front district.

PRICE OF MILK IS INCREASED AT HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Conn., July 15—(AP)—The price of milk in Hartford will advance 1c a quart tomorrow, the retail price to 15c a quart, and the wholesale price delivered at central points, to be 9 1-4c, an advance of three quarters of a cent.

The reason given for the increase is the agricultural situation. The hay crop in Connecticut will inventory $4,500,000 less than a year ago according to the estimates of Commissioner Platt of the state department of agriculture and the Connecticut agricultural crop survey department. It was said at the milk producer's headquarters today. The crop will be only 60 per cent normal unless there are good rains in the next four or five weeks. Conditions are the worst now that have been observed in 30 years, according to a representative of the milk producers association.

PRES. COOLIDGE INSPECTS MARINE DETACHMENT CAMP

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 15.—(AP)—The camp of the marine detachment which guards the summer white house was inspected by President Coolidge today, the appearance of the more than 50 officers and men calling forth praise on the part of the chief executive.

Accompanied by Secretary Everett Sanders and Captain Wilson Brown, Jr., his naval aide and commander of the presidential yacht Mayflower, Mr. Coolidge went to the camp in the woods bordering Lake Osgood, less than a quarter of a mile from White Pine camp and examined closely the men, equipment and camp facilities.

The men, in command of Lieutenant Fred E. Stack, were drawn up at attention when he arrived in the dull light of the thick woods which has been cleared only enough to provide necessary accommodations for a score of tents. Leaving his automobile, the president passed down the double line of khaki clad figures as news photographers made still and motion pictures of the scene.

An inspection of the quarters followed, beginning with the kitchen and passing from tent to tent until the hospital corps, under command of Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boon was reached. Then retracing his steps while the marines everywhere stood at attention, Mr. Coolidge returned to the summer white house.

Immediately preceding the inspection, the president and Mrs. Coolidge had their first guests of the season at White Pine camp, former Representative Homer P. Snyder of New York, and Mrs. Snyder, who are touring this section by automobile and were invited to lunch.

Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and Mrs. Smith are due here tomorrow to be the guests of the president and Mrs. Coolidge at a luncheon at White Pine camp. The visit was arranged when the governor signified his wish to pay his official respects and extend formally a welcome to the Adirondacks upon behalf of the state to the president.

It is expected that Governor Smith will make his headquarters at Paul Smith's hotel and will remain until Saturday, perhaps going to Saranac lake for golf tomorrow afternoon. The official program is to consist merely of the luncheon and it is not planned to permit the formalities to be disturbed even by the photographing of the two executives together.

Although there has been no announcement made, it is understood President Coolidge intends to have served at the luncheon fish he caught today. For this purpose he is saving a three pound pike he landed this morning during several hours spent with rod and line upon Lake Osgood before his camp.

Continuing his quest, he went this afternoon several miles from camp to Fondaby, Jr., pond, on one of John D. Rockefeller preserve where early this week he caught five trout. Mrs. Coolidge, who has become deeply interested in the president's new-found sport, accompanied him.

HUNDREDS ATTEND FUNERAL OF EX-SECRETARY WEEKS

NEWTON, Mass., July 15.—(AP)—John W. Weeks, former secretary of war, received at his funeral honors given a soldier who has served his country well. In accordance with military custom, a squad of soldiers fired three volleys and an army bugler sounded taps as the body of their former chief was committed to the crematory at Mt. Auburn cemetery, Cambridge.

Both the committal ceremonies and the services which preceded them at the First Unitarian church were attended by many of Mr. Weeks' former associates in his business and political life. They included members of the president's cabinet, the senate and house, high officers of the army and navy and representatives of his home state and city. The church was filled, and scores who could not obtain seats stood outside in an intermittent rain to listen to the services carried to them by amplifiers.

Besides the usual prayers and scripture reading, the services, conducted by the Rev. Paul S. Phalen, pastor of the church, included a eulogy by the Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon, minister of the new Old South church of Boston. The choir and congregation sang "Abide With Me," "Lead Kindly Light" and "Nearer My God to Thee." Mr. Weeks had expressed the wish that these three hymns be sung at his funeral.

His character was his great fundamental power," said Dr. Gordon. "He had the capacity to consider self last and his country first. His devotion to the welfare of the public was magnificent. Now that he has been taken from us we see through eyes purified by grief. Men of his calibre are like great forest trees. We do not know their size until they are cut down."

The casket, covered with a United States flag, was surrounded by flowers. Among these floral tributes was a large set piece of yellow roses on a base of phlox and lilies from President Coolidge. There was also flowers from the American Legion, the American War Veterans' club of Washington and other organizations in addition to numerous individual offerings.

Eight non-commissioned officers, chosen for their conspicuous records, bore the casket into and from the church. A military guard of honor stood by the casket as it lay in state preceding the funeral.

After the services a procession of automobiles followed the hearse to the cemetery. In these cars were members of Mr. Weeks' family, the honorary pall bearers and other mourners who accompanied the body to the crematory chapel for the brief service there.

She will be accompanied by her mother, Mrs. George Jones.

"I'm to have a four room suite on the Majestic," Mrs. Rhinelander said. "I'm going to meet all my mamma's people in England."

Fifty-Three More Georgia Banks Close Doors

Have Turned Their Affairs Over to State Banking Department Pending Reorganization.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—Fifteen additional state banks in Georgia and four state banks in Florida today are listed as having closed their doors following the bankruptcy proceedings instituted against the Bankers' Trust Company of Atlanta. This brought the total number of banks in Georgia to 64.

The closings generally in financial circles, were attributed to the bankruptcy proceedings against the Bankers' Trust Company, which was the financing company for a string of 120 banks. The four Florida banks were reported to have been members of the system.

Many of the banks, the department of banking said, probably would reopen as soon as other financing arrangements could be made. Officials expressed the belief that a number of them would be found to be in good shape, having turned their affairs over to the department pending reorganization and the completion of other financing plans.

The Georgia banks listed today, together with their capitalization and total resources and liabilities as of December 31, 1925, were:

Taylor County bank, Butler, $15,000 and $234,678.08; Bank of Lyerly, $15,000 and $236,670.77; Bank of Cusseta, $15,000 and $174,236.85; Rockmart bank $30,000 and $412,989.04; Bank of Smyrna $16,300 and $204,179.21; Fairmount bank, $15,000 and $78,297.97; Macon County bank, Oglethorpe $15,000 and $148,812.80; Lakewood bank, Atlanta, $50,000 and $184,485.42; Bank of Rochelle $25,000 and $192,731.58; Haberahan bank, Clarkesville, $25,000 and $291,611.06; Cornelia bank, Cornelia $40,000 and $734,469.22; Bank of Lula, $15,000 and $14,273.90; Bank of Cassville $15,000 and $65,453.27; Bank of Williamson, $25,000 and $178,812.11 and the Cornelia bank, Demarest, whose financial statement was not available.

The four Florida banks reported closed were: The Citizens Bank of Eusista, Bank of Mounta Dora, Bank of Tavares and the Bank of Umatilla, each of which through notices posted on their doors, announced they were "closing temporarily for the protection of depositors."

The Bank of Umatilla Tuesday instituted a suit against the Bankers' Trust Company, applying for a receivership for the company and obtaining a temporary injunction to prevent officials of the company from altering in any manner the status of the chain of banks for which it acted as financing agent.

In its suit the Umatilla bank alleged that the Bankers' Trust Company had procured several hundred thousand dollars from the bank and distributed among the various banks of Georgia and Florida financing company in Florida. The bank alleged officials of the company had admitted their inability to pay and charged the Bankers' Trust Company with being insolvent.

Atlanta creditors of the Bankers' Trust Company intervened today and the federal court assumed jurisdiction of the case. Judge Samuel Sibley announcing he would appoint a receivership for the company.

Florida creditors resisted federal intervention by endeavoring to show that the company conducted an insurance business insuring the deposits of member banks an dthat it was not under federal jurisdiction.

Atlanta creditors charged that the company had committed acts of bankruptcy when it "preferred certain clients over other when the bank was insolvent." They also cited the receivership granted in superior court.

The trust company served as financial agent for 120 banks, Paul J. Baker, its treasurer, told the court, but did not receive deposits subject to check.

Former Governor Hugh Dorsey and J. K. Ottley of the Fourth National bank, Atlanta, were designated as receivers for the Bankers' Trust Company by Judge Samuel H. Sibley of the North Georgia district federal court.

FINANCIAL CORPORATIONS TO HONOR FLORIDA CHECKS

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Financial corporations which have refused to accept checks drawn on Florida banks promised the government today to stop the practice.

In response to a request by J. W. McIntosh, comptroller of the currency, made through the national banks, the institutions today apologized for using stickers stating they would not accept Florida checks and promised to discontinue the practice.

This was the first move of the government in its attempt to relieve the situation in Georgia and Florida where more than 60 state banks have closed recently and confidence was expressed today by the comptroller that conditions would improve soon.

The federal reserve board in a special meeting today conducted a hasty summing up of conditions and later both Mr. McIntosh and Governor Crissinger of the board expressed satisfaction over the sound condition of all national banks in the affected territory.

Officials showed concern, however, over the use of the stickers by certain financial corporations and after Mr. McIntosh moved to have it stopped he received quick response. Those institutions which have employed the stickers informed him late today they would stop it and added that they were writing letters of apology to the Florida banks.

It was believed by Mr. McIntosh that the complaint made yesterday by Representative Sears of Florida, had reference to the stickers on which the comptroller had asked the discontinuance of the stickers, which were sent with collection letters by certain of the institutions. No banks are known to have been involved in the affair.

Officials were of the belief that the sudden deflation in land values in Florida, on which most of their securities were believed to be based, was largely responsible for the strained banking conditions, and attention also was called to the fact that a large majority of the banks which closed dealt with a certain banking chain system operating in the two states. It is understood that some time ago these national banks dealing with this system were forced by the reserve board to abandon it.

Police Found Huge Still in Farmhouse

Raid Followed Complaint of Helper Who Couldn't Collect His Last Week's Wages of $35.

MENDON, Mass., July 15—(AP)—A Judge's birthplace, long since converted to a distillery, fell into the hands of the police today in a raid ranked among New England's largest. It was the 200 year old Giroard farmhouse, where Judge Herbert L. Carpenter of the Rhode Island court was born.

A helper at the distillery who couldn't collect his last week's wages of $35 brought about the raid, for his plea to Sheriff Flynn of Millville to "do something about it" led the latter to assemble a squad of deputies and constables and descend upon the farmhouse in the woods. They found a 1,000 gallon still and paraphernalia and arrested Harry H. Morin of Lynn as an operator. O. J. Peppin, who lives somewhere between Woonsocket and Cumberland, R. I., escaped. Morin told his captors that he and Peppin ran the plant for a man in Boston. Neighbors believed the plant had been in operation for the last three weeks.

Besides the still the officers seized a large boiler, to which water was being pumped from two nearby wells, 125 gallons of re-distilled alcohol, 500 cans for the finished product and hundreds of casks which had contained denatured alcohol. Three helpers were detained as witnesses and the men and paraphernalia were taken to Milford, where Morin will be arraigned tomorrow.

THREE TESTIFY BEFORE NAVAL INQUIRY BOARD

DOVER, N. J., July 15—(AP)—The naval board investigating civil damage in the Lake Denmark arsenal disaster today heard the testimony of three witnesses. A tent served as a court-room. Adolfust Fichter, civilian employe told investigators that when the blast shattered the window of John Berentire Valley home, six miles away, he believed the explosion was across the street, so severely was the structure shaken. A. J. Stickles, another civilian employe, described the havoc wrought in Mount Hope, one of the villages most severely damaged. The third witness was Chief Gunner W. A. Gerdts, who has been one of the most active in rescue and salvage work. He described the destruction in various towns and villages surrounding the arsenal. A statement from the Replogle Steel company placed its loss in Mt. Hope, where the company has mining property at $150,000.

Rear Admiral F. R. Harris, president of the board of investigation declared a congressional appropriation would be necessary if damages are awarded, as the navy has no authority to pay amounts exceeding $1,000.

Tomorrow morning the naval court of inquiry into the disaster itself will be opened by Rear Admiral R. E. Coontz its president, in the home of Captain O. C. Dowling, commandant of the naval arsenal, who was severely injured in the blast.

The funeral of Mrs. Ida Wadhams, one of the two known women victims, wife of the chief civilian clerk of the arsenal, was conducted today by the Rev. E. O. Wilson of the First Baptist church here.

Relief organizations have closed their Dover emergency headquarters and storekeepers and merchants supported their contention that danger of more blasts is over by having plate glass put in windows that yawned emptily since last Saturday.

Searching parties continue to comb the shell-torn area for bodies of victims and parties of marines are extinguishing several smouldering fires to prevent the possible firing of unexploded magazines.

Bodies recovered indicate at least 22 and probably more died in the disaster. Marine officers say four of their command remained unaccounted for.

The search for bodies is gradually being extended to every section of the arsenal grounds. Heavily wooded sections, where timber was flattened like grass before a strong wind, is being carefully searched in the belief that some may have hoped to find shelter from the inferno there.

DENOUNCES "BLAH BLAH" OF WOMEN'S CONVENTIONS

DES MOINES, Ia., July 15.—(AP)—Pointing out that she wished to relieve men of the idea that women as a rule are only fooling around with business until they can get married, Thyrsa Amos, dean of women of the University of Pittsburgh, today denounced the "Blah-blah" of present day women's conventions as "a betrayal of the purposes and services of women's organizations."

Miss Amos is a delegate to the convention of the federation of business and professional women here.

"The contribution to the world of women, especially those organized with a definite purpose, is beauty, truth and goodness," she said. "You cannot attain these until you foster confidence, and the play-boy attitude cannot engender confidence.

"All this forced gaiety is increasing the idea that women are temporizing with positions and men now have too much of the idea that women are only temporizing in business until they may marry."

Miss Amos depreciated the effect upon young women that might result from the "business executive stepping out of her role of dignity."

KING ALBERT NAMED FINANCIAL DICTATOR

Belgian Chamber Adopts Full Powers Bill by Overwhelming Majority—Unanimous Vote in the Senate—Foreign Exchange Market Will be One of First Features of Present Situation to be Attended to by Royal Dictator—Dutch Bankers Offer Loan of Five Million Guilders as Aid in Bolstering Up Belgian Franc—French Government to Ask Quick Vote on Unlimited Powers Bill.

BRUSSELS, July 15—(AP)—King Albert by virtue of an overwhelming majority in the chamber and a unanimous vote in the senate, in which socialist deputies and senators concurred, has become the financial dictator of his own kingdom for a period of six months. Premier Jaspar put the full power bill, granting the king authority to institute by decree measures to save the franc, through both houses inside of an hour, today.

During the short debate on the bill, the exchange market was highly nervous and showed fluctuations. The official closing figure of the franc was 211 to the pound sterling and 43.50 to the dollar.

The foreign exchange market will be one of the first features of the present situation to be attended to by the royal dictator. In the future in order to obtain foreign currency for imports, bills of lading, as well as invoices, must be presented.

The financial commission instituted by the government, which M. Theunis, banker and former premier, is president, held a meeting as soon as the full powers bill was passed, and examined various measures for supporting the franc and to prevent illicit dealing in foreign exchange. These will be submitted to the king for promulgation within a day or two.

The commission also studied the proposition of a group of Dutch bankers desirous of assisting Belgium to redeem the franc embracing a loan of five million guilders under favorable conditions, and it is likely the offer will be accepted. (A guilder is worth about 40 cents).

A decree will be issued within a few days providing for the use of bread very similar to that used in wartime. The railways, telephones and telegraphs will be turned over to private companies for operation.

King Albert is expected to be a good natured dictator, and M. Theunis and M. Francqui, both of whom are very prominent financiers of Belgium and well known in the United States, will be the real powers behind the throne.

Some idea of the crisis which the country has passed through and the lack of confidence among small investors and workingmen is to be found in the announcement that between July 1 and 13, while the franc was tumbling rapidly, more than five million francs were withdrawn from the public savings bank in Antwerp alone.

The latest returns of the national bank show that during the week ending July 8 575,000,000 treasury bills were discounted, an increase of 75,000,000 francs over the previous week.

FRENCH CABINET COUNCIL APPROVES POWERS BILL

PARIS, July 15—(AP)—Spurred by sterling at 200 and the dollar at 41, a new low record for the franc, the government has decided to ask parliament to vote the unlimited powers bill within 48 hours after discussion on that measure opens.

The cabinet council today approved the text of the bill on which M. Caillaux is working, and it will be referred to the finance committee of the chamber tomorrow, with exhortation for all possible haste so that the bill may be ready for consideration by Tuesday next.

But this means another week's delay, and increased nervousness in financial circles as well as among small operators on the bourse and the middle classes, and the temper of the country appears to be rising.

The bill will contain only one article and one annex, which explains within what limits the government intends to use the unlimited powers to legislate by decree. The deliberations of the cabinet council have been kept secret, but reliable information is that the government demands the right to legislate on all questions of a purely financial nature, such as fixing the rate of taxes and customs and the negotiations of loans, the proceeds of which might be used in defense of the franc. No decision on purely administrative reforms could be made under this bill.

Those measures which it is the purpose of the government to enact as officially announced, include: "First"—all further recruiting and hiring of functionaries shall be immediately stopped; second, all contracts for new buildings or repairs on state owned edifices, even if these are among the credits of the current budget, shall be cancelled; third, instructions will be given all ministers that all the staffs of central administrations must be brought back to the number obtaining in 1914; fourth, so soon as the government has obtained full powers, measures will be taken to curb the consumption of foodstuffs and other commodities necessitating purchases aboard.

The satisfaction, almost enthusiasm, with which the Anglo-French debt agreement was greeted is mitigated by ever-increasing doubt that Washington will follow London's lead in the matter of a safeguard without which the Melton-Bergener accord is almost certain to go down to defeat.

The tone of the discussion in the parliament lobbies and the press is becoming more bitter against the United States, and it was freely said in the chamber today that the renewed collapse of the franc was due to manipulations in New York for the purpose of bringing the French parliament to reason, as the Americans see it. The left groups are especially irreconcilable against ratification.

The chamber of deputies began its morning sitting with ten deputies present in the deliberation room; the others gathered in the lobbies to discuss the financial situation. There was much opposition to granting the government special powers. The communists and socialists announced that they would oppose such a measure to the bitter end.

The supporters of the cabinet tried persuasive methods with the members of the left, but they received scant satisfaction, especially from the communists, who preferred to adjourn to the outside gallery to boo and hoot the Sultan of Morocco as he rode by with President Doumergue.

There is a well defined opinion that the finance committee will not be ready to report on the Washington accord until such time as would be too late to ratify it before the chamber adjourns. This would mean ratification when parliament reconvenes next October.

DOZEN BODIES STILL REMAIN UNIDENFIED

HAINES FALLS, N. Y., July 15—(AP)—Thirteen cloth shrouded bodies, three of them but small mounds of bones and ashes, tonight defied the efforts of villagers and relatives to identify them as victims of the fire which early yesterday morning destroyed Twilight Inn, with the probable loss of 18 lives.

A 14th body, the most recognizable taken from the ruins, was identified early today as that of Rev. George Livingston Bishop, 76, of Frazer, Pa., a retired Episcopal clergyman formerly holding a pastorate in Philadelphia. Two sons, J. C. Bishop, of Garden City, L. I., and G. L. Bishop, Jr., of Philadelphia, made identification and had the body taken to Pennsylvania late this afternoon.

Relatives of Mrs. Cornelius P. Eckenbrecker, 79, of Orange, N. J., positively identified a gold wedding ring found in the ruins as belonging to her, but they were uncertain which of two female bodies in the temporary morgue was hers.

The Granulated Soap—Soaks Clothes Whiter

Economical Washington St. woman says:

"There is no longer any need of bending over the scrub board and rubbing the clothes. Rinso makes this practice a foolish one these days. I put my clothes to soak in Rinso suds overnight, and the next morning a few gentle rubs with the fingers and a rinsing completes the work. Rinso saves dollars in clothes and thus for economy alone, if not for the hard work it saves, I use it in my home and would recommend it to my friends."

ROD AND GUN CLUB RECEIVES TROUT FOR BROOK STOCKING

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 15.—Thirty cans containing a total of between 5,000 and 6,000 fingerling trout will arrive here Friday from the state hatchery and will be taken over by members of Danielson Rod and Gun club for distribution in trout streams in this and adjoining towns.

Today's shipment will mark the beginning of an influx of little trout to be used in the re-stocking operations of the current summer season. From time to time other consignments will be received until probably as many as 150 cans have come in. This means release of approximately 35,000 young trout in brooks in this vicinity.

Members of the Rod and Gun club meet the truck at the railroad station here with their cars take a few cans and hurry them away to brooks where they are immediately released. It is estimated that from 30 to 40 per cent of these little trout live to develop to catching size.

TOBBYHANNA BALL GAME WITH NEW LONDON TEAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 15.—Friday afternoon down at Tobbyhanna, Pa., members of the Service battery baseball team will be batting it out with a team representing the Headquarters battery of New London for the baseball championship of the 192d Field artillery in one of the elimination games leading up to what will be the grand finals of the baseball activities incident to the encampment period of 1926.

Lieut Gordon J. Gale writes home that the banquet of the officers of the regiment was to be held Thursday evening at a hotel about five miles from Tobbyhanna.

The life of the batterymen down in Pennsylvania is routine. They have plenty of work in their daily schedule and some little time for play. There is generously in the issuing of passes for brief absences from camp when the day's work is done and many of the men improve this by taking the 75 mile automobile run over to Scranton, where there is cheer for the soldiers in one form or another. That's a mighty country, one will remember.

Tomorrow (Saturday) the annual track and field meet of the regiment is scheduled to be held. That day also brings the annual muster and inspection of troops.

Tobbyhanna is in the Pocono mountain region of the Pocono state. It is a cool and exhilarating in the high altitude that the soldiers find it very comfortable to sleep under blankets at night, though it is warm enough to suit all purposes in the day time. The service battery men will have been away a fortnight next Tuesday morning, and from that time another week will have rolled around before they get back.

Recently the Colonel Daniel Putnam association held its 12th meeting at the Putnam Lions' Church street, Brooklyn. This organization's interests have to do with the preservation of the history and early traditions of those very worthy people who came to live in Kingswood Manor back in the days when that territory that is now the town of Brooklyn was part of the colonial possessions in America of Great Britain. Many of them sleep forever in Old Trinity churchyard and in a tomb, here and there, you may read of the early pastors, who were graduates of Oxford university and of their parishioners, at rest beside them, who by themselves and through their descendants have written their names indelibly on the history and propensities of Brooklyn and adjoining towns.

Once again the question of allowing bathing in Alexander's lake is being discussed and one learns that many are in favor of it. The lake is a reservoir for the village of Goodyear and opposition to bathing in the lake in the past has been almost wholly on that account, because of fear of contaminating the village water supply. The Goodyear Mills company, owners of the water company supplying Goodyear, own only a small sector of the shore line of the lake. It has been held that the installation of a filter near the intake pipes that supply Goodyear would protect the water supply from pollution. A considerable cottage colony is now well established at Alexander's lake and is growing from year to year. From this colony come many expressions in favor of having the bathing privilege and many more would go there to bathe if it were permitted.

While Danielson reports very few automobile thefts in the course of the year, there continue to be the usual good reasons why owners should protect their machines against being stolen. Numbers of owners of cars continue to take more or less of a chance of losing them by leaving them about the streets unattended, especially at night. Only a fortunate circumstance prevented a car being so stolen here one evening this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jodoin recently entertained at the Snake Meadow club Mrs Mary Godeck, her son Joseph and her daughter, Rita, all of Jewett City.

Avoid Poorly-Balanced Breakfasts

Quaker Oats supplies excellent "food balance"

If you feel tired, hungry, "fidgety," hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. You may have unenergetic mornings because your breakfasts lack certain important food elements.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

PUTNAM

STATE HIGHWAY PROMISED TO THE TOWN OF EASTFORD

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 15—For years, Eastford, during blizzards or unusually bad roads conditions has been isolated from the rest of the world. There is no railroad, no trolley, and there has not been even a modern highway for automobile traffic.

Now Eastford is to have a state highway connecting it with Putnam by the way of the Woodstocks. This is due to the earnest movement of Selectman Albert H Williams and other officials of the town of Woodstock and First Selectman Archa S. Walker and officials of the town of Eastford, with the co-operation and assistance of the chamber of commerce of Putnam.

In the list for new constructions, given out by the state highway department it is stated that bids for this work will be received up to July 20. This means an unbroken stretch of water-bound macadam from Safford's corner to Eastford, connecting there with the Willimantic-Hartford highway. When questioned as to details, the state highway officials said that the statement regarding the first item, that bids for 21,200 feet of roadway from the Eastford town line to West Woodstock was premature; that while the improvement had been decided upon, the survey had not been completed and that it would probably be another 30 days before the contractors were asked to bid on it.

It is decided that the road is to be built, however, and it will be completed this year or early next spring. The great advantage that it will be to Eastford can hardly be overestimated, and Putnam will also benefit to a great degree, as it will permit residents of Eastford and vicinity to come to Putnam—the natural trading center—in all seasons of the year.

Under direction of Gilbert Perry the following men from Putnam are making surveys on this and other roads to be improved: William H. Mansfield, Jr.; Merton W. Ames, Leon T. Wilson, Jr., and Owen J. White.

GAGNE FAMILY BALL TEAM HOME FOR A REUNION

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 15—By the end of the week nine Gagne brothers will be in Putnam and a reunion of the members of the baseball team in which every position on the team was filled by the sons of the same family.

Louis Gagne of Montreal is here for a visit of two weeks.

Frank X. Gagne of Boston is also here for a visit.

Charles Gagne of Worcester, Mass., will be here for the week end.

The other six live in Putnam. Albert Gagne is a well known painter and decorator. Philip Gagne and Leo Gagne are textile workers. Joseph J. A. P. Gagne is the owner of a local drug store. Armand Gagne is the leader of the Bradley Theatre orchestra and Edmund Gagne is assistant postmaster.

All of the brothers are in good health and one of them acting as spokesman said that any family that wanted to challenge them to a ball game would be promptly taken on. Even if they came from nine families they probably could be accommodated, with certain allowances for years and weights.

Their father, Joseph Gagne, has been dead for several years, but their mother is still in excellent health.

WOODSTOCK ACAD. PRINCIPAL GOING TO MT. VERNON, N. Y.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, July 15—Maurice F. Childs has resigned as principal of Woodstock Academy, to become vice-principal of Mount Vernon, N. Y. high school, which has an enrollment of more than 1,400 students.

Mr. Childs has been at the head of the Academy for the past four years; he has filled the duties of the place to the entire satisfaction of the community. The trustees have accepted his resignation with sincere regret, and in this they are reflecting public sentiment.

The new appointment is a decided step upward in the education world for Mr. Childs, as he is to be vice-principal of the school of 1,400 pupils and Dean of the boys. He expects to remain in Woodstock until after August 14, which is the 125th anniversary of the founding of Woodstock Academy.

In addition to his work at the school, Mr. Childs has taken an active part in civic affairs. He has been much interested in the development of the Y. M. C. A. camp at Black Pond, and is one of the trustees of the association.

He is married and has two children. An interesting feature of his new engagement is that it takes him back to familiar ground. Fourteen years ago he was an instructor at Peekskille Military Academy.

The state police are investigating an accident reported at Thompson recently. Clifford Green of Putnam told officers that when he was near the Ryan place in Thompson, he heard a cry for help and found a man and a woman lying in the grass beside the road with a motorcycle on its side near them. Both appeared to be injured and said that their motorcycle had been crowded off the road by an automobile which did not stop after the accident. The man and his wife were taken to their home at Webster, where their injuries were treated and the woman was later taken to a hospital in Worcester.

Gerard E. Loisell of Willimantic, was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club at the Putnam Inn Thursday. JEWETT CITY

BIG WATER CARNIVAL TO BE HELD AT CASINO

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 15.—Interest is centering at this time in the Ashland casino. Not only are the weekly dances growing in popular favor, but the splendid bathing facilities are offering their part to the many who daily enjoy the aquatic sports and lessons.

P. W. Chase, welfare superintendent for the Ashland Cotton Co., and a certified Red Cross life saving examiner, made it known today that he is perfecting arrangements for a grand water carnival, the date of which is not many weeks away. Lively interest was shown in last summer's attractive carnival, when the beach and the Casino observation balcony were crowded with spectators to witness the diving exhibitions and swimming contests. Mr. Chase has a swimming class of 31 boys and girls, who are taught the vital importance of being able to swim, and then are instructed in actually how to do it. Only a few years ago it was the exception to find a female swimmer. Speaking of the first one or two that mastered the art, local people often came for miles to really see a girl who could swim. Any day now at the Casino beach, a couple of dozen young women swimmers are practicing for records in speed.

Many of the mothers of the town are now feeling no anxiety because the risk is practically eliminated, that heretofore had existed, when their children were learning to swim. It is probable that at the coming carnival there will be put into the list of attractions an actual exhibition of life saving to prove the value of the American Red Cross life saving corps, by one of its members. A letter received by the home Red Cross chapter recently, stands as evidence of the importance of any local effort looking toward preventing water tragedies.

Three boys were drowned recently. An attending physician declared that their lives might have been saved had the first comers known what to do in such an emergency. Over 6,000 people in this country drown every year, over half of whom probably could be saved if those present knew what to do to revive them. A little over a decade ago, the American Red Cross life saving corps started with one member. Today over 95,000 American men and women have passed the Red Cross life saving tests and are qualified to rescue people in danger of drowning.

At the annual meeting of Jewett City Savings bank held in the directors' room Wednesday, the following executive staff was elected: President, Arthur M. Brown; vice president, John H. Tracy Alex McNicol; secretary and treasurer, Frank E. Robinson; assistant secretary and treasurer, Walter A. Bliss; directors, Frank E. Robinson Albertus C. Burdick, Lloyd E. Buckingham, Fred L. Kanahan, Earle E. Gilbert, Frank D. Browning, Harold F. Geer.

During the year just closed it is noted that this institution has gained $20,000 in deposits and $36,000 in the item of assets. Resolutions unanimously passed at this meeting, as printed in another column of this paper, are evidence of the high regard and esteem accorded Daniel L. Phillips and Adelbert R. Young, upon their voluntary retirement from active service as members of the board of government.

A local auto driver and the one time owner of an altogether uncertain machine, of the Leaping Lena type, has had "her" (that's what he calls it), remodelled for fast work. To him now is handed the unquestioned title of The Speed King. Thursday, being half holiday, he tried her out on Joe Roode's plains. Here along in the middle of the stretch are planted alternately corn and string beans. "Lena," he said, "went by so quick, that she thought she was passing through a field of succotash."

Mrs. Charles B. Palmer and three children of Griswold, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Gordon of Greeneville and Miss Agnes May of Dunfermeline, Scotland, are spending three weeks at the Wigwam, Lord's Point.

Mrs. Olive Stafford Thornton and son of Willimantic are at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stafford on Anthony street.

APPLES

According to a survey which has been made by the department of agriculture the people of this country are eating women only about 30 per cent of eating an apple a day. It is because there isn't sufficient appreciation of the value of apples as part of the diet, or is it because there are not apples enough?

We are producing many apples from one end of the country to the other, but we are slow to grow more. Consequently around or last some nearer producing the apples that are consumed therein than it does.

There are the big apple raising states, where a business is made of packing to the market whether it is domestic or foreign, and there are the states where apple raising is simply a side issue and the business which might just as well be corraled by those states is left to others.

Not only is there a big demand for apples in this country but there is a profitable foreign market. Apples are exported each year to the value of 92? 000,000, according to reports of the department of agricultural which show that three quarters of that amount go to the British Isles. This would indicate satisfaction with American apples, but there seems to be no sound reason why the apple production should be kept to the limits which seem to be set by a few states. There is the chance for others to do with as much or even better by the adoption of modern methods. Apples that will sell best are not obtained by neglecting their culture. They are not marketed by waiting for those ready apples going into the country after them.

With attractive, nice eating apples varying states have developed a big business through intensive culture and marketing methods. There is nothing about those states which allows them to produce any better apples than the hillsides of Connecticut. The whole secret lies in the attitude toward the business and the method displayed in going after the business. Connecticut and New England can and should come much nearer furnishing the apples that Connecticut and New England apple eaters desire.

DEBT PAYING AGREEMENTS

Much is being said in regard to the terms which have been agreed upon between Great Britain and France regarding the payment of the war debts of the latter. Particularly is attention being directed to the fact that there is a clause in the agreement whereby France can ask for a new arrangement in case Germany fails to pay under the Dawes plan, and this is being held up to the light because this country opposed any such protection clause in the negotiations that were carried on here between Ambassador Berenger and the debt funding commission.

France seems to set much store by this provision. It measures it as if it was confident that Germany was going to default, although in connection with the paying of the British debt it doesn't end the obligation of Great Britain, but simply gives it [illegible] to ask for new terms.

[illegible] has opposed a clause [illegible] permit France stopping [illegible] Germany stopped [illegible] use the obligation [illegible] had nothing to [illegible] country. It [illegible] the part of France, and [illegible] but what if Fran[illegible]onted with the failure [illegible] payments it would [illegible] relief in the amount [illegible] by the time in which th[illegible] made and there is no rea[illegible] here but what this governme[illegible] be ready to hear such a propo[illegible] act upon it in accord with conditions actually prevailing, even though there is no expressed agreement to that effect.

It is not the impossible which is being sought from France. That has been repeatedly set forth. France is being asked to pay only to the extent of its capacity and as matters stand at the present time France is the country that has suffered the most as the result of a failure to come to an understanding before this. This country has made liberal reductions in the amount which it has a proper right to ask in the way of repayment.

CURBING THE GUNMEN

All parts of the country, but the big cities in particular, will be much interested in such efforts as the committee, which has been appointed by the National Crime commission to see what can be done about bringing the pistol menace to an end, can accomplish. This move is prompted by the extensive use of small arms and the need of curbing it.

Wednesday night a man with a gun undertook to holdup a New York restaurant. He was making progress when he was stripped by the waiters, overpowered and thrown into the street. Just why he should have been cast out instead of being held for the police is hard to realize, but once outside he began shooting. Then he ran and as he was pursued there was a lively exchange of shots. He was finally captured after being shot four times, but the pistol battle also resulted in injuries being inflicted upon six others.

This followed by a few days the case of two detectives in New York taking four men to a police station in an auto. They had been arrested on suspicion, but before they reached the station pistol shots were fired from another car for the purpose of rescuing the quartette. Even though the detectives replied two of the men escaped and the detectives were badly wounded.

These pistol battles occur because even though New York has a stringent law against firearms it is impossible to enforce it to the extent of keeping revolvers out of the hands of the criminal class. The public is often deprived of the means of protecting itself, while the criminal defies the law and is the better able to carry on his game.

Meeting this situation is not going to be an easy matter. It is quite evident that one state cannot do it alone. Only through federal action or uniform state laws can there be the needed check placed upon the possession and use of small arms. After its study of the situation the recommendations of the special committee will be awaited with keen interest. Like wise the response that is made to them.

RELIEVING RUSH HOURS

Rush hours present such problems that it was inevitable that there should be some effort made to solve them. It is perhaps an easy matter to make suggestions as to what should be done, or what would bring relief but it is another thing to get compliance.

We are all creatures of habit. We are for most part accustomed to going to work and getting through about the same time and to ask part to start and stop an hour earlier, part to remain as they are and part to start and stop an hour later is asking something which is certain to please some and displease others. It means that there will be a scurrying around to see what advantages or disadvantages accompany such a plan.

That idea is termed staggering. Instead of having thousands of employes go out onto the streets and besiege electric or restaurants at the same moment, the idea has been conceived of having this number accomodated over a longer period. Instead of having rush hours there would be a general activity for a greater part of the time with more satisfaction for everyone.

It is in the big centers that conditions in rush hours justify a trial. At least of the staggering plan. It has worked well during the war period when the government was employing thousands of additional clerks in Washington and it is logical that it should be an agreeable change for cities where rush conditions are prevalent at all times. The only uncertainty is how human nature is going to react. Only a test can determine that and no two communities will rest out alike. The idea of relieving rush hours is nevertheless worth striving for.

MORE PINCHOTISM

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania undertakes to gain attention by seeking legislation that will prevent a repetition of the primary conditions which have been recently disclosed in that state. He wants the combined "purchase and theft of elections" stopped.

In this plea which he makes he ignores the part which he played in the recent primary, the preliminary plans which he made and the preparations which he conducted in addition to the outlay he made. He refers to the fact that the expenditures in his behalf were the smallest of any, but he doesn't say that both candidates personally spent less than he did.

He makes no mention of the fact that the contest in that state would probably never have developed but for the manner in which he threw himself into the primary. He provided the chance by setting out to defeat Senator Pepper, for Congressman Vare to become a candidate and to do so with much assurance that he would be successful. He brought about a division of the vote that would probably have gone to Senator Pepper under normal conditions, and a vote to which he called entitled on his record.

There were developments in the Pennsylvania primary that were deplorable but Governor Pinchot cannot free himself from the belief that he was just as deep in the mud as others may have been in the mire. The primary in the Keystone state would not have been worked up to the spirited contest that it was had the governor refrained from the campaign which he conducted and which he was warned a long time in advance would produce the very results that followed. Thus the governor hardly stands in a "holier than thou" position in view of his part in the primary.

A MATTER OF SIZE

A distraught lady who weighs a whole lot more than she has any right to weigh enters the department devoted to the larger-size gowns, which is artfully camouflaged by the title "The Little Corner."

Distraught lady (ire in her eye, to the smiling saleswoman with the soothing manner, who approaches inquiringly)—"I thought I never would find this place—I've been running all over the store, and nobody seemed to understand what I wanted when I asked for it. I suppose they didn't realize that I was looking for extra sizes—nobody ever guesses within fifty pounds of my weight! You see, I'm tall and fearfully solid———thanks, I will sit down. I have walked so much in this store that I am all out of breath!

"I am terribly put out—there were some perfectly lovely dresses marked way down over at Payne's store, but somehow they were cut all wrong, and the sleeves wouldn't go on me at all! Of course, seeing I couldn't get into the sleeves, I just abandoned going any farther with them, but I'm sure the dresses themselves would have fitted me perfectly! I find a 46 that is almost too big for me and I usually take a 50, so you can just see——

"Yes, I want a dress. Oh, I don't know; something I can wear in the afternoon and the evening and go down town in if I like—you know what I mean! Not too fussy and yet not plain looking.

"And don't bring me back a dark blue with lapels and broad belts around my hips! The minute they get beyond a forty-two they threw away all the good-looking patterns and begin to cut weird things—oh, dear, no; I wouldn't wear purple! My husband just hates purple because his mother always wore purple house gowns and spanked him so much when he was little!

"What are those pretty dresses out there on the rack—oh, that is the misses section? Why, they look plenty big from here—you must be mistaken and I wish you'd bring in that blue one and the pale green.

"My, those skirts are short! What size did you say—sixteens? Oh, of course, you ought to know a mature woman can't wear a sixteen! To be sure those backs look plenty broad enough for me and the shoulders and everything but I couldn't stand those short skirts! Those designs are precisely what I had in mind. Are you sure you can't find some like them in this section?

"Well, I'll try this one on if you like only I know it's far too big; the tag says size 52. It's just a waste of time because as I told you I often go out with a 46 or so and maybe take it in a little—this certainly can't be a 52 because I can't even get it slipped on beyond my shoulders, and the sleeves—you can see how impossibly tight the sleeves are! Something ought to be done about the way they miscut sizes these days! Whew! Look at my hair!

"I like that orchid dress in the case over there. It isn't so old looking and yet not too young, either. I believe in a woman keeping herself just as young as possible—it's a 38? That's funny! I'm sure it looks big and loose enough and I'd like to try it on—but how do you know it won't fit? You just can't tell about sizes these days and it looks right now just as big as my last dress hanging in the closet—well, how was I to know it had such a little, skimpy skirt?

"This dress? Y-y-y-es, it's sort of pretty—not exactly what I had in mind, but—what size is it? You can't find the tag? It does go on easily, that's a fact.

"Why, it's real good looking on, isn't it? Looks just like the regular section gowns. I expect it got slipped in here by mistake most likely! The belt doesn't seem nearly so broad or anything as on these others! It looks just like the 46 I got a while ago and liked so much! Well, since I've found the right size I guess you can send it home for me and charge. It's funny about the tag—you say maybe it is a 46? I am quite sure of it, because it feels so comfortable! Funny my getting fitted in this section, but I'm sure I'm much obliged to you! Good-by!" (She goes out while the patient saleslady unclasps her hand from a tightly concealed tag reading "Size 56" and heaves a resigned sigh.)

NEW BOOKS

Ranching With Roosevelt. By Lincoln A. Lang, a companion rancher. Cloth, 367 pages. Illustrated. Published by the J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $4.

Here is the most fascinating phase of Roosevelt's life in the old west of ropins, roundups and "hell raising." of the simon pure Dakota cowboy in action. Mr. Lang is one of the last of that band of old timers who saw come into the cattle country a bespectacled young man whom no fractious yearling and no variety of bucking could daunt. At once he was hero and soul with the ranchers. Their play floor was the best ever, their tin dishes a revelation, their rough grub a feast. Enthusiasm and tenacity of purpose stuck out all over him. He came back again and again to hunt buffalo and prong-horn to learn the trick of branding and chasing to hunt and equip Elkhorn ranch.

It is a spirited story as Mr. Lang tells it—an epic of cowboy life in the Bad Lands of cowpunchers of nerve and mettle in the rough, of wolves and bunk and coyotes, of the last of the open and the disastrous winter of '87. Mr. Lang has the humor of the pioneer and the sense of value that comes from to-do with the realities of nature.

His picture of Roosevelt is true, a cowboy's picture of his comrade on the range and he is perhaps the only man living today who could draw it. First with too heredity. Lounge of the open this book is one every Roosevelitian will be "dee-lighted" to own.

The [illegible] of Mr. Lang's recollections has a [illegible] appeal because of his contact with the former president personal observation and conversation with him during a most interesting period of his career. It is finely painted and illustrated.

The Crooked Lip. By Herbert Adams, author of The Secret of Bogey House, clock, 256 pages. Published by the J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

"A young woman went to a railway compartment and called out 'Hello Geoff, how are you?' She was a girl with a crooked lip and when she discovered that there were others in the compartment she disappeared. From then on the skill of Scotland Yard [illegible] to the work of 'Inmate' Hassell, is required to unrate her, for it is believed that she can throw light upon the murder of the same Geoffry Warren who was found dead in his chair when Thorpe and his chum Tony Bridgeman came back from the dining car with Nonna Warren his daughter.

Jimmy remembers that girl with the crooked lip and believes she knows something of the mystery. He searches the train for her but without immediate success. Nonna, orphaned by the murder, falls into the hands of relatives and to the chase for the father's murder are added the perilous adventures of her own from which she escapes only through the cleverness of the man who discovers the identity of the clergyman who has also looked in upon Geoffry Warren before he was killed.

The crooked lip would seem to have made it easy to trace her, but with baffling facility the traces appear and disappear in this entertaining compound of mystery and romance.

Stories That Recall Others

Prefers Father's Talent

One small girl is blessed with an aunt who has quite a reputation as a pianist and a mother who is a soprano soloist in a church. The other day a kindly visitor said to the youngster:

"Well, honey, are you going to take after your mother and be a singer or after your Aunt Grace and play the piano?"

The child looked thoughtful for a minute, then beamed as she said: "I'm just like my daddy, so I'm gonna play the phonograph."

Drew the Color Line

By every trick of coaxing, scolding, pleading and entreaty little Robert's mother was trying to break him of the habit of sucking his thumb. And so lost no opportunity to show Robert other "horrible examples" that they might meet in their travels. But Robert made no promises and retained his habit.

One day, on a car Robert was sucking his thumb. Across the aisle was a little colored boy and he was busy with his thumb.

Robert's mother leaned over to him and whispered: "Robert, if I were you and that little colored boy across the aisle, I don't believe I would suck my thumb on a trolley car."

Robert looked across the aisle at his companion in misdemeanor and in a voice that carried all over the car, said: "Mother, if my thumb was the color of his I don't believe I would suck it on the car or any other place."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Takes Exception to Prosperity Claim

Mr. Editor: Without any desire to incite argument, I would like to ask upon what grounds Marinda C. Ransom, in your issue of July 1st asserts that the country was never so prosperous as at the present time. A few facts to the contrary I desire to place before her. First is it not true that the textile industries are in a bad way with many mills closing down indefinitely and others on short time, as well as dismantling plants and transferring machinery to points south, where labor (unskilled) is cheaper? The desire of employers is to reduce wages in spite of rents, prices of living and taxes soaring.

Is M. C. R. a subscriber to the paper which publishes her letters? If so does she scan the classified ad page and observe the numerous vacant tenements and stores to rent? Also the ads of the real estate agents? Why so many old established firms going out of business, to use their own vernacular gone on the rocks of disaster, firms still in business resorting to all manner of schemes under various headings to attract trade, sales—annual, semi annual, monthly, extension, alteration, suburban, dollar day and others too numerous to mention? If this indicates prosperity, then I am nearsighted, or else M. C. R. has been viewing things at long range or through strong magnifying glasses. As to prohibition the bootleggers, rum runners and tenement distilleries will see that the 18th amendment remains put and the Volstead act unmodified. Yes, there are a few prosperous people in existence, the above, interested in liquor, proprietors of gas filling stations, lawyers, doctors and undertakers. These last two may thank the reckless or drunken automobile driver for their prosperity. In addition to this I would ask M. C. R. to scan the police court records of this and the city of New London. Also the column telling of suspended licenses of drivers of autos operating under the influence of liquor.

COMRADESHIP

A friendly voice—a hearty grip—
Ah, that begins a Comradeship!
For always when I meet a smile
I'd like to strike out mile on mile
Along the highway with my friend
And let it never, never end. . . .
But just laugh on or silence keep
On mountain trail or upward steep.
With lilting whistle, chanting song
To cheer the heart and make it strong;
To warm my spirit by his fire
And speak of all my heart's desire—
Of all the anguish—all the pain—
The cup o' sorrow deeply drained;
Know certain that his outstretched hand
Would say, "Old Pal, I understand."
In gray of twilight . . . rose o' dawn
I'd love my pal right on and on,
Nor ever wish the road to end,
But thank my stars for such a friend!
A rich, warm voice—a friendly grip—
Ah, that begins a Comradeship!

HAMLET'S HOME TOWN CELEBRATES 500TH ANNIVERSARY

Helsingor, alias Elsinore, celebrated in June its past which began 500 years ago.

"One ghost at least of Elsinore's past is known the world around," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society giving an account of the famous Danish town. "That is the shade of a King of Denmark, father of Prince Hamlet.

"But the other members of the cast of Shakespeare's drama are no ghosts to the Helsingorians. Ophelia and Hamlet, Polonius and the rest bring considerable income to the town annually from tourists. Most real of all is the king's castle. What tourist will pass Helsingor, when he can pace the very same ramparts where Hamlet met his father's ghost!

"The American who happened to be in Elsinore in the winter some years ago purchased a number of the town [illegible] to Hamlet's grave. A [illegible] of that piece of land would be [illegible] the sandy [illegible] of [illegible] the grave was no spade [illegible] before spring. English and American tourists annually carry off souvenirs until the Dane explained, until the [illegible] nothing left of the artificial mound.

"Hamlet's home town is a sort of United Gibraltar of the Baltic. The entrance to the Baltic is even more constricted than the Straits of Gibraltar. One sails into Skagerrack northeast along the coast of Norway, then southeast down the Kattegat, separating Denmark and Sweden to the [illegible] Here a traveler can see [illegible] houses and [illegible] on both banks, so close are the shores are only [illegible] apart. On the Danish headland is Helsingor, while [illegible] Swedish [illegible] on the opposite [illegible] Helsingborg. The sound [illegible] narrow for 10 miles. It is [illegible] charged with an [illegible] Between the island and the Danish mainland shore is the metropolis and capital city of Copenhagen. Copenhagen's quaint, tree-lined channel also [illegible] from storms which Helsingor could never provide.

"In 1426 when Helsingor was founded there was indeed 'something rotten in the state of Denmark,' although it was 25 years before Shakespeare was around to say so. The King needed money to run the country on and to buy 'butter for the royal slice of bread.' But the nobles of Denmark who were the tax collectors told the king they needed the money much worse than he did. The general strike of the nobles was compromised by an agreement that the king should have all the revenue from dues which would be levied on every vessel that passed the sound.

"So Helsingor was born, since it was the logical place for a customs station. Prospering also at this period was the Hanseatic league, a sort of glorified international chamber of commerce. Thousands of the league's ships had to pass Helsingor on the way to north Germany, Poland, Russia, and Scandinavia. Their mission was to deliver the beautiful silks and the palate-exciting spices which were coming in cargoes from the Orient. To enforce the royal ship dues a later king, in 1577, began the towered castle which Shakespeare makes the scene for Hamlet. At that time the Bard was 15 years old so the castle was probably nearly as much of a marvel to him and his public as the Woolworth Tower is to us. It is interesting to note that the United States was one of the signatories to the treaty in 1857 which abolished the sound dues and ended the usefulness of Hamlet's castle.

"There are 13,000 souls in Helsingor and all of them old enough to think about it are sure that Shakespeare came to their city as a wandering player. Else how could he have described so well and caught the spirit of the people so accurately? The Kronborg, as the castle is called, has a 'platform' for the guard and chose before it. Even the [illegible] to the throne room and long flights of stairs seem especially designed for the wandering Ophelia. Certainly Shakespeare did much better by the geography of Denmark than of some other countries. Bohemia (modern Czechoslovakia) would appreciate the sea coast he credited it with and no doubt Venice would like to acquire the salt water estuary to Milan which is quickly dug in 'Two Gentleman of Verona.' But in Hamlet he adhered more closely to facts. Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, American minister to Denmark, saw 'Hamlet' enacted, as it can be and occasionally is, in the courtyard of the castle itself, the scene of the play.

"More recently a hotel proprietor has erected a monument on a grave which he calls Hamlet's. Tourists drop flowers on it. But he pushed the story a little far when he exploited a pool near-by as the pond where the mad Ophelia drowned herself."

Miss Rogers Uses New Way to Take Time-Tried Flesh Builder.

One of the principal reasons why people are thin and scrawny and unattractive—why they are weak and lacking ambition and "pep" and nerve force, is simply this: The food they eat is lacking in the vital elements needed to put on solid, healthy flesh.

If you would gain weight—not merely flabby fat, but fine, firm flesh that fills up hollows in the neck and face and rounds out graceful arms, do as Miss Rogers did. Read what she says in grateful testimony:

After my attack of Flu I was thin, run down and weak. I had a sallow complexion, my cheeks were sunk in and I was continually troubled with gas on my stomach. I felt stuffy and had lost my appetite. I had read about McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets and decided to give them a trial. At once, I began to pick up an appetite, my cheeks filled out and my complexion became healthy looking and I gained 15 pounds in six weeks and am very thankful for what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for me.

Miss Alberta Rogers, Decatur, Ill.

And there's good reason for her joy in her return to good health and normal weight. Everybody knows that Cod Liver Extract contains all the vital elements that make solid flesh and sturdy nerves. But many people cannot take it because of its fishy taste and odor.

Now with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets all disadvantages are removed. They are pleasant, easy-to-take tablets containing all the vital elements of Cod Livers together with other ingredients recognized by physicians everywhere, that build strength and health. They quickly put on healthy stay-there flesh. In fact, you can get McCoy's Tablets from Lee & Osgood Co. or your favorite druggist with a specific guarantee that if you do not add at least 5 pounds after 30 days' use, your money is to be instantly refunded. LEARNING TO PLAY

Ruth R. Nelson

One of the best things which a mother can do for her child is to help him learn to amuse himself. He will be willing, for does he not, first of all make playthings of his own little fingers and toes?

Later, when he no longer noticed his rattle or a key upon a ring, he will be glad to play with a round wooden box which has a cover or a cork stopper tied to it by a short string. Putting the cover on and off will prove most engrossing.

One child a year old was given a small five-inch hammer, a candy prize. Large building tacks were shown to him, partly driven into place in a piece of smooth redwood. The baby quickly learned to hit these on the head. And since that time there has been scarcely a day when this boy has not used a hammer.

Even a very small child is less apt to show interest in toys which have been tumbled carelessly into a box or basket. But if a few special favorites are placed in order upon a chair or small table beside the play pen he will quickly make a choice which will often keep him busy for some time.

For this reason the playthings should not be piled helter-skelter in a box under the bed or couch, or in a tub on the back porch where they are hard to find. There should be a place for the toys, even though simply made of boxes placed cupboard fashion. And from the first the child should be encouraged to enjoy helping to put his things away. If his boxes or blocks, games, books, trains, marbles, animals and what-not have their own places in his cupboard, when old enough, he will like to take entire charge of them and will keep them in order himself.

As the child develops, having a place for his treasures where he can see them, get them easily, and find them unbroken encourages him to use them more. And learning to make good use of these playthings will lead to inventiveness. There will be pirates and ships; Indians with teepees and a knowledge of wild plants and animals; cowboys who can ride fiery steeds and every now and then there will be a railroad with trains carrying passengers or freight and a lake in the back yard where boats can really sail.

"All the other boys" will gather to play where they are welcome to, use the string, the hammers, nails, tacks and saws. Then does the thoughtful mother receive her reward, for her boy is at home and she can keep in easy touch with the play of the moment.

Steam-Cleaning Stone

Dirty-faced stone buildings that blush dark with shame between clear new structures can now be steam-cleaned so that they not merely look almost as good as new, but attain the mellow, refined look of ripe age. The bureau of standards has conducted a series of tests to determine the best way of cleaning buildings. Old-fashioned methods of acid cleaning sand blasting, scrubbing with soap powders and hand brushes are effective, but very slow and laborious.

Live-steam cleaning was first tried on dirty stones in the laboratory, and then on a 50-year old accumulation of dirt on an old bank building in Baltimore. The result showed that this new method could be used rapidly with inexperienced common labor, although the cost is somewhat higher than for acid cleaning. The cost is expected to drop when the method passes the experimental stage.

The race is not always to the swift; it often depends on the character of the man in the judge's stand.

NORWICH TOWN

There are 27 entires in the Norwich Rural association garden contest.

The judges are Miss Amy L. Cogswell, chairman, Mrs. Albert H. Chase and Miss Marion L. Bishop.

They expect to inspect the various gardens entered, at intervals during July and August, for the purpose of arriving at a decision as to the garden which, taken as a whole, presents the best appearance.

Oftentimes gardens look well at one period and not so well at another time. A decision based on one examination only might not be fair.

The garden contest opened during June to all residents north of the city line, entries having closed the last day of that month. There are two classes—Class A—Gardens carried on entirely by the contestant without outside hired help. Division 1—Lawns, grounds and flower gardens. 2—vegetable gardens. Class B—Gardens maintained wholly or in part with the assistance of outside hired help. Division 1—Lawns, grounds and flower gardens, 2—Vegetable gardens.

Letters fully explaining about the contest were sent out to the residents of Norwich Town a few weeks ago, by Philip A. Johnson, secretary and treasurer of the Norwich Rural association, who at this time has reported 27 entries.

Mrs. Lamoine and Miss Kane served on the cake committee while Miss Young assisted at the fish pond.

Some of the tables and benches were loaned by the parish of the First Methodist Episcopal church. For those that had to be set up for the evening the lumber was loaned by Mrs. Catherine Wagner, the trucking being done by John Casey who also furnished and hauled the ice used. The bean bag game was in charge of Walter Comeau assisted by Edgar Belleveau. The Norwich Chamber of Commerce loaned the wire for the electric light fixtures.

The pastor of the parish, Rev. Charles W. Brennan was greatly pleased with the success of the evening, as well as with the fine spirit of co-operation among the workers and the interest shown by the entire community in aiding in every manner possible.

OBITUARY
Jonathan Smith

Jonathan Smith, 80, for the past 20 or more years a resident of Norwich Town, residing at 30 Town street, died Thursday evening about 8 o'clock following an illness since July 6th when he was suddenly stricken. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith of Leeds, England, where he was born, Oct. 5, 1846. Before coming to this country Mr. Smith and a sister were educated in the schools of Paris. In Providence R. I. about 48 years ago he was united in marriage with Sarah Alice Crook, where they resided for 10 years during which Mr. Smith was employed as a bookkeeper.

Six children were born to this union, four sons, Bert, Jonathan, Jr., William, and Thomas, and two daughters, Alice M. and Daisy May Smith, the latter died 34 years ago at the age of 1 year. The family later moved to Norwich, living for a number of years on the East Side, then known as Preston, moving to Norwich Town 20 years ago. Mr. Smith had been engaged in the oil business a number of years having also conducted a gasoline station and small grocery store up to the time of his illness. He had been most unfortunate during his life, having been seriously injured on three or four occasions when he was laid up for long periods under the care of a physician. The last accident, about eight years ago, was when he was knocked down by a motorcycle as he crossed the street at Harland's Corner after getting off a trolley car. This nearly resulted fatally and it never became known who it was that had struck him.

Besides his wife he is survived by two sons, Bert Smith of Brooklyn, Conn. and Thomas Smith of Norwich Town; also a daughter Miss Alice M. Smith who resided at home, and a sister, Mrs. William Farrar of Torrington. There also survive three grandchildren, Albert Smith of Brooklyn, Miss Beatrice Smith and Miss Florence Smith, both of Norwich Town, a nephew Walter Farrar of Waterbury and two nieces, Mrs. Fanie Brothwell of New York and Miss May Farrar of Torrington. His second son, Jonathan Jr. father of Beatrice Smith, and the next older brother William died within two weeks of each other during the influenza epidemic several years ago. A sister, Hannah Maria Smith, died many years ago.

Mr. Smith was a home-loving man and it was here that his interests were chiefly centered. To meet him once was to know him always as he was always the same. He was a member of Trinity Episcopal church. The sympathy of friends in the community where he lived goes out to the devoted companion who although not in the best of health herself has stood by him faithfully through the years until death separated them.

The house was attractively decorated with cut flowers. The bride was charmingly gowned in poudre blue silk. Mrs. Rice wore brocaded black satin and Mrs. Ernest poudre blue crepe.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were gold pieces and the groom also presented the best man a gold piece. The bride received many valuable gifts.

After the ceremony music and singing were enjoyed and buffet lunch was served to the 12 guests.

Last week 120 work horses, making three carloads, were sent to Niantic and they, together with the 200 saddle horses, will remain at the camp for 29 days, at the end of which period it will be decided whether they will be purchased outright or rent paid for their use.

DRIVING STEEL PILING FOR RESERVOIR CORE WALL INTO HARD GRAVEL

There are busy times at present at the site of the dam for the city's new Deep River reservoir and in the bed of the basin where Contractor Louis Petrosale has a gang of men at work. Excavation for the concrete core wall has been begun at the easterly end of the site of the dam, which will extend for 750 feet between the two high hills that provide the anchorages. The ditch has been excavated to hard pan and the first of the 650 pieces of sheet steel interlocking piling have been driven down into the hard gravel. This gravel has been found of such unusual density and hardness that the light pile driving apparatus which was at first put into use has proved inadequate and has been replaced with a four ton pile driver, but even with this it has been found impossible, in some places, to drive the pieces of steel piling down to their full length of 16 feet. As the pile driver delivers blow after blow of many tons weight on the end of sheet steel piling, the pieces go down into the ground only an inch or two at a time until finally they can be driven no farther.

The foundations for the concrete gate house have been put in and half a dozen lengths of 48 inch iron pipe have been laid from there, resting on concrete piers. There are 23 lengths of this pipe to be laid, extending through and under the dam at the level of the bottom of the basin and ending in a Y, one arm of which is reduced to a 30 inch size to connect with the pipe line to the city and the other arm serving as the waste way discharge. This 48 inch pipe is two inches thick, each length being 18 feet 1 1-2 inches long and weighing six tons. All the pipe of the 48 inch size in on hand, having been brought to Fitchville by rail and carted from there to the dam.

The joints on this size of pipe are all leaded and tamped, not using leadite for the joints as is done on the pipe line where the pipe is of 30 and 24 inch size.

Pretty much all of the cleaning off in the basin has been done, but steam shovel is now at work along the line of the brook near the dam, removing some of the heavy dark earth in that section.

As soon as the sheet metal piling is in the concrete work can begin and in preparation for this a stone crusher has been located to the west of the dam and a quantity of crushed stone has already been accumulated there.

Power for the work at the dam is furnished by air compressors and at the stone crusher by gasoline engine.

In excavating for the core wall a six inch bubbling spring of the finest water was struck and it is necessary to keep a pump running continually in order to keep the water in the ditch down so as not to interfere with the work.

In the two contracts for laying the pipe through the towns of Bozrah and Lebanon good progress is being made. The contractor on the Lebanon section has reached a point west of the old rubber mill site where the pipe line leaves the main highway and strikes off through the fields towards the reservoir site. The contractor on the section in Bozrah is approaching close to the village of Fitchville.

PAYS FINE IN LIEU OF SERVING JAIL SENTENCE

Delifa St. John of Jewett City pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, when presented in court Thursday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby. He was fined $200 and costs and given a jail sentence of 30 days, execution of judgment being suspended for one year.

St. John was unable to pay his court bill and Judge Libby gave him the alternative of securing the money from friends or going to jail for 30 days, the fine being remitted. Later in the day the fine was paid.

St. John was arrested Wednesday night by Constable Lucius Fenton who found him asleep in an automobile in a Taftville garage, somewhat the worse for partaking of liquor. Companions of St. John had also been drinking but they were not held.

James Hackney, Alex Weaver and Patrick Cox, employes of the Max Gordon & Son Corp., who were alleged to have stolen 25 pounds of junk from the yard of the employer were given their freedom after a hearing had been held in chambers. The principal testimony against the men was given by a boy who is a subject for the juvenile court. He picked them out as the men who sometimes hurl Emery Card, did the pitching for the married men while "Pep" Randall stopped them in back of the plate. The singleites used Leo Maynard, Joe Barry and Doc Schwartz in the box but to no avail, while Fran Diffley did the backstopping. Following the turmoil and excitement of the baseball battle the field events were put on.

The quoit championship was won by Mr. Parent and Georgie Engler in a manner that brought forth repeated burst of applause from the huge gallery that witnessed the match. Their prize was a box of cigars.

In the 100 yard open event, Emory Card outran his field with little difficulty and crossed the line as fresh as a daisy. This was not the case in the next event, the 100 yard fat man's race which was eventually won by Doc P. A Schwartz who just barely finished, Roger Worthington who led the field until the last 20 yards was disqualified for rolling instead of running. Mr. Card won a camera for his prize and a razor was awarded to the dentist.

Fran Diffley was in fine form in the shot-put and hurled the 20-pound weight as he would a baseball, thereby winning for himself a bowl of delightful shaving cream.

The candle race, a distinctive novelty of the program, was won by Ray Boynton, who received a bill fold as his reward.

The team of Card and Shaffer easily won the three-legged race without the slightest opposition while Boynton and Ferra came in second, after a close race with the remainder of the field.

The tug of war team captained by Doc Schwartz was eventually declared the winner of the tug-of-war event. After struggling, straining, slipping and pulling, the Schwartz huskies finally pulled the lighter team captained by Lew Oat all over the lot. Thus ended the sports events for the day.

With the conclusion of the sports the gong notifying the contestants and spectators that the bake was ready sounded and here was a grand rush for the dining hall of the casino. Here were spread three tables and the following menu was served.

Steamed Clams
Butter Sauce Crackers
Tomatoes Cucumbers
Broiled Mackerel and Swordfish
Boiled Potatoes Broiled Lobster
Muskmelon Watermelon
Cigars Gingerale

Following the bake the druggists and doctors returned to their various places of business and offices which had been closed during the afternoon. The gingerale for the bake was the gift of Jos. Conner and Sons and the cigars the gift of The Madden Bros.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, July 15—(AP)—John Liuoly of Mansfield Center was arrested tonight by Officer Marrotte for driving under the influence of liquor after his Overland touring car had collided with and damaged the Hupmobile coupe owned by John S. Collins of 195 Jackson street on Main street. Liuoly will appear in court Friday morning.

POOR WEATHER HITS THURSDAY HALF HOLIDAY

Thursday afternoon marked the first of the summer half holidays for local clerks and although the day was far from pleasant the employes enjoyed themselves at nearby beaches, lakes or at home. The summer half holidays on Thursdays continue through July and August and thus afford a chance each week for the employes to get away from their work for a half day.

The Willimantic Savings Institute has filed with the secretary of state the certificate of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company of Maryland that it continues in force the bonds of officials of the institute as follows: N. Each bond is for $10,000 and the premium on each $30.

MEDICAL MEN ENJOY SIXTH ANNUAL OUTING

With about 100 present, the doctors and druggists held their sixth annual outing and clambake at Happyland on Poquetanuck Cove Thursday afternoon and spent one of the most enjoyable afternoons of sport imaginable. One attendant remarked that the affair lacked only a delegation from the undertakers to make it a gathering of the triple alliance. Although the day was somewhat inclement it did not dampen the enthusiasm of the medicos and the pill-rollers and, as the country scribes say "a good time was had by all."

Sports and eats stood out prominently on the program of activities arranged by the two-man committee, Roger "Slim" Worthington and Howard "Pep" Randall. The caretakers of of the community's health arrived at the grove shortly after 1 o'clock where a delicious snowder prepared by Teddy Schultz and his staff awaited them. They fell to with a zeal that gave no evidence of indigestion.

Following the chowder the married men proceeded to demonstrate that matrimony is not detrimental to good baseball for they handed a neat 24 to 18 trimming to the men who consider themselved fortunate in escaping the noose by bachelorhood. It is right that they sometimes hurl Emery Card, did the pitching for the married men while "Pep" Randall stopped them in back of the plate. The singleites used Leo Maynard, Joe Barry and Doc Schwartz in the box but to no avail, while Fran Diffley did the backstopping. Following the turmoil and excitement of the baseball battle the field events were put on.

BRAKEMAN FELL FROM FREIGHT CAR ROOF

While engaged in tightening the brakes at the wheel on the roof of a freight car in the lower yard of the New Haven road Thursday evening, George Leipold, brakeman on the switching crew, suddenly lost his balance and fell a distance of 15 feet to the tracks below. He landed on his right side, breaking a small bone in the elbow, tearing a ligament and wrenching his shoulder.

Dr. William T. Driscoll was called and treated the man's injuries and sent him to his home on Hedge avenue. At first it was feared that Mr. Leipold had suffered internal injuries but an examination failed to establish that this had taken place.

The accident happened when Mr. Leipold's gloves slipped from the brake wheel, causing him to pitch headfirst over the side of the car. The accident was not noticed by other members of the crew.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. CHARLES W. MORSE

BATH, Me., July 15.—(AP)—Death and the law entered the household of Charles W. Morse, former financier and shipbuilder, almost simultaneously today.

Mrs. Morse, who 25 years ago sold her jewelry and household goods to satisfy claims against her husband, died suddenly at the home of Mr. Morse's sister. A short time later came word from New York that pleas of illness and infirmities would not avail Mr. Morse in his effort to refrain from pleading to a five year old indictment charging him with using the mails to defraud.

Mr. Morse arrived here from New York Saturday. His wife, apparently in good health, came yesterday. She suffered two strokes of apoplexy this morning and was unable to recover from the second. While Mr. Morse's sister would not let interviewers see her brother, she told them the death of his wife had been a great shock to him.

ST. SWITHIN PROMISES RAINY SPELL AHEAD

St. Swithin's day has come and gone and, if one is to believe the legend, farmers need not worry for fear that rain will not fail. A rainy St. Swithin's day is supposed to mean rain for forty consecutive days. If the legend is true beach resorts may be expected to be closed from now on, for the season thus far has been anything but productive of income, and, if rain is to fall for the next forty days, it is figured that proprietors of shore concessions will soon come to the conclusion to call this season a flat failure.

One local man commenting on the coming of rain Thursday, put it wisely when he said, "Let's hope old St. Swithy lets it rain enough to satisfy some of us and be pleasant enough to satisfy the rest of us, so that the whole of us may be happy come it rain or shine."

WHITE LEGHORN PEN NOW IN LEAD AT STORRS

After leading all pens in the Storrs Egg laying contest for a period of 26 weeks, the Rhode Island Red entry of John Z. LaBelle from Ballouville, Conn., was in the 36th week of competition passed by the White Leghorn entry of Toivonen Leghorn Farm from Girard, Pa., which has gone to the front with a score of 1691 eggs. This is only eight eggs more than the total lay of the LaBelle entry, but the lead will be increased at the present rate or lay in the two pens. The Toivonen Farm pullets though now in first place, are by no means secure in their position. Two other Leghorn entries owned by Dudley Poultry Farm from Webster, Mass., and R. W. Colman from Medina, N. Y., give promise of making things interesting for the Pennsylvania entry. LaBelle's Reds have slackened their production considerably, and at their present rate of lay will not threaten the security of the Toivonen Farm position.

Production for the entire contest increased again during the 36th week, the 1400 pullets shelling out 5242 eggs, or 54 per cent. This is 91 eggs more than last week, and 188 eggs more than the lay for the corresponding week a year ago. In the first 35 weeks of competition, the contest flock laid a grand total of 166,318 eggs. This is an average of 119 eggs per bird.

A pen of White Leghorns entered by R. W. Colman from Medina, N. Y., made the best score for the week with a lay of 60 eggs. Following close behind to take second place was the Barred Rock entry of R. W. Davis & Sons from Rockland, Me., with a score of 59 eggs. Third place was taken by the White Leghorn entry of Dudley Poultry farm from Webster, Mass., with a production of 56 eggs. The White Leghorn entrees of Wiligerodt Ors., tied for fourth place with a lay of 55 eggs each.

Two changes took place among the leading pens in each of the principal varieties, in the White Wyandotte class, the entry of Thomas H. Matteson Bros. from Red Bank, N. J., and Harison's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, from Davisville, R. I., went up into the third position, displacing the entry of B. A. Barber from Mazon, Ill. In the Barred Rock class, the entry of Edgar Stoughton from Wapping, Conn., was passed by the pens owned by R. W. Davis & Sons from Rockland, Me., and W. H. B. Kent from Cazenovia, N. Y., which now stand second and third respectively in the class.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

WHITE WYANDOTTES

The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn.	1427
Winlay White Wyandottes, Mystic, Conn.	1405

RAIN CAUSES BERLENBACH-DELANEY BOUT TO BE POSTPONED TO TONIGHT

NEW YORK, July 15—(AP)—Rain late today quenched for at least 24 hours the finest of enthusiasm that had risen about the Paul Berlenbach-Jack Delaney lightheavyweight championship contest, scheduled for tonight.

Threatening clouds hovered over Ebbetts Field in Brooklyn, scene of the conflict, throughout the day but promoters declared that only a cloudburst could prevent hostilities. After long hours of apprehension the "cloudburst" came just under the shadows of evening. In half an hour, the seats around the ring were awash.

A few intrepid fans had gathered in the arena before the downpour came, rushing for the low priced seats. They were notified that their ticket stubs would be honored tomorrow night when the program will be staged without change unless rain again interferes. In case of another postponement the fight will take place Saturday night.

Berlenbach weighed 174 1-4 at the official tests three hours before the postponement. His manager announced that some hard work had been necessary to bring him to the scales under the 175 pound limit.

Delaney, the challenger, tipped the beam at 166 1-2, six pounds under what had been predicted, and there was some surprise among his followers, although he has always made weight rather easily.

Observers believe that the postponement will be of special benefit to the champion, who appeared somewhat drawn by his last minute efforts to come under the limit. He actually has outgrown the lightheavyweight class and after the Delaney battle, according to friends, will take his fling at catchweights with Jack Dempsey Harry Wills and Gene Tunney in view.

The rest undoubtedly also will help Delaney, who has trained steadily and reports himself in the greatest condition he ever has known. But the weight difference very likely will bring the betting, hitherto favoring the challenger, down to even money.

Estimates placed Humbert J. Fugazy's loss by the postponement at about $25,000 for many employes must be carried over for another day and there are numerous other demands on the promoter's purse.

JOCKEY LANDS IN HOSPITAL AS RESULT OF FALL

Maiben was thrown to the ground as his mount, Traveller, stumbled and fell twenty yards from the finish. Frank E. Brown's Mayne continued to the wire, a winner over C. A. Marshall's Acnate, and A. T. Wilson's Etheral, the horses finishing in that order. The race, a mile and seventy-yard event for three-year-olds, was run in 1:45 1-5.

The race and track in Kentucky provided an unexpected thrill for turf followers when Carlaris, winner of the Coffroth handicap, shouldered 110 pounds through a sensational workout. Carlaris covered the half mile in :47, mile in 1:38 4-5, mile and an eighth in 1:53 2-5, and mile and a quarter in 2:11 4-5.

Uncertain, carrying 111 pounds, took the feature four-year-olds and upward at Maple Heights, Cleveland, winning as he pleased from a good field. Winnipeg, off to a bad start, trailed the field for half a mile, and then overtook all but the favorite to place second.

1000 BRIDGEPORT FANS TO ATTEND BIG FIGHT

BRIDGEPORT, July 15.—(AP)—Desires of about 1,000 fight fans to witness the Delaney-Berlenbach fight were shattered temporarily tonight at the railroad station when announcement was made that the fight had been postponed until tomorrow night. The crowd was awaiting the leaving of the special train which would have carried the fans to the scene of the fight had not the rain interfered. The special train, which was to have left the local station at 5:50 o'clock daylight saving time, had already arrived from New Haven, but its departure was held up until the last minute when word was officially received of the postponement.

Manager Gadbois will send in Zepp a speed ball pitcher, who made a great record with the Chapman Tech team of New London for several seasons. Gadbois will do the backstop work and this combination turns out to be one of the fastest batteries in New London county.

On Saturday the J. B. Martin outfit travels to the State Hospital grounds to play the first of a three game series with the Riverview club. Engaged in hauling his fish traps off Watch Hill Point recently, Capt. James O. Babcock of Avondale, caught a large pink salmon weighing about 10 pounds. Such fish are extremely rare in this vicinity. Capt. Babcock's catch is the first of its kind in years, according to seafaring men here.

Unfavorable weather Wednesday and Thursday was the cause of summer visitors at Westerly beaches remaining indoors. During the morning hours and in the afternoon the beach at Watch Hill was almost deserted, although a few hardy swimmers took their daily plunge in the surf. Summer residents who ordinarily frequent the golf links or go cruising in Little Narragansett Bay preferred to remain indoors playing bridge or listening to the radio. The first round of match play in the women's four-ball foursome at the Misquamicut Golf club was postponed on account of the rain.

Part of the name has been missing for years. Before the times of electricity a hole was cut through the name for a square oil lantern. NIANTIC

Frank Clark, 75, who died suddenly at his home in East Main street Wednesday morning about 6:30 arose at his usual hour and was preparing to go to his day's work at F. A. Beckwith's livery establishment on Grand street. He stated to members of his family he was feeling fine. He went to an adjoining outbuilding and as he had not returned in a certain length of time his son Frank went out to look for him and found him dead in the building. It is thought that death was due to heart disease. He was born in Lyme, Dec. 25, 1850, the son of George and Adeline Clark. The family moved to Niantic when he was ten years of age. During his early life he was one of the young men who went out from Niantic to the fishing banks. He was also employed as a clerk in a grocery store. About 25 years ago he entered the employ of F. A. Beckwith. For a period of 20 years, he drove the stage coach between Pine Grove and the Niantic railrod station carrying passengers and the U. S. mails. Regardless of weather, he made his trips regularly. He was known to many travelers going to and from Pine Grove during the summer seasons.

The deceased was the oldest living member of Crystal lodge, No. 88, I. O. O. F., of Lyme. At the cemetery the Odd Fellows will have charge of the burial. He is survived by his widow two sons, Frank, Jr., and Harry Clark. He was a lover of flowers especially of dahlias, and in later years had one of the best dahlia gardens in this locality with a wide variety of blooms.

USING THE EASIEST WAY OUT

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

I sometimes think that a mighty long step would have been taken towards the millennium if everybody would observe one simple, practical common-sense rule, and Put Things Back Where He Found Them.

Put them back where he found them and put them back as he found them. That last is co-essential with the first.

We've all heard the story of the neighbor's boy who came returning a basket with the handles torn off and the bottom punched through, saying, "Here's yer basket and pop wants to know when you git it mended, he's he kin borry it again!"

One real reason why the old farmers made good on the very farms which their grandsons can't make pay taxes is that the old fellows put in their time and strength working the farms. Their descendants put in about half their time hunting for tools some one has mislaid, or having them repaired, where some one has broken them.

Don't laugh at that and think it a joke; it's a serious if not solemn fact.

If you had some kind of a "punch-omeater" attached to you that would automatically register the steps you took and the time you spent hunting after stray tools, I'll bet that you'd be surprised at what a year would total up.

How many times, when you wanted to drive a nail, have you had to go all over the shop and the house and the barns and the sheds hunting the hammer, and then fall back on a cobble-stone to pound the nail in with?

How often, when a wire has got loose on the fence, have you vainly searched high and low for the box of staples, and finally been compelled to use a ten-penny nail?

How often, when you've taken down the old scythe to cut a little grass or a few weeds around the back-door step, have you discovered that somebody had broken a sizable "nick" out of the edge in one place, and drawn all the rest across a stone, and then hung it up without putting it back in shape or even telling you that it wouldn't cut soft butter?

How often have your cows got out of pasture and into your own or a neighbor's crops, because some one had broken down a fence climbing over it, or had neglected to put up the old bars?

How often have you been called out of bed by some motorist who has run out of gas because too careless to notice how much he had before starting with a plea for a gallon to carry him on to the next filling station? How many time have you fussed and fiddled drawing or siphoning some out of your own car? How many times has he said: "I'll return this the very next time I'm passing?" And how many times has he actually returned so much as a single drop?

I recall how, several years back, I got out the cultivator to go through my sprouting corn. I took off the hoes, which had been used last the previous season, and started to put on the scratch-teeth. One was missing. A sedulous two-hour search failed to disclose it. An appeal to Hired Man Hank, who had used the tool last, failed to stir his recollection as to what might have become of it. This was before the days of autos and I had to hitch up and drive ten miles to get a new tooth. A month later, hoeing the potatoes where corn had been the preceding season, I turned up the lost tooth. Then Hank at last remembered that the tooth had dropped off while he was working the year before. Half broken. But he was practically through with the job—had only a row and a half to go over,—and had made this remnant, after a fashion, with the remaining teeth. "I meant to go back and pick it up," he said, "but somehow I must 'a forgotten."

I don't believe there's a farmer in New England who doesn't waste from one to three weeks every year of perfectly good time that might have been devoted to useful and productive work, hunting for things which he needs to work with.

It's not only so in farming but in other occupations. I have to go occasionally to a garage to get some minor repair or adjustment to my sturdy Ford. I don't recall a single case of the sort where the garageman has been able to put his hand at once on the tools he needed for the job. Either they've been dropped wherever the last job was done, or some one has borrowed them and hasn't brought them back. He usually has to spend more time hunting up tools than he does using them, once they have been collected.

I've got altogether too much regard for my own peace of mind to take any side in the discussion as to whether the younger generation is worse than the older. My hair is also getting thin and I don't want to run the risk of having any more of it pulled out by enraged partisans of either side.

But I'm going to risk the hornets in so far as to say, right out loud, that the generation which seems to be taking charge of things just now doesn't appear to have even the remotest idea of any distinction between meum and tuum, — —between mine and thine, or, if an occasional individual does recognise the theory, any regard for its practice.

They're all looking for The Easiest Way Out of whatever predicament they find themselves in, and don't care a tinker's dam how much trouble or loss they cause the other fellow in taking that way.

The man who borrows a couple of gallons of gasoline and "forgets" to return it; the man who borrows a hoe for "just a few minutes" and keeps it till the tillage season is over; the man who borrows a saw "jest to cut off a fence-post," and leaves it for a week in the grass for dew and rain to rust and pit; the man who strolls into a garage or blacksmith-shop and borrows a wrench or a drill or a die to beat the mechanic out of a job:—such men are first cousins if not twin-brothers of those who "borrow" hens from your poultry-yard on dark nights, or sneak the handkerchief from your pocket if a corner sticks out.

I recall an ancient verse which sets forth that little drops of water make the ocean and little grains of sand the continents. There was also once a saying to the effect that as the twig was bent the tree was inclined. And another asserting that big rivers grew from small rills.

It is really the little things that make up life. It's the little habits which form character. The man who would rather go without some comfort or convenience than sponge on his neighbor may never get to be president. But, on the other hand, he runs a microscopically small risk of ever turning into a hen-thief or a burglar. Very few felons start, full-fledged, on their career of crime. They begin it by small "borrowings" and petty pilferings and work up to Wethersfield by gradual degrees.

It isn't safe to touch, on the question of religious education. Whatever one may say, he's sure to rub somebody's fur the wrong way. But it seems too bad that moral education and moral training should be abandoned. There is a fairly general agreement as to the fundamentals of good morals.

Stealing is stealing, for example, and is admitted to be reprehensible by Jews and Gentiles, by Protestants and Catholics, by fundamentalists and modernists. It seems as if this truth might be taught in homes and schools and everywhere else in life without endangering anybody's religious orthodoxy. But it isn't any more,—at least not effectively and effectually. There's a big and a growing class which appears to think that the only kind of stealing is that defined and made a crime by statute law. Yet, as a matter of morals, the man who borrows your basket and doesn't return it in as good shape as he took it, is stealing as truly as if he robbed your hen-roost and ate up the resultant chicken-pie.

The roadside fence along one of my low meadows is a relic of the old stake-and-rails worm fence days. Every spring from five to 50 autoists get stuck in the mud on that bit of road. Invariably, they go to that fence, pull out the stiffest old rail they can find, and try to pry their cars out. Usually they break the rail. Anyway, whether broken or whole, it is always left in the road when they're finally extricated. I never yet have known one to be replaced where found. This is not only taking my property without permission or compensation, it is also adding another obstruction to bother others who must travel the road. "What does an old broken rail amount to?" is their attitude. Yet, every season, they compel me to hunt up and replace from five to 50 rails,—themselves too lazy or too indifferent to replace each a single one!

Of course, a few old rails are comparatively unimportant. But even so insignificant a matter as this indicates a state of mind which is ominous. To take another man's belongings for one's own use, without permission, without replacement, and without even a "thank you," may or may not be stealing as defined by statute law. But it's an offense against the moral law and its commission shows very clearly that the offender either doesn't know good morals when he sees them, or doesn't care a hoot for them so long as he gets what he wants.

I'm not going to be drawn into any purely academic discussion as to whether or no the standard of public morality is being lowered from what it used to be. But I will stand on the open, manifest and depressing fact that public morals in this field where we've been browsing are lower than they ought to be.

And also lower than they would be if every child in the land were trained, at home and in school, to feel that any unauthorized taking of that which is another's is not only wrong, but unmanly and mean.

Danny Meadow Mouse Gets a Bad Fright.

Sometimes an unfamiliar sight
Will give the truly brave a fright.
—Old Mother Nature.

It seems to be natural for all kinds of people to be afraid of things with which they are not familiar. Anything which appears strange is very apt to give folks a fright. It is simply fear of the unknown. Though Danny Meadow Mouse didn't know it, he was going to have many a fright at the seashore, for there were very few things familiar to him there.

The moon had come up and the beach was almost as light as by day. The tide had gone out. Danny could hear the gentle lapping of little waves on the distant beach. "It is time to go out," said Jimmy Skunk. "You follow me and I'll show you things you have never dreamed of."

So Jimmy led the way out from under the bathhouse and Danny Meadow Mouse scurried along just behind Jimmy. He didn't want to get too near Jimmy, but he didn't dare to get very far from Jimmy. He felt both unsafe and safe at the same time, which is a very funny way to feel. "What are you going to look for?" he asked timidly.

"First I'm going to look for something to eat," replied Jimmy Skunk. "There is almost always something to eat along the beach after the tide goes out. There's always dead fish, if nothing else."

Danny thought to himself that he didn't care about fish, but he wasn't impolite enough to say so. Jimmy led the way down on the hard sand. All along the sand were rolls of seaweed which had been washed up by the water when the tide was high. Jimmy began to poke about in these. He was looking for a dead fish. While he was doing this, Danny was doing a little exploring on his own account, though taking care not to get too far away. Suddenly he was confronted by a terrible creature. Never in all his life had he seen such a thing. He thought it was a spider, but the biggest spider that he had ever dreamed of. It seemed to be looking at him with two curious pop-eyes. On each side were four queer legs that were joined and looked as if they were stiff between the joints. In front it held up two great jointed legs ending in wicked-looking pincers. That is, Danny called them legs because he didn't know what else to call them, although it did not use them as legs at all. It really used them more as arms. And the pincers were used like fingers. It was green spotted with yellow and it wore a shell, just the same as Spotty the Turtle back in the Smiling Pool, only a different kind of a shell. Suddenly it moved and it moved with surprising quickness. But instead of going straight ahead, it went sidewise. It ran sidewise right at Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny squealed right out. If this was a spider, it was the most awful spider he had ever seen. Besides, it had a shell and great pinching claws. Danny took to his heels and he ran right straight to where Jimmy Skunk was poking over the seaweed.

"What's the matter?" demanded Jimmy.

Danny couldn't find his tongue. All he could do was to point at that dreadful thing. Jimmy took two or three steps toward it and away it scuttled, going sidewise very fast.

"Did you ever see such a dreadful spider?" gasped Danny when Jimmy returned.

Jimmy Skunk laughed right out. "Bless your heart, Danny," said he, "that wasn't a spider; that was a crab. That was a Green Crab. Did you see him run away from me? Probably he's hiding right now under a stone. I almost always find that fellow up on the beach after the tide has gone out. Look out for those big pincers of his, Danny. He can't bite, but he certainly can pinch. I suppose you'll laugh at me again if I tell you that he is a fish. Of course, he isn't a real fish, but he belongs to what they call the shellfish. I have heard say that he is one of the highest forms of crustaceen, whatever that thing may be."

(Copyright, 1926, by T. W. Burgess.)

The next story: "Danny Learns More About Crabs."

"What are you going to look for?" he asked timidly

WHITTIER'S FRITCHIE SOME THINK A LEGEND

FREDERICK, Md., July 15 (AP)—Even though controversy may rage over John Greenleaf Whittier's poetic account of her deeds, Barbara Fritchie's personality left an imprint on this historic town as no other ever did.

From the idealism of the massively simple granite monument, which marks her grave in Mount Olivet cemetery, to the plate bolted to the rail of the West Patrick street bridge over the town creek, her name descends triumphant into the everyday walks of life.

It is emblazoned on a gasoline filling station. A chocolate shop also bears it. So does a soft drink and a sausage stand.

Yet doubt of her authenticity, which has split Fredericktown into two well defined camps, upon occasion has made itself felt.

Several years ago, with the construction of a new community hotel, suggestion that it carry her name was met with unveiled hostility. Her legend was branded a fraud. In compromise, the ranks of the illustrious of a later generation were scanned, and Francis Scott Key filled the breach.

Some historians generally have been prone to consider the Barbara Fritchie tale as chiefly a figment of Whittier's imagination, albeit most deftly contrived.

History does not confirm that Jackson led his troops through Frederick. He did, however, pay a visit to the Presbyterian manse on West Second street. He and his party then went down Bentz street to Patrick street and hence out of town—past Barbara's house, it is true—but seemingly some distance behind the main body of his troops. Jackson also appears to have been in Frederick four days preceding the flag incident.

On the morning of September 10 the Confederates broke camp, and moved westward, going out West Patrick street past the Fritchie house.

A version of the story, said to have been told by Barbara herself to her niece, Miss Caroline Ebert—none of Barbara's relatives witnessed the flag incident—sets forth that Mrs. Fritchie, near her 96th birthday, took her silk flag from the family bible and went to her window to welcome what she thought were northern soldiers. An officer rode up and asked that the flag be given him, but she refused, and commented on his gray uniform.

He left, to return with other officers and men, Barbara still standing her ground. One of the men, it is related called out "shoot her head off!" Turning angrily, an officer thought by some to have been Stonewall Jackson, shouted:

"If you harm a hair of her head, I'll shoot you down like a dog!" Barbara kept her flag.

Jackson, it is conceivable, may have had time to join his troops after his visit to the manse.

Miss Ebert related the story to a cousin, who told a neighbor, Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth. Mrs. Southworth wrote Whittier about it, and the poem evolved. Relatives disclaim that the old lady snatched her flag from the staff under fire and engaged in Whittier's dialogue with the officer who ordered it shot down.

SUMMER PROVING GOOD SEASON FOR RADIO "DX"

CHICAGO, July 15—(AP)—Summer time, long classed as a period in which distance radio reception was a fact in name only, slowly is bringing about a change in opinion among listening experts.

The present summer season, but a few weeks old, has been productive of much better reception than was all of last winter when night after night local stations were all that could be received with any satisfaction.

Numerous theories have been advanced for the change. Among them was the statement that the diminishing of sunspots, so much in evidence last winter, has removed a magnetic blanket that tended to smother radio signals when coming from a greater distance than 15 miles. Since the sun began its southward journey, a noticeable improvement in reception has been observed. Distance stations that could not be logged last winter, with no local transmitters in operation, can now be brought in with a powerful nearby station functioning. On local silent periods this class of reception equals if it does not surpass the so-called ideal conditions of the winter.

Low powered transmitters, mainly operating on the lower wave-lengths where the inter-station interference is the greatest, were most difficult to bring in last winter. Now they tumble in almost on top of one another.

One of the greatest drawbacks to the summer reception is the increased amount of static, attributed largely to thunderstorms. While static is ever in evidence, both in winter and summer, it dies out enough between summer thunderstorms so as to leave many periods wherein conditions are as nearly ideal as could be hoped for.

Another disturbance known as "fading," wherein the signals come and go with varying intensity, this summer has been less of a bar to reception than the fading of last winter.

ROUND FACES STAND BEST CHANCE IN MOVIE WORK

CULVER CITY, Cal., July 14 (AP)—Is your face round?

Then your chance of success in the movies is greater than if your face were long, if you are one of the vast army of people whose ambitions lie along this direction.

The perfect camera face must be round, say Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer experts. It makes little difference how exquisite the coloring or how perfect the features, the contour of the face actually decides one's fate in the movies.

The color of the hair and the eyes does not matter. There are just as many blue-eyed girls on the screen as there are brown-eyed ones. Norma Shearer, Eleanor Boardman, Lillian Gish and May McAvoy are only a few who have blue eyes, yet each one is a distinct photograph type.

Should the features be regular? That is a disputed point. Many stars and players have capitalized certain defects. A pug nose, a crooked eyebrow, a very deep dimple has often characterized some star or player and made her more interesting than if she had absolutely perfect features.

A long narrow face, it is pointed out, is never effective on the screen, because the lights serve to accentuate this longness. The face does not need to be plump, but it must be rounded in contour. Sally O'Neil, Gertrude Olmsted, Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, the newer faces on the screen, all have passed the acid test of screen tests because of their well modeled, rounded faces.

PHILIPPINE CONSTABULARY FINDS MOROS TROUBLESOME

MANILA, P. I., July 15—(AP)—The Philippine constabulary, the police force of the islands, numbers 6,225 enlisted men and 396 officers. The annual report of Brigadier General Rafael Crame, head of the force, shows 2,410 constabulary in Mindanao and Sulu, where the Moros are most troublesome.

It is easier to originate an idea than it is to get a capitalist interested in it.

COAST GUARD CREW USED THEIR GOVERNMENT BOAT AS RUM RUNNER

NEW YORK, July 15.— (AP) —How a coast guard crew turned their government boat into a rum runner in order to "pick up some Christmas money" was told in court today.

Paul Louis Crim, one of the 16 men indicted with William V. Dwyer in connection with the activities of a $40,000,000 liquor ring, suddenly appeared as a government witness in the trial of Dwyer and nine others.

Trial of Crim had been severed because the district attorney told the court when the case was called, Crim was a fugitive and had not yet been arrested. The district attorney explained today that Crim had unexpectedly given himself up and had immediately been called to testify against his alleged former conspirators.

Under examination Crim stated that he had been a member of the crew of the coast guard cutter CG203, of which Capt. Edward Gallagher, another defendant, was in command. He testified that money was received from Dwyer for having the cutter watch some of his boats but, that later he was told there would be more money in it if the coast guard men would consent to running some of the liquor themselves instead of merely guarding it.

Crim said that after getting Captain Gallagher's consent he put the proposition before the crew and all agreed. It was just before Christmas, 1925, Crim said, and "Christmas money" was desired. The first trip of the CG203 as a rum runner he said was to Ellis B, lying in rum row 35 miles off Ambrose light. He said 700 cases of liquor were transported to a Christopher street dock. Crim testified $700 was paid for the job.

The next trip of the CG203 was on New Year's eve. Another cargo of liquor was brought from rum row to New York. Shortly after this Crim was discharged from the coast guard service. He then asked Dwyer to give him a job. Dwyer put him to work unloading liquor at a dock, Crim testified.

From longshoreman of whiskey cases, Crim testified, he was promoted to a job as private chauffeur for Dwyer, and on one occasion he followed a cargo of liquor as it left the dock in a motor truck.

"Where was it taken?"

"To a cuting plant," Crim replied.

"What's that?"

"One of those places where they make three cases of whiskey out of one," Crim answered.

Crim then told of an accident in which Dwyer was "almost killed" while he was Dwyer's chauffeur. He said he did not see Dwyer for some time after that, but one day Dwyer came to tell him that "there have been some indictments and you had better hide some place until we see what happens."

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain

How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

SURVEY OF PRODUCTION AND MARKETING IN N. E.

Members of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut have received a letter from the department of commerce, accompanied by a questionnaire which calls for information in connection with a survey which the department is making of marketing and production conditions in New England.

The New England council, through its research committee, of which W. B. Knight of the Southern New England Telephone company is the Connecticut member is co-operating with the department of commerce in the conduct of this survey and the association hopes that all its members will reply promptly and give the desired information in as complete form as possible.

The council has felt that it could advance no program of any appreciable scope for the greater development of New England's resources without first having a very exact understanding of present conditions and under the direction of the department of commerce experts it should be possible to make analyses from the data secured in the survey, which will be very valuable to all business interests in Connecticut and New England. The entire purpose of the survey is to develop and foster trade for New England and, as members will readily realize, it will fall short of its purpose if complete data is not submitted by all to whom the form has been sent.

All information submitted is entirely confidential so far as it affects any individual concern, and while the form seems formidable, it has been reduced as much as possible without sacrificing completeness.

CITIES' WATER SUPPLIES SAFE FOR VACATIONISTS

Every town and city served by the water companies of Connecticut is a safe place to spend a vacation without fear of a contaminated water supply but on the other hand Connecticut people going out of the state for vacations should be especially sure that the place where they are going has a supply of pure water, is the advice of the Connecticut committee on public service information. Connecticut people having become accustomed to the efficiency and perfection of the water supply in this state are apt to drink the water in other places without thought of its source and are also apt to suffer the consequences.

Drinking from streams and brooks should be tabooed by all vacationists, according to the committee, for although the supply may seem to be clear and pure, it may nevertheless have been sullied by the location of a pig sty, a latrine, or other like things several miles further upstream. Campers who intend to use water from such sources are advised to boil the water before drinking it and to subject themselves to a typhoid inoculation before going on the trip.

As a precaution against endangering the Connecticut water supply, the committee urges all citizens of this state to immediately report to police authorities any campers or picnickers who are discovered disposing of garbage or other waste materials in Connecticut streams or brooks, for it is very possible, although the point of this action may be many miles from the nearest reservoir, that the stream empties directly or indirectly into the public water supply of some town or city.

If the hens form a trust they will probably try to control the egg plant.

POETRY

Faith, Hope and Charity

Faith, like an anchor everywhere,
Saves souls from drifting to despair,
And, like a beacon on earth's sod,
Encourages our trust in God.

Hope, like the sunshine, cheers our way
Amid doubt's shadow, day by day,
And, like a rainbow in the sky,
It shines when storms of life pass by.

Love—Charity—is always kind,
It blesses human heart and mind,
It treasures truth and suffers long,
Rejoices not in what is wrong.

Faith, Hope and Love, a trinity—
How great and grand is charity!
—Charles Nevers Holmes.

A young girl, proud of her new dress, put it on and proceeded to admire herself in the mirror. Her father admonished her for her conceit.
"D'ye no' ken," he demanded, "that ye're just as Nature made ye?"
"An' did Nature mak ye as well?" asked the girl.
"Aye, of course."
"Then, d'ye no' think that they're making a better job o' us now, faither?"—Tit Bits.

PETITION WITH 2,800 SIGNITURES FILED AT NEW LONDON THURSDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 15.—The petition, the circulation of which was started a long time ago, requesting that a special election be called by the city council for the purpose of permitting the voters of New London to decide by ballot whether the affairs of the city continue to be conducted under the present city manager form of government, or under the former municipal form of government, was filed by Matthew Keenan, Winthrop street, and Peter Loiacano, Connecticut avenue, two of the most energetic of the sponsors for a return to municipal government. City Clerk Moran has ten days within which to determine the validity of the signatures and the council has 30 days thereafter in which to fix the date for the election. It is mandatory on the part of the city to call the election, provided a sufficient number of signatures is affixed to the petition.

Following the filing of the petition it was disclosed that the petition might be adjudged invalid, for 225 of the signatures may be so considered and possibly thrown out. These signatures are those obtained by Elmer E. Kenerson, a former alderman and at present employed by the city as caretaker at Riverside park. The signatures obtained by Mr. Kenerson were attached to the petition about two years ago when the first step was taken to cause the abolition of the present form of government, but since that time Mr. Kenerson obtained employment by the city and decided then to desist from further circulation of the petition. However, as the petition has approximately 2,200 signatures attached and but 2,040 signatures are necessary to make the instrument valid, the throwing out of the Kenerson signatures will not affect the validity of the petition. It is claimed, it is probable that the election will be held about the middle of September.

BOODRIS MAY GET BOND THROUGH INDEMNITY CO.

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 15.—It is reported here that an indemnity company will provide a bond for the appearance of Athos Boodris, charged with having set fire to the Sea Food restaurant in the Twomey building at 52 Bank street a week ago or more. The bond is in the sum of $10,000 and the money will be supplied from Fitchburg, Mass., where, it is claimed Boodris has that amount of cash and security. If the bond is given, the accused man will have liberty till the superior court comes in for the September term. His alleged associates in the crime, his partners in the business as restaurant keepers, Gregory Pappas and Thomas Stavros, are now at liberty under bail of $1,200 each.

William B. James, a sailor on the United States ship Bushnell, who drove a Ford automobile on the sidewalk on Bank street about midnight of the 5th of July, escaped the severe penalty his offense might have brought to him when he was dealt leniently with this morning. James ran down Winfield Kirby, a Waterford farmer, and injured him so that Kirby was in the hospital a week or more under treatment for his wounds. It was represented today when the case came before the court by adjournment, that James was subject to fainting spells and was so affected when his car got beyond his control and went upon the sidewalk twice. The first time the Ford climbed the walk it ran down a boy with a bicycle, damaging the machine considerably. Then the "Lizzie" ran back into the street and James directed it back upon the sidewalk where it ran down Mr. Kirby. James had visited Kirby last evening, the former told the court, and had effected a settlement of his hospital bills and compensated him for his injuries. He had also agreed to pay for the damages to the bicycle. With this understanding the court imposed only a fine of $50, and ordered that James pay the costs of trial. So he got out of a bad predicament pretty well. He was fortunate that he did not inflict fatal injuries upon Kirby for the latter suffered injuries to the head, arm and body.

Halstead Ayrton, a youth, was charged with throwing firecrackers into the Rondamansky store on outer Willetta avenue last night, thus creating a breach of the peace that is not to be permitted at any time or place. Ayrton admitted his offense, affording Judge Crandall, who was on the bench an opportunity to give him some good advice. He told Ayrton what he might expect if he offended again. Circumstances led Judge Crandall to suspended judgment in the case today, but he was quite disposed not to do so.

That the gypsies, more especially the female members of the gang, who operated in Groton about six weeks ago, are continuing their acts of thieving about the state is evidenced by the request of the police of Stratford to the New London police that two women of the band be arrested should the gang appear in New London. It is claimed that the women stole $300 from a Stratford merchant today, the time-worn scheme of the gypsies in pretending to tell the fortune of the victim being used to obtain the money. It is hardly likely that the gypsies, who are traveling in three Cadillac touring cars, will appear in New London for when two of the gang were arrested in Groton following their stealing about $75 from two New York youths, they were arrested by state police, Groton barracks, and fined in the Groton town court. In imposing the fines, Judge Cornelius C. Costello ordered the band to leave the borough and stay away.

An automobile operated by Joseph Amoral, Broad street extension, Waterford, in passing through Rosemary street this morning, collided with a team as the latter vehicle emerged from Terrace avenue. Mrs. Helen Pelecki, Fire street, Oakdale, driver of the team, was thrown to the ground, but escaped injury, other than sustaining a few minor bruises.

About a score of New Londoners are in Brooklyn tonight, where they went for the purpose of witnessing the Berlenbach-Delaney title fight which has been postponed to Friday.

Miss Virginia Latham of Willetta avenue; Mrs. Gordon Detrick, 19 Crouch street; Mrs. Raymond Green and infant son, 13 Mountain avenue; Master Curtis Olson, Long Island; Miss Fannie Karakula, Pequot avenue, and Mrs. Owen Miner and infant daughter, 153 Smith street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Mary Hicks, of 42 Mercer street, died this morning at Home Memorial hospital, where she had been a patient but a few days. Mrs. Hicks was the widow of William H. Hicks, for many years janitor of Nathan Hale grammar school, and is survived by a daughter, Mrs. William Crooker.

Mrs. Bertha Ray, widow of John Ray, employed for a long time as housekeeper by William H. Harrison, 29 Chappell street, died at her home this morning, after a lingering illness.

The funeral of Mrs. Johanna Mansfield, widow of Patrick Mansfield, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St Joseph's church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Luke Fitzsimons, assistant pastor. Attorney William P. Leary sang "Face to Face" and "Nearer My God to Thee" at the close of the mass. The bearers were Thomas F. Dorsey, Jr., Edward T. Corcoran, Joseph F. Corcoran, Michael L. O'Connell, Thomas C. Dillon and Joseph St. John. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

An inmate of the State Farm for Women, Niantic, who has been a patient at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital but a day or two, escaped from the hospital late last night. As soon as the woman was missed by a ward attendant the police were notified. A short time later Patrolman Frank Philopena detected the woman on State street and had her returned to the hospital.

Edward Clark, a trunk juggler at the Hotel Griswold, was found fighting yesterday with a fellow, who, like Clark, was intoxicated. Clark showed a badly discolored eye and bruised face as evidence that he was in a row. He said he came from New York and yesterday was discharged so he came to New London and "had a few." Judge Crandall told him he was of the opinion that Clark had quite enough and then ordered him to keep on his route to New York.

William Goulet and John Billings were prosecuted for intoxication. They pleaded guilty and each was fined. Billings went up and Goulet paid up.

James Muirain, on the way to Worcester, tarried long enough to become drunk yesterday. He admitted it. He too was ordered to leave town or make a stay at the county jail. He chose the former.

Anthony Mugovera was charged with evasion of responsibility when his auto struck a bicycle on Main street. The parties to the accident had agreed on a settlement so the complaint against Mugovera was nolled.

Domingo Perato, a proven thief, stole clothing and discharge papers as well as other articles from a fellow Filipino, but as he has since made destitution he was allowed his freedom on payment of the costs of trial and $12 in cash to compensate for articles that are missing from the plunder.

Steward street is being macadamized from Montauk avenue to Shaw street. The improvement is a marked one. The gutters in the fifth ward were being relieved of their accumulation of rubbish today.

TWO CHINAMEN HELD FOR VIOLATING DRUG LAW

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 15. — Lee Schact and Lee Him, 119 Goldan street, were presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran this afternoon charged with violation of the Harrison act. Both Chinamen are held for trial at the next session of the United States district court, in bail of $1,000. In default of a surety both their respective bonds, Schact and Him were committed to jail.

Schact and Him were arrested this morning by Thomas E. Kenefick, of Providence, narcotic agent, and Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolmen John Clifford and John Sullivan and Captain Charles Kelley and Sergeant David Marks, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad force of special agents, in a raid on the Lincoln house where the Chinese had rooms. The officers had a tip that the Chinese were using opium and that they were distributing the drug among Chinese residents of the city. A search of the place revealed a considerable quantity of the drug, together with smoking paraphernalia. All were seized as evidence against the accused. The place raided is located but a door or two from a Chinese tea and coffee house where a number of celestials congregate. It is reported that information was supplied the raiding officers by another Chinese, who is being used as a stool pigeon. The Chinese were held prisoners at the police station throughout the night and today because none of their countrymen came to the rescue to provide a bond and this evening when their trial was fixed by their being bound over to the United States district court, a bondsman was not obtainable.

The weather has been so unfavorable this season that the business places at Ocean Beach, especially lodging houses, have lost money. One woman, a widow, who believed that she could do a profitable business at the shore resort by renting rooms and who had expended $1,000 in fitting up her place, decided to quit business today, and although her rent was paid until after Labor day, the woman would not attempt to continue business longer. All the restaurants and concessions at the beach are far behind their business of a year ago.

A hearing will take place in the probate court tomorrow afternoon for the admission of the will of Dr. Harry M. Lee, prominent physician and surgeon, whose sudden death from heart trouble, occurred three weeks ago. It is known that the physician did not possess any great wealth and the major portion of what he was possessed of at the time of his death is bequeathed to his wife.

One of the two immense shade trees on Pearl street, between Green and Bank street, has been removed by city laborers. The tree occupied a position in the sidewalk, abutting adjoining property and was removed at the request of the property owner.

An automobile owned and driven by William Hitt, 24 Greenvor street Norwich, and an automobile owned and driven by Gus Vandermaler, 93 New street, New Haven, collided this afternoon on Huntington street, corner of Church street. Both cars were slightly damaged. Traffic Officer Frank Linehan ordered Hitt to present himself in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the motor vehicle law in failing to have an operator's license in his possession. The corner where the collision occurred has been the scene of numerous accidents within the past four months.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

New Gasoline Service Station

The Point Service station, corner of Boswell Ave. and No. Main street, has been taken over by Jean Williams.

Mr. Williams is distributing the Socony Gasoline and Oils.

He will be pleased to see his many friends and assures them that they will receive nothing but quality goods and service.

Stop there for your next filling of Socony gasoline.

Breed Theatre

Tom Mix in "The Yankee Senor" will be the attraction at the Breed Theatre today and Saturday.

This is the screen version of "Conquistador," the famous novel by Katherine Fullerton Gerould, and many of the scenes are in Technicolor.

It fell to the lot of the western ace to introduce the new color scheme at the Fox studio, and Emmett Flynn, directing Mix, has made the best possible use of the innovation.

"The Yankee Senor" is a colorful story of Old Mexico and affords Mix a wonderful opportunity for some splendid action. Many of the patio scenes are strikingly beautiful. There are numerous close-up shots of Mix and other members of the company.

The cast includes the vivacious Olive Borden, Margaret Livingston, Kathryn Hill, Martha Mattox, Francis McDonald, Alec Francis and others. Beautiful wildflower sequences were filmed in Wyoming. The Spanish hacienda scenes were laid in Southern California.

Tony has his usual high moments —and his master does a tango with Margaret Livingston.

This is one of the most romantic pictures in which the western star has appeared during his long association with the William Fox organization.

Broadway Theater

Came to the Broadway theater yesterday for a three day engagement one of the season's best Keith-Albee vaudville programs.

De Wilfred and Bohman offered an exceedingly fine musical offering. They are rightly termed the xylophone peers who render an effective mixture of varied melodies.

Bernard and Anna sure do shake a mean hoof. This duo of dancing demons are the best colored dancing team seen here in some months.

Hart, Wagner and Lais offer Oh! But Laughs. It is just that with songs for good measure. One must see this big time offering to enjoy them.

Eddie Cassady, the minstrel man, who has been scoring a decided hit in every city or any prominence, was not disappointed with his local reception.

The Tumbling Clowns closed the bill offering an unique display of human endurance in equilibriatic act.

The Lodge in the Wilderness is the photoplay on this big program of hits. A great deal of praise has been accorded this Tiffany production in which the leading roles are portrayed by Anita Stewart and Edmund Burns. There are also in the cast Victor Fotel, Lawrence Steers, Duane Thompson, Eddie Lyons and James Farley.

Storkdom's Marriage Laws

BERLIN, July 10 (AP)—Mythological couriers of babies, have a moral code more strict than that of human beings upon whom they are supposed to bestow life's little blessings, believes Annie France-Harar, noted ornithologist.

Long observation, Miss France-Harar said, has convinced her that flocks of storks have a system of "legalized" marriage and divorce. Unfaithfulness is punishable by death, but as a single standard prevails in storkdom, only the female is made to suffer. The male gets off with a reprimand.

A stork execution was witnessed at Stylida, Greece, recently by her and Dr. Orthman, former German army surgeon. About 50 storks, after encircling a given spot, suddenly swooped down upon a solitary nest in which sat a female bird, her head drooped in expectation of doom.

The flock hacked the female to pieces with their bills. Dr. Orthum has witnessed three such divorce tribunals and infliction of death sentence in a year.

STOCK PRICES LOWER

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Stock prices worked lower on a reduced volume of trading in today's market. The selling movement, which got under way soon after the opening, was checked temporarily by a reduction in the call money rate after mid-day to the lowest level in three weeks but it was resumed in the late trading, despite aggressive bullish operations in a selected list of industrial and railroad stocks. Total sales were 1,372,-000 shares, compared with 1,534,400 yesterday.

The reaction was accompanied by rumors of an increase after the close of the 3½ per cent. rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve bank, which proved to be unfounded. In many quarters, however, the view prevailed that the decline was a natural consequence of a temporarily overbought position resulting from the recent rapid advance in many stocks. The few earnings statements which were made public during the day were favorable, particularly that of the Phillips Petroleum Company showing net earnings for the first six months in excess of $14,000,000 an increase of over 33 per cent., compared with the same period last year. Establishment of another new low record by French francs is not believed to have had any influence on the quoted values of domestic securities.

Practically all the standard industrial issues gave ground. U. S. Steel common declined 7-8 lower at 140 7-8 after touching 142. General Motors dropped from 2½ to 137 5-8 and then rallied 1 1-2 off 1 1-4 net. Net losses of 2 points or more were recorded by about a score issues, including American Ice, General Electric, Kelsey Hayes, Locleide Gas, Pierce Arrow preferred, Remington Typewriter, Texas Gulf Sulphur and United Drug.

Trading for Pan-American B. was featured that stock below 70 for the first time in several weeks reportedly on operations by floor traders following the announcement that the shares of Pan-American B would be given for three shares of Latin-American and transport in connection with a plan to acquire the minority stock of the latter company. Other issues struggled although the head of one of the largest petroleum companies was quoted as saying that generally the oil situation is satisfactory.

Interest in the rail division was limited largely to a few hard hit issues although Valley touched the highest price since it was listed on the exchange in 1911, and Missouri Pacific closed 2 3-4 points above the 3-4. Missouri Pacific also touched a new top at 128. Atlantic Coast Line, Northern Pacific and Jersey Central were conspicuously heavy.

Foreign exchange markets were irregularly lower, wheat futures declined sharply following publication of a private report forecasting a larger Canadian crop and the recent government report. Cotton was practically unchanged on the day. Raw sugar declined 1-16 of a cent a pound, but refined was up 25 to 30 points net higher. Coffee closed at 4 1-2 per pound, unchanged to 4 points net lower. The New York Times reported that heavy rains in Brazil compared with even heavier ones Wednesday, without a reduction in the prospects of a plentiful supply at the close. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were again irregular. A further stiffening in Sterling exchange sent the demand rate to just below $4.86, but French francs broke about 10 points to 3.43 cents, a new low, and Italian lire ruled slightly lower around 3 5-8 cents. Belgian francs held steady, with speculative selling checked by the government's decision to grant the king full power in measures to stabilize the currency. Recent heaviness of Chinese exchange is said to have been inspired by speculative selling, based on the fear that the forthcoming report of the British commission appointed to investigate India's currency, would recommend placing the rupee on a gold basis.

DESCRIBES TO LIONS GREATNESS OF JEFFERSON

President William A. Anderson presided at the meeting of the Norwich Lions club held Thursday noon at the Wauregan house and Lion Tom Savard was in charge of the singing.

The committee in charge of the annual outing which is to be held at Oaks inn, on July 29, gave a report of progress, it being expected that the New London Lions will join with the local club for the outing.

The latter part of the meeting was in charge of Lion Max Hanover, who introduced as the speaker, Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, who delivered an interesting address on Thomas Jefferson, speaking in part as follows:

"One who is privileged to visit the beautiful Shenandoah region in Virginia, must recognize the wonderful scenic appeal, the romance of history and the cordial hospitality of the people there.

"The present commemorative exercises in honor of the 150th anniversary of American Independence and the canvas to buy 'Monticello' and make it a shrine of patriotism — all call our attention anew to the significant public service of Thomas Jefferson. He was one of the outstanding figures of a great era in American life and his influence has vitally marked the course of successive generations of his countrymen. Jefferson served as a congressman; as ambassador to France during crucial days; he was chosen vice president and he was elected president for two successive terms and he determined his own successor in high office—the scholarly and constructive Madison.

"During Jefferson's term of office Louisiana was purchased and the effect of that public act, seen in the growth of the Mississippi valley and the great northwest has been of deep historic significance. Yet Jefferson was no expansionist, and no militarist. He was a great organizer and letter writer and a great party leader. His political leadership was gratefully acknowledged by some of the outstanding figures of later generations whose public policies have shaped the destiny of the republic in most important respects. He was a "conservative reformer." Though a slave holder, he early advocated gradual emancipation and opposed extension of slave territory. Though not a total abstainer, he warned the public of the dangers of the liquor traffic as seen in social misery and individual degradation.

"He was most versatile and ranks with Franklin in the expressed interest in science and invention and in scholarship. His interest in architecture and the fine arts and scientific farming was much in advance of the public opinion of his day.

"Jefferson's statement of the inscription for his own tomb stone shows clearly his evaluation of his public services. He wished to be remembered in the future as the author of the Declaration of American Independence. All men are created equal, they are endowed with inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. To secure such, governments are instituted among redying their just powers from the consent of the governed. These statements have been cherished in the philosophy of our statesmen for 100 years. Yet, in our day, as we face the race question and the immigration questions, our attitude is so commonly marked by evasion and apology.

"Jefferson wished to be remembered as the author of the statute of religious freedom in Virginia. This meant the absolute separation of church and state and entire freedom of conscience. Yet today, reactionary groups are insisting that their interpretation of doctrine shall be read into public education: that the search for truth shall be shackled by dogma. The projected policy of using the Bible in the public schools—with its inherent historical controversies—is counter to the teachings of the sage of Monticello.

"Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free' Jefferson would place no restrictions on such research.

"Jefferson wished to be remembered as the Father of the University of Virginia. In the latter years of his life time he took the utmost pride in supervising the erection of the building at Charlottesville and in the outlining of the courses of study. In a vital sense he was the father of the American system of public education and university training.

"The influence of this great man reappears today in the adoption of a popular form of government by most of the countries of the world—even in the conservative Orient. It reappears in the vast influence of educational centers of America and beyond it reappears in the cherished right to liberty of conscience. And any who would deny to others the right of free speech are very remote from the teachings of this great leader in American life."

President Anderson in behalf of the club extended hearty thanks to the speaker for his splendid talk and the meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner. Herbert Corey was announced as the five-minute speaker for next week's meeting with Dr. Kopple Markoff for song leader.

FOR HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT BY PLANTING TREES

The Connecticut Forestry Association has recently issued a booklet dealing with the preservation and development of scenic beauty of the highways of Connecticut. This publication is the result of a shade tree conference, held jointly by the state forestry association and the Yale school of forestry on February 5th, 1926, and is based on extensive investigation by the officers of the association and actual facts relating to existing conditions, brought forward at that time by delegates from various state commissions and departments such as, public utilities commission, state highway department, department of motor vehicles, Connecticut agricultural experiment station and various other bodies.

It is stated that, in many cases, natural scenic beauty could be preserved without great expense for planting of new trees if the existing laws were enforced and the co-operation of all public organizations obtained, although it is also pointed out that certain changes in the laws are necessary to bring about proper co-ordination of state and local effects.

The bulletin which was prepared by P. L. Buttrick, secretary of the association, also tells how the natural beauty of Connecticut roadside may be enhanced in many places by judicious planting of varieties of trees suited to the particular location, for instance, our old standbys elms and maples are the best to plant in some places, but small-sized trees must be used on some roads because there is no longer room for larger ones. It offers suggestions in regard to a judicious pruning of trees, according to landscape conditions and engineering requirements, and makes an appeal for mutual understanding between all bodies interested and the co-operation of civic organizations and individuals in behalf of a more beautiful Connecticut.

The bulletin discusses advertising signs, warning signals, telephone wires, gas stations, hot dog stands and wire lines as well as trees, since they are related to the problem of highway improvement.

More small wayside public parks, as stopping places for automobilists who do not wish to be obliged to trespass upon private property or to patronize hot dog stands of dubious reputation, or high-priced tea rooms, are advocated.

This publication is entitled "Highway Trees and Roadside Improvement for Connecticut." It is thirty-two pages in length and is well illustrated. Copies may be obtained free through the office of the Connecticut Forestry Association, 205 Prospect Street, New Haven.

Well Child Conference

Well child conferences to be held during the coming week in eastern Connecticut towns, under the direction of the state department of health, are as follows: Putnam, high school auditorium, Tuesday July 20th, from 2 to 4 p. m.

TYPHOID FEVER IS LESSENING IN STATE

For the first six months of 1926, 53 cases of typhoid fever were reported to the Connecticut state department of health. While this number is three more than were reported for the first six months of 1923, it is also 30 less than were reported for the corresponding period of 1925.

While a low typhoid rate for the first half of the year does not necessarily mean a low rate for the year it is at least encouraging. However, it should not lead to lessened vigilence for the prevention of the typhoid fever.

The reduction of typhoid fever enjoyed during the past few years is due in no small measure to better protection and treatment of water supplies and there should be no lessened vigilence along this line. Another important factor has been the pasteurization of large milk supplies with the consequent prevention of milkborne typhoid outbreaks. Still another factor has been greater care on the part of the public due to fuller appreciation of the necessity for cleanliness in preventing the spread of this disease.

Now that the vacation season is on, special emphasis should be placed upon precautions by individual citizens to prevent typhoid fever. The automobile has greatly increased the roaming radius of individuals. It has also increased the chances for individuals to spread communicable disease as well as to pick up infection during their travels. In a single day, a man in an automobile may traverse the jurisdictions of many health authorities and thus the activities of no individual health officer can fully protect him from the danger of infection. The result is that he must protect himself by precautions based upon his own knowledge of the situation.

RULES TO HELP LIMIT MOTOR-TROLLEY CRASHES

According to the Connecticut committee on public service information, many of the street car-auto accidents in Connecticut could be avoided if motorists would follow the following set of simple rules:

1. Approach crossings cautiously.
2. Don't speed up to pass a street car when other cars are parked at curb or unless you are sure that you can pass without sideswiping the car.
3. In passing a street car, don't cut in front too quickly.
4. Watch the street cars when making a curve to avoid being hit by the swing of the rear end of the car.
5. Don't cross behind a street car without making sure that other traffic is not approaching from the opposite direction.
6. When starting out from the curb, give the proper signal to indicate your intension.
7. Always give the proper signals when turning to the left, drawing up at the curb, or stopping.
8. When coming out of private driveways, look out for approaching vehicles before entering the street.

FRENCH FULL POWERS BILL RUNS AGAINST SNAG

Finance Committee of Chamber of Deputies Declines to Approve Measure Proposed by Government—Premier Briand and M. Caillaux to Place Responsibility Squarely on Parliament—Measure to Come Up for Discussion in Open Chamber Today—M. Caillaux Will Demand That Parliament Ratify Mellon-Berenger Debt Agreement With United States.

PARIS, July 16.—(AP)—The finance committee of the chamber of deputies by a vote of 14 to 13 today, refused to approve the granting of full powers to the government to legislate by decree in the battle against the fall of the franc. But, undaunted, Premier Briand and Finance Minister Caillaux decided to place responsibility squarely on parliament and the measure will come up for discussion in the open chamber tomorrow, despite its defeat in committee.

M. Caillaux informed the finance committee of this tonight, and also announced he would demand parliament ratify both the Mellon-Berenger debt settlement with the United States and the debt agreement recently signed with England before the summer recess.

Since he explained the financial situation to the chamber a few days ago, M. Caillaux told the committee, the country's fiscal affairs had assumed such an aspect as to necessitate passage at once of the bill giving full power to the government.

"We do not seek to abolish the prerogatives of parliament," he said, "but in the present grave circumstances they must be temporarily suspended."

As for the American and British debt settlement, M. Caillaux stated, negotiations were going on in Washington in an effort to obtain some concessions. He had learned from the members of the committee having the matter in hand that a communication was expected from the American government within a few days announcing it was not the intention to adhere strictly to clause 7 of the Mellon-Berenger accord, concerning commercialization of the debt.

"But," he added emphatically, "both agreements must be ratified before the parliamentary recess, or all paths to foreign credits will be barred."

The slump in the franc continued today. The pound opened at 200 and the dollar at 41.11 and the downward movement continued, the quotations at noon being 391 and 41.96. Official quotations at the closing of the Bourse were 206.40 and 42.49.

It is recalled that in June, 1925, the franc was at 100 to the pound and 20 to the dollar; thus, in not quite 13 months, the franc has dropped from one-fourth of its pre-war value to one-eighth.

The Washington debt accord, which has excited much opposition here, according to present plans, will not be taken up until after the agreement with Great Britain is approved.

Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve bank, New York, who has been at Antigua, near Nice, simultaneously with a visit there of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, is leaving for Paris Monday. He is expected to confer with M. Moreau, governor of the Bank of France, and probably with M. Caillaux. Mr. Strong, however, is understood to have clearly indicated he can make no promises or even consider what might be done for France in the future until the Mellon-Berenger accord is ratified.

Montague Norman left Antibes for London this morning. He will spend tomorrow in Paris. It is said that he also has revealed that he cannot discuss the question of credits to the Bank of France until the London agreement is approved by the French parliament. This is probably what M. Caillaux had in mind when he told the finance committee that the agreements must be approved or "all paths to foreign credits will be barred."

The defeat of the full powers bill at the hands of the finance committee today was due to the votes of the members of the left groups. The socialists failed to follow the example of their colleagues in Belgium, who joined with the conservatives and liberals in voting dictatorial powers to the king.

Close followers of parliamentary life aver that the deputies do not as yet realize the seriousness of the situation and are continuing to play party politics in the face of national danger.

NEW YORK HARBOR RUM RUNNERS' HAVEN

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP)—New York harbor was pictured as a rum runners' haven today.

During the trial of 18 members of the so-called Dwyer liquor ring a confessed rum runner testified that on being hired to run liquor in from Rum Row for William V. Dwyer he was told that he would have no trouble in the matter as "the coast guards will fire in the air." Outside, however, he was told, rum running was a case of the survival of the fittest.

This testimony was given by John R. Weisbaer, who also introduced into the case for the first time a man known to him only as "the boss from Washington." A friend of Dwyer's who could have coast guard men transferred from one locality to another at will. The witness said that he left Dwyer to join the coast guard for more money and that he was transferred from Cape May to New York through Dwyer's influence with the Washington "boss."

Weisbaer testified Dwyer had told him the coast guard was "fixed" except for some of the higher officers. He said that assistance, positive or negative, was given the Dwyer rum runners by coast guardsmen for various reasons. "Some take the money," Dwyer was quoted as saying. "Some take presents for themselves and their wives and others are just good sports."

The witness related the exciting adventures he had experienced while a rum runner. After one night trip to Rum Row he told of unloading a cargo of liquor at a Canal street dock at which a coast guard boat was also unloading. On another trip his rum boat grounded off New London and he had to lie there until a commercial tug arrived from New York and hauled him off.

He said he got as high as $300 for a trip but that he finally decided that more money could be made in the coast guard. He mentioned this to Dwyer and he said the alleged ring leader got him an appointment as a warrant officer. Later he was discharged from the coast guard for accepting a bribe and in April, 1926, was sent to Portsmouth Naval prison to serve three months. He was released in less than three weeks, however, when the sentence was remitted after a conference between his coast guard commanders and a man from the prohibition "under cover" office, he said.

WAVE LENGTH SQUABBLE MAY END IN COURTS

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP)—The squabble over wave lengths may end in the courts.

Belief that broadcasters whose wave lengths are usurped may obtain redress in law suits was expressed today by Paul B. Klugh, executive chairman of the National Association of Broadcasters.

"Stations that appropriate a wave assigned to another are raising a very serious question of property rights," Klugh asserted. "It will not surprise me to see many laws started to protect stations' rights if this practice continues. There is little doubt in my mind that such cases could be won, and the offending stations would no doubt be enjoined from broadcasting."

Broadcasting stations that change their wave lengths are making "serious mistakes," in Klugh's opinion. He said there are few points on the band which can be used without stations being in worse positions than at present. Confusion in New York Thursday night was cited as proof of this.

Klugh's statements came after a chaotic night on the air in which several stations jumped to high wave lengths, causing interference. The "jumping" of wave lengths preempted by others followed the unfavorable court decision against Secretary of Commerce Hoover and the failure of Congress to pass legislation establishing authority to control the use of wave lengths.

SWORN IN AS ASSIST. SECRETARY OF WAR

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(AP)—F. Trubee Davison, of New York, who is 30 years old, was sworn in today assistant secretary of war in charge of aviation. A few hours later he took charge of the war department and of the army.

Command went to him with the departure from Washington tonight of Secretary Davis who started on a week's inspection of citizen military training camps in the New England area. Mr. Davison's enlarged responsibilities, will terminate Monday with the return of Assistant Secretary MacNider from an inspection tour which took him to the Pacific coast.

Davison's first act after taking the oath was to go to Bolling field for a 30-minute airplane flight over the capital. It was his first flight since 1917 when a naval aviator student he was seriously injured in a crash.

"I skidded a little on the turns when I first took off," he said later. "It wasn't long though before the old feel of the control stick came back and from then on I got along fine."

Secretary Davis, will arrive Monday at the Plattsburgh, New York camp, where his son, Dwight Davis, Jr., is a private.

From Plattsburg, he will go to Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, and thence to Thomaston, Maine, birthplace of General Henry Knox, first secretary of war. He will speak at Thomaston as well as at Plattsburgh and Fort Ethan Allen.

It is probable the secretary will visit White Pine camp to pay a courtesy call on President Coolidge.

RAIDING PARTY FOUND STILLS IN OPERATION

DARIEN, Conn., July 16.—(AP)—Federal agents and members of the Darien police this afternoon raided a distillery at the rear of the Independent Noroton hospital on the Boston Post road. There they found five stills in operation in an old abandoned building several feet from the road, and seized approximately 5,000 gallons of alcohol, some denatured and some redistilled. The plant was valued by the federal agents at $5,000.

Three of the stills were on one floor of the building and three on another. The plant had been in operation for three weeks 24 hours a day.

Four arrests were made, Vito Palerno and Vito Camello, who made up the day shift, were running the stills when the agents and police descended upon the place. The two men of the night shift, Frank Bentio and Joseph Modico, were found asleep at a nearby farm.

BEIRUT, Syria, July 16.—(AP)—Bennet J. Doty of Memphis, Tenn., was condemned by a court martial at Damascus today to eight years imprisonment and hard labor for deserting from his French foreign legion in which he enlisted under the name of "Gilbert Claire." GOV. SMITH VISITS SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 16.—(AP)—With the formality attending ceremonies of state, Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York and Mrs. Smith were received at White Pine camp, the summer white house today, to pay their respects and extend to the President and Mrs. Coolidge an invitation on behalf of the state, to the Adirondacks.

Escorted to the summer white house in the automobile of President Coolidge from Paul Smith's hotel, four miles away, by Captain Wilson Brown, Jr., naval aide to the president, they were hailed at the entrance to the camp by the detachment of marines guarding the president, which was drawn up with guns at present arms.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge awaited them within the main cabin of the camp, the Governor and Mrs. Smith entering and being presented by Captain Brown. Then the four were left alone for a luncheon, the principal course of which was brook trout caught yesterday by Mr. Coolidge himself.

Nothing was permitted to disturb the seclusion of the party during the luncheon, not even photographers being allowed, but later members of the family of Governor and Mrs. Smith as well as friends who had come with them from Albany to Paul Smith, were invited to the camp and paid their respects to the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

After the luncheon and before the arrival of the other guests opportunity was afforded for the President and Mrs. Coolidge to take one two cruise and Mrs. Smith on a motor boat ride about Lake Osgood, on which White Pine camp is located. The president on this trip pointed out to the governor good fishing spots, while, as it to confirm the accuracy of Mr. Coolidge's direction, at one point, a fish leaped high out of the water beside the boat. The president was dressed in a gray business suit with double breasted coat while the governor wore a soft gray flannel suit with white pencil stripes and a Panama hat.

It was not the first time the two had met, Governor Smith having dined with President Coolidge in Washington and met him at governors' conferences but it was the first time they had met on a basis approaching such intimacy.

Each remarked later on the pleasure the meeting had been for them. The conversation was described as general with comments upon fishing and the beauties of the Adirondacks but politics was not mentioned.

Accompanying the Governor and Mrs. Smith to this Adirondacks settlement were Major and Mrs. John A. Warner, son-in-law and elder daughter of Governer and Mrs. Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Winchester of Albany. Dr. A. J. Leonard, commissioner of public safety of Saratoga Springs, and Mrs. Leonard; Assemblyman Maurice Block of New York, and Mrs. Bloch; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, Jr.; Miss Catherine Smith, daughter of the Governor and Mrs. Smith; William A. Humphrey, of Albany, and Robert Fitzmaurice, the governor's personal aide.

This group was greeted cordially by the President and Mrs. Coolidge and as the son, Alfred, was presented to the president. Mr. Coolidge inquired where the other son, Arthur, who is in Sea Girt, N. J., was. He then recalled for the guests that when he was vice president, he was passing through Albany one night and Arthur, in the absence of his father, went to the train and greeted Mr. Coolidge in the name of the governor.

For President Coolidge the day otherwise was one largely of rest and relaxation. After his customary early morning walk, he went out on Lake Osgood for a short time but then returned to give his attention to government matters that had reached him from Washington, while late in the afternoon he and Mrs. Coolidge left the camp for an automobile drive.

Governor Smith arrived at Paul Smith's shortly before noon by automobile from Elizabethtown where he spent the night. He registered at Paul Smith hotel and intends to remain until Monday, enjoying a rest and frequenting the golf links.

WITNESSES AGREE THAT BOLT CAUSED ARSENAL BLAST

DOVER, N. J., July 16.—(AP)—Four witnesses examined today by the naval court of inquiry into the Lake Denmark naval arsenal disaster agreed that lightning and thunder preceded the series of explosions which swept more than 23 to death and caused tremendous property damage. Three of the witnesses believed the bolt struck in the vicinity of the storehouse containing 4,500 large depth combs loaded with high explosives. The storehouse is known to have been one of the first to blow up.

Editor Shot Down At Canton, Ohio

Gangsters Believed to be Responsible for Death of Newspaper Publisher—Reward of $11,000 Offered.

CANTON, Ohio, July 16.—(AP)—The assassins of Don R. Mellett, 36, editor, crusader, are still unknown tonight and a blank wall confronts all those who seek them.

Universally it is believed that Mellett, publisher of the Canton News, shot down at his garage shortly after midnight this morning, died as the result of his editorial campaign against alleged conditions of crime and corruption in Canton. The murder, it is virtually conceded, was committed by some of the underworld fraternity or its hierlings.

From the offices of Federal Attorney Bernsteen of Cleveland, it was learned the federal government may take a hand inasmuch as Mellett has been a witness against men later convicted of peddling narcotics.

From Columbus, Governor Vic Donahey has dispatched his personal representative, C. H. Sisson, to serve as an onlooker in the inquiry.

County and city officials met and decided today that all information of the progress of the investigation shall be cloaked in secrecy.

City council is ready to meet in special session for the purpose of offering a reward for capture and conviction of the slayers.

Already $11,000 reward has been offered in an attempt to bring the killers to justice. Virtually every police officer in Canton has been assigned to the case.

The publisher's body was found crumpled on the grounds at the door of his garage after a fusillade of five shots had brought his wife to his side one bullet, entering his skull, had killed him.

A neighbor said he heard two men running up a side street just after the shots were heard. Another neighbor yesterday had seen a strange automobile, bearing a Pennsylvania license, on a nearby corner. It was a touring car with curtains, he said. The trail, for the present at least, ends there.

AMERICA'S TERMS MORE GENEROUS THAN BRITAIN'S

WASHINGTON, July 16.—(AP)—America has given France more generous debt terms than has England or any other creditor, Secretary Mellon told the world today in a formal statement, issued just before he departed on a vacation trip to southern Europe.

In effect, Mr. Mellon declared, the United States has cancelled all of France's obligations for advances made during the war and is actually getting a return, under its agreement with France, of only those loans made after the armistice.

The treasury secretary explained that his sudden declaration was occasioned by "the erroneous comparisons in the American press of the British-French settlement and the American-French settlement."

It was regarded here as an answer to published reports from Paris that the new French government might seek modification of the American debt agreement as a result of the terms provided in the British-French settlement.

Mr. Mellon, who is chairman of the debt commission, already had served notice that the commission had washed its hands of the French debt when it signed the agreement with Ambassador Berenger and that it was not entirely in the control of congress.

Explaining that the United States and Great Britain had made their debt settlements with France on different lines, Mr. Mellon said, "If, however, we compare the settlement of all of France's indebtedness to England with the settlement of her indebtedness to America, France has had generous treatment from us."

"No other creditor of France," he concluded, "has accorded such generous treatment."

COMBINE TO CONTROL PRICES OF YARNS

LONDON, July 16.—(AP)—A movement is announced by the Manchester correspondent of the "Westminster Gazette" for the formation of a strong combine to control the prices of American yarns to prevent their being sold at a loss.

More than 30 prominent cotton mill directors, representing a capital of £55,000,000, are said to be backing the scheme, whose primary object is described as the fixing from time to time of minimum prices for standard counts. By this means the mills hope to provide for a reasonable profit, and to raise a "fighting fund" to prevent unfair competition from firms outside the combine, and to buy up surplus yarns if this is thought expedient.

The scheme, according to the Gazette, is being submitted to all Lancashire cotton spinners for their approval.

There are many touching incidents in the life of a chronic borrower.

Guide to Good Things.

Grandmother could tell, by rubbing it, whether the goods in a suit or overcoat were all wool. Grandfather could tell good leather by the feel of it. Both had ways, or thought they had, of knowing good silver, brass or copper.

Advertising has, however, taken the place of grandfather's and grandmother's method. If the thing advertised is not as represented, the person making it and the one selling it will quickly lose your confidence and your patronage. People do not dare misrepresent in their advertising—to do so is to invite closed stores and factories.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE ATLANTA TRUST AFFAIRS

Sixteen More Georgia Banks Closed Their Doors Yesterday—Superior Court Orders Investigation Into Affairs of Bankrupt Trust Company—Receivers' Organization and Officials of State Banking Department Instructed to Have Their Records Ready for Grand Jury Next Week—Indications Point to Reopening of Many of the Banks Within a Few Weeks.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 16.—(AP)—The bankruptcy proceedings of the Bankers' Trust Company and the subsequent closing of 85 of the chain of 120 banks in Georgia and Florida which it served as fiscal agent today was climaxed by the suicide of J. R. Smith, president of the Atlanta real estate board and a director of the Bankers' Trust Company.

Other developments included the issuance of an order by Judge C. H. Howard in Fulton superior court calling for an investigation into the affairs of the Bankers' Trust Company by the grand jury and the Atlanta district solicitor general.

Receivers organization and officials of the state banking department were instructed to have their records ready for presentation to the grand jury Tuesday.

M. E. Wellborn, governor of the sixth federal reserve district issued a statement declaring that the general banking condition in Georgia was better than it had been in years. He attributed the suspension of the smaller banks in the state to a thing apart from the economic conditions of the state.

"The crop in Georgia is virtually made," Governor Wellborn said, "and the suspension of the small country banks this week should have no material bad effect on the general prosperity of the state. It is likely that a good many of these banks may resume business in a short time, after they have reorganized and made other arrangements. Their closing in many instances was a precautionary measure for the protection of depositors and to form other connections."

Sixteen banks closed their doors today, the state banking department announced. The banks, with their capitalization, resources and liabilities as of December 31, 1925, were:

Bank of East Point, $35,000 and $521,660.39.

Exchange Bank of Sycamore, $15,000 and $195,095.65.

People's Bank of Soperton, $15,000 and $169,633.46.

Commerce Bank and Trust Company, $50,000 and $167,574.

Bank of Adairsville, $25,000 and $253,565.55.

Farmers and Merchants Bank, Rebecca, $15,000 and $58,312.49.

Merchants and Farmers Bank, Sylvester, $42,000 and $287,105.49.

Bank of Pine View, $15,000 and $119,789.34.

Merchants and Farmers Bank, Tennille, $25,000 and $207,109.62.

Turner County Bank, Ashburn, $25,000 and $122,211.62.

Bank of Stockbridge, $60,000 and $321,257.57.

Merchants and Planters Bank, Whigham, $15,000 and $128,204.89.

Planters Bank, Pavo, $15,000 and $117,716.59.

Plains Bank, $50,000 and $343,303.56; and the Farmers State Bank, Lumpkin $50,000 and $226,234.56.

In Florida the bank of Lake Helen was reported to have closed today. It was a member of the chain which the Bankers' Trust Company served as financial agent.

Judge Orville Park, of Macon, general counsel for the Georgia Bankers' association tonight declared the situation was growing better and expressed the belief that many of the banks would be able to reopen within a few weeks "and certainly by the time the crop begins to come in."

He said the state banking department was co-operating with the closed banks in every way it could and that both the banks and the department were working toward reopening the institutions and protecting the depositors.

None of the banks which closed, according to Governor Wellborn was on the par collection list or the collection list of the federal reserve system, nor was any of the closed banks a member of the federal reserve system.

CHELSEA RUM CASE GOES TO JURY

BOSTON, July 16.—(AP)—The so-called Chelsea rum conspiracy case in which Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley, his brother, Thomas, an inspector in the Chelsea police department and 11 others are defendants, was given to the jury at 3:30 this afternoon.

This was the second trial, on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law. By a curious coincidence, the first case was given to the jury at 3:30 on a Friday afternoon, and it was 10 o'clock the next morning before they reached a disagreement.

This was the 13th day of the trial. All evidence, much of it a repetition of that given at the first trial, was completed yesterday and today was devoted to arguments of counsel and the court's charge. The trial started with 14 defendants, but a directed verdict for Louis Sears, of not guilty was ordered during the trail.

The grand jury brought indictments again 44 persons in the so-called Chelsea liquor ring cases on August 5, 1925. These include Mayor Quigley and his brother, two police sergeants and alleged manufacturers, transporters, wholesalers and others connected with the liquor trade. They were charged with conspiracy to violate the liquor laws between 1922 and 1925.

The next day, 24 of the number, including Mayor Quigley were arraigned and pleaded not guilty in federal court.

On September 15, Ernest "Dutch" Young, who was to become one of the central figures of the conspiracy trial, was sentenced to four months in jail for illegal sale. Other members of the alleged ring also were sentenced on separate charges before the main case came to trial. The first trial of Mayor Quigley and his alleged associated started on January 26, 1926. In the course of the trial, five of the defendants changed their pleas to guilty. Fifteen were found not guilty and the cases against several others were not pressed.

The chief witness against Mayor Quigley, was Percy Friedman, an exconvict, who testified to being paid $300 at Quigley's home for helping to unload liquor. Other witnesses included several self confessed liquor sellers who testified to paying protection money.

Judge Brewster, before whom the case was tried, said in his charge to the jury that there had been much perjuring by witnesses and the jury, after being out 22 1-2 hours, reported a disagreement on February 5.

The second trial started before Judge Morris and a jury on June 29, with the number of defendants reduced to 14.

WOMAN INTENDS TO HOLD COTTAGE UNTIL FALL

WINSTED, Conn., July 16.—(AP)—Having successfully thwarted all attempts to oust her from "The Cabin", a Highland lake cottage which she claims was given to her with a promise of marriage by Louis E. Griffing, Hartford electrical contractor, Mrs. Marion Hemming, pretty divorcee, said tonight that she could see no reason why she could not continue to live there until September at least.

With the guards removed through action of the law, they having been arrested when they broke into the cottage with the aid of crowbars and attempted to remove the furniture, Mrs. Hemming was able late today to leave the house for the first time since the siege began. With her 12 year old son who has been her constate companion in the lightless cottage, she visited her pets in the yard, of which there are many. They fed sugar to a pony and watched the geese and chickens, while Mrs. Hemming told listeners of her relations with Griffing and her plans for the future.

BELGIUM TO ESTABLISH PUBLIC BETTING AGENCIES

BRUSSELS, July 16.—(AP)—Confidence in the Belgian financial position appears to be returning following the action of both houses of parliament yesterday in granting King Albert unlimited legislative powers for six months with a view to improving the economic and financial situations.

While there was still chaos in the franc on the Belgian market today, the dollar closing at 43.40 and sterling at 221, offers were forthcoming from foreign towns to aid in stabilization of the Belgian franc, and large gifts were received from the general public to be applied to the sinking fund.

The finance minister today made the first payment toward that fund to the National bank, amounting to 75,000,000 francs.

Among the measures taken by the government to increase revenue will be the installation of betting agencies at race tracks in city and country centers, retaining five per cent of all amounts wagered. Heretofore such betting has been done secretly by bookmakers, the government receiving no profit.

Bankers and business men are clamoring for currency, and the government is showing its approval. It is expected that stabilization of the currency will be made around 300 francs to the pound, thus the paper franc would be worth one-eighth of its gold value. Inasmuch as the note circulation will be approximately 5,000,000,000, the National bank would issue 41,000,000,000 gold notes. The gold reserve of the bank is 830,000,000 francs; this sum to cover the issue of 1,000,000,000 would be equivalent to a 33 1-2 per cent gold covering, as required by the constitution.

WHITE STAR LINE SALE NEGOTIATIONS CALLED OFF

LONDON, July 16.—(AP)—Negotiations for the sale of the White Star line by the International Mercantile Marine to a British syndicate represented by Morgan Grenfell & Co., have been terminated.

P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine, and Morgan Grenfell and company authorized the following statement late today.

"Owing to present circumstances and conditions, the negotiations for the purchase of the White Star line have by mutual consent been terminated."

Two months ago joint announcement was made by Morgan, Grenfell and company, London, and P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine company that a provisional agreement had been reached in London for the sale of the White Star line to a British syndicate headed by Furness, Withy & company.

Only a week ago word came from Liverpool that all details relative to money payments and other questions concerning the transfer had been arranged. It was said that the papers were waiting final signature by Mr. Franklin and the representatives of the Furness, Withy company, in behalf of the British interests.

WILLIMANTIC, July 16. — Grand Juror George T. Platt of Andover is puzzled in attempting to determine why he was not called in to act as the court prosecutor in the trial of Mrs. Dina Fuchs, who was fined on three counts of violation of the liquor law last Monday, according to a news item in a Hartford daily. The item purchased according to a report filed at the state police department by State Policeman Martin E. Kelly. Mrs. Fuchs, said by the state police to have been convicted several times of selling liquor in Windsor and Willimantic was fined $10 for each count by Justice of the Peace Charles A. Faulkner, of Andover. The woman operates a gasoline filling station in Andover and has been selling liquor on the side, according to the state police. Grand Juror Platt was left out of the picture, when it came time for Mrs. Fuch's trial. He cannot understand why, as he had understood that the case was to have been heard Tuesday evening, July 20. It was apparently held without his knowledge and without the presence of any prosecutor. Grand Juror Platt explains that State Policeman Martin Kelly came to his home last Tuesday, stated that he had bought liquor on two occasions from Mrs. Fuchs and wanted a warrant for her arrest. The warrant was made out and at Officer Kelly's request, Grand Juror Platt states that he assigned the cases before Justice Faulkner for next Tuesday night. To his surprise and that of several townspeople, he learned Thursday afternoon that the cases had been disposed of. He learned that Mr. Fuchs had requested an immediate hearing, which apparently had been granted.

Mrs. Fuchs has a case of alleged violation of the liquor law pending in the United States court, assigned for the September term. Her place was raided the evening of June 24th by Federal Prohibition Enforcement Chief Briggs and other federal officers. Several gallons of alcohol were seized.

WILLIMANTIC, July 16.—Mrs. Anselan Loring Avery, a real daughter of the American Revolution, celebrated her 87th birthday Friday, at the home of her son, Fred L. Avery of 152 Chestnut street. In the afternoon Mrs. Arthur L. Clark entertained friends and neighbors at her home, 149 Chestnut street, in honor of Mrs. Avery, who received gifts, the felicitations of those present and a shower of greeting cards from members of the D. A. R. and other friends, including her former pastor, Rev. Harry A. McCready of Oakland, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Taylor have returned from New York where they had the unusual experience of being dangerously close to the attempted hold up of a restaurant near the Broadway theatre by Glenn Miller, of Buffalo. The pleasure seeking crowd thwarted the efforts of the bandit who tried into the mob and tried to get away, but was shot down by policemen. He wounded seven persons and has since died from wounds.

Mrs. J. H. Coleman of 418 Golden Gate avenue, West Richmond, who is a guest at the home of Mrs. A. A. Warren in Scotland, Conn., is striving for an achievement—a complete circuit of the United States. Sailing from West Richmond, Mrs. Coleman stopped in New York and from there is visiting in Providence, Hartford and Willimantic. She will take the Canadian Pacific transcontinental route and from the Pacific coast will sail to visit Mexico, Central America, the Panama Canal, Havana, Cuba and other points.

John Lundy of Mansfield Center, in police court Friday morning, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. He was arrested by Officer Marrotte, after his Overland touring car had sideswiped and damaged a Hupmobile coupe owned and driven by John F. Collins, of 98 Jackson street, on Main street Thursday night. Judge Foss imposed the minimum fine of $100 and costs, totalling $107.15. Lundy agreed to settle for automobile damages.

Mrs. Clark Upton drew a fine of $10 and costs and a probation term of six months, when she pleaded guilty to intoxication, in police court Friday morning. Mrs. Upton was arrested when she insisted of telling her neighborhood on Clark street what strange feelings too much liquor gave her.

Having been overtaken by a Chrysler car manned by Officer Marrotte, Friday morning and arrested for speeding, John G. Richardson of West Newton, Mass., explained to the court that through his affiliation with an insurance company he had knowledge of automobiles and did know that Chrysler speedometers registered from ten to fifteen miles faster than those on other cars. For this reason he did not believe that he was driving his open car at an excessive rate of speed through the city. As he was anxious to continue on his trip, however, he pleaded guilty to violation of the traffic law. He paid a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $10.15 and departed. Richardson's car was chased by Officer Marrotte, accompanied by Captain Frank McLean.

This (Saturday) evening will be another attraction night at St. Joseph's Boy Scout camp at Columbia lake. There will be another concert by the scout band under direction of Bandmaster Charles N. C. Wheeler and a big roast is planned. The Scouts are planning a bang-up week-end, as they break camp Monday afternoon. Including the scoutmasters there are 52 in the camp. The latest camp jottings show that "Tom" Costello, the camp sleuth, is prying around in an effort to determine who put the vinegar in the spinach. The scribes, P. Dillon and Everett Buck Greene, suggest that query be made of Cliff Green, the camp bootlegger. Lemon Miller, camp baseball tutor, is busily engaged in the task of conditioning his proteges in preparation for the deciding game with Plainfield. Lemon claims that he is not having much success, as he has a bunch of soft-boiled and self-styled temperamental stars. Henry Bergeron, gormandizer without a real rival in camp, wants to know when he eats again. Bill Cochran, trombone player extraordinaire, is sliding his way to fame. Hot Dog Counihan has resigned his A. W. O. L. title and has serenely returned to camp. Wee Willie Jacobs is showing Brownie Henry which side of the macaroni should be cooked first. Francis Dillon is developing an unorthodox delivery rivalling that of Carl Mays. Harlow Smith is attracting attention with a blackened optic, but he remains silent. Looks like he had a battle with a flat-iron!

Nothing the 16th birthday of their daughter, Celeste, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ley entertained at their home on Windham street Thursday evening with cards, music and a luncheon. Present were Misses Marjorie McClean, Laura Lewis, Alice Gaudreau, Grace Ray, Pauline Nolan and Inez Loveland. Mrs. Loveland and Messrs. Roy Marvel, Joseph Lussier, John Morin, John Bucko and Raymond Roy.

THE RED CROSS SEEKING EX-SERVICE MAN'S KIN

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, July 16—The publicity committee of the Jewett City Red Cross chapter received the following Friday:

Do You Know This Man?

The Boston Metropolitan Red Cross chapter is trying to locate relatives of John P. Johnson, a young ex-service man confined as patient in the Veterans' Hospital at Northampton, Mass. Johnson is unable to give accurate information about his family.

According to records in the Veterans' Bureau, Johnson enlisted as private in the Signal Corps at Fort Slocum, N. Y., when 19 and was discharged at Fort Benning, Georgia, in December, 1922. He re-enlisted the same month and was discharged in September, 1924, at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Johnson gave as his nearest relative Mrs. Katie Johnson, 5792 Broadway Boston. There is a Broadway in Boston, also in South Boston, but in neither case do the numbers run so high. Every conceivable suggestion has been exhausted by the chapter in its attempt to locate the relatives.

A. L. Stebbins Resigns

Asst. Supt. A. L. Stebbins severes his erintendent A. L. Stebbins severes his connections with Ashland this week Saturday.

Fred...as most of us who knew him best prefer to call him, has been in the employ of Ashland for a number of years. He first came here as mechanic and electrician. He was soon advanced to the position of master mechanic and about three years ago received the appointment of assistant superintendent. In the mill he was known as a mechanical genius.

During his off time he was particularly interested in hunting and fishing. He has done more than any other man in town to further the interest in these sports, giving his time to the Ashland Fish & Game association as secretary and using his influence in getting fingerlings of all kinds for our waters and young game birds for liberation in our woods.

As a rifle shot he ranks with the first six best in this country.

He was the second president of the Ashland club and particularly active in bowling.

His fellow overseers got together this week and presented him a handsome purse of gold. Mr. Stebbins is not prepared to make known his plans for the future.

His friends, which include the entire personnel at Ashland, wish him luck.

Mr. Stebbin's has furnished The Bulletin correspondents many interesting sports items.

In addition to this work thousands of adults and juniors were taught to swim. More than 102,000 hours of volunteer service by senior members of the Red Cross Life Saving corps were recorded during the year.

The sum total of life savers, 72,810, does not include any persons trained this summer.

Half a loaf may or may not be better than no bread. It depends altogether upon the baker.

DANIELSON

SERGT. A. S. FIELD WINNER OF REED TROPHY, AT MADISON

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 16—Sergeant Albert S. Field, officer in charge at the Danielson barracks, won the Sergeant Reed trophy at the state police department annual field day shoot at Hammonasset Beach, in Madison, yesterday, outshooting the best the department had to enter against him. In second place is Officer George L. Gardner of the Danielson barracks.

All officers participating in the shoot used the regular department service revolver of 38 calibre. Two ranges were shot over—15 yards and 20 yards. A perfect score would be 200 points. Sergeant Field turned in a score of 187, and this was duplicated by Officer Gardner. However Sergeant Field's score was higher, a factor that gave the sergeant first place. Officers from various barracks in the state participated in the shoot.

Out of the state motorists who hap- pen to be in Danielson on summer tours get a bit of amusement out of the fact that publicly displayed clocks show standard time, while about anyone they happen to ask will tell them it is an hour later. Even the explanation that Connecticut has a statute requiring that publicly displayed time pieces be kept on standard time does not appear to lessen the enjoyment of those people over what they appear to consider one of the peculiar things about us New Englanders.

Men in the building trades here are having the benefit of a busy summer. There is considerable construction work underway, notwithstanding the dullness in many lines of business. Work at the high school gives employment to a considerable number of artisans and there is much other work for carpenters, plumbers, painters and men in other lines pertaining to building. This condition promises to hold good until late in the fall.

New boilers are to be installed in the high school, as part of the work of enlarging the structure. The heating system must be materially larger than the present equipment on account of the greatly increased size of the building. The heating and plumbing are one of the large units of cost that enter in the construction work now underway, but this is a necessary expense for essential equipment.

Visitors from Danielson to Oakland Beach left of the large number of cottages unoccupied, or for rent, at that resort this summer. Depressed business in New England is reflected in the greatly reduced number of vacationists and in the much lower prices for rents that are being quoted in some places this season.

Miss Pytka has not sufficiently recovered to be able to leave the hospital.

MISS FANNIE OBLETZ WINS A $1,000 SCHOLARSHIP

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 16.—Miss Fannie Obletz, a graduate of last year's high school class and whose exceptional ability as a pianist won her a scholarship last year from the Joullard Foundation of New York city and who studied music there last year, has just been notified that she has won a $1,000 scholarship for the same society for the coming year. Miss Obletz began her studies at the New York Institute of Music last September and her close application and her unusual talent as a musician are best evinced by this second recognition. She will be at her home this summer but will return to New York in the early fall to resume her studies. The recognition conferred upon her is an unusual one for so young a girl as Miss Obletz, who is but 17.

The next well baby conference in Putnam is to be held Tuesday afternoon, July 20th, at the high school auditorium, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Although the skies were threatening Thursday afternoon, there was plenty of enthusiasm and the rain kindly held off until evening, Governor's day at the Y. M. C. A. camp at Black pond was the outstanding event of the year at the camp.

The camp, always neat and clean, had been given an additional touch of color by the extra display of flags. The athletic events began at 9:30 o'clock. There were relay races, and various games which lasted until it was time to take a rest before the Rhode Island clambake was served at 1 o'clock. The dinner was excellent and campers and guests were served speedily.

The governor was met at 3 o'clock by a reception committee of boys from the camp and escorted to the camp grounds. Before the speaking begun the Rockville boys orchestra played several selections after which Governor Trumbull was introduced by Elmer T. Thienes, secretary of the Hartford Y. M. C. A. His excellency gave an interesting talk on mechanical operations of aeroplanes, a subject in which he is much interested. He also stressed the advantages given the youth of today through the opportunity to enjoy camp life and receive at first hand lessons in nature studies.

Clarence Bowen of Woodstock followed with a short talk and moved that the governor be made an honorary member of Camp Woodstock, which motion was carried unanimously. The next speaker was Harry Hedley Smith, state secretary of New Haven who gave an interesting talk on features of camp life and the beneficial results to the campers.

After the speaking the aquatic events took place. There were swimming, diving, canoe and boating contests. After the events came the supper which took place in the mess hall because of the rain.

UNCASVILLE

The Epworth league of the Methodist church held a lawn party Wednesday evening on the lawn of the parsonage. Supper was in charge of Mrs. William Spiers. Agnes Eggleston had charge of the cake, Doris Johnson, grabbag, Rema Ungerer, candy, Mrs. Charles Brooks, ice cream, Charlotte Brooks, lemonade, Robert French, hot frankforts, Mrs. Blaisdell, fortune teller, Margaret Ungerer, fancy articles. The Roamers orchestra furnished music.

Rev. William Barnes has organized a troop of Boy Scouts at Montville Center Congregational church. Raymond Schoifield and Mr. Kirsh are leaders. There are 15 members. Last Saturday and boys went to Schoifield's pond and in the evening were entertained with music and a lecture.

The Women's League of voters held a picnic Tuesday afternoon under the trees north of the Methodist Episcopal church. A bountiful lunch was served and cards were played. About 30 were present.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church held a picnic Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jennie Potter of Hilltop. On account of threatening weather the picnic was held in the house. A large number attended and all spent an enjoyable afternoon.

Not only the members of St. John's Catholic parish, but friends in Norwich and New London are interested in the success of the annual parish lawn party on the church grounds. Increasing attendance makes a new church for this parish necessary and the pastor, Rev. James A. O'Meara plans the lawn fete for this object.

The annual picnic of the Montville Union Baptist Sunday school is to be held at Ocean Beach today July 17. Special cars will convey the party. Transportation will be furnished from the Baptist church to trolley at Uncasville. Lunch and lemonade will also be furnished. The parents, members of the cradle roll and home departments have been invited and all are expected to be at the church at 9:15.

-Mrs. Frank Calvert and daughter Edna who have been visiting relatives in Branford and New York, have returned home.

Resinol Soap
her favorite for fifteen years
Had despaired of having clear skin

Baltimore, Md., July 18: —"For the past fifteen years I have used your splendid soap, though I had given up in despair of having a good, clear skin, but after using Resinol Soap for one month I noticed a decided improvement. I have also two girls, age five and two, who boast of splendid skin, and they have always been washed with Resinol Soap.

I can assure you of my complete confidence in this soap as well as Resinol Ointment which my father uses constantly for his corns and callouses." (Signed) Vela M. Wheeler, 3443 Chestnut Ave.

Screw Your Courage to the Sticking Point, Son!

It's a tough job foregoing those sportful desires. You'd like to have the ice cream cone and the chocolate soda. You'd like the baseball glove, with the bat and ball. They'd all look bigger than the Bank Book if you'd let them!

But don't. Let the bank win this time, son, and you'll soon get the big rewards all back with interest.

Ask your Dad. He'll back us up. You'll be glad you came in often!

THIS WOMAN'S BATTLE
Wins Against Ill Health

"At times I was hardly able to do my housework," writes Mrs. Margaret Wallace, of 1547 Safford Ave., Columbus, Ohio. How many women have found themselves in this same condition! How many women have fought bravely on, day after day, cooking, washing, ironing, doing the dishes, and keeping the house clean, when they were in a weakened condition and had not sufficient strength to perform these duties. A friend advised her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a fair trial. "I just can't give enough thanks to it," she writes. "Now I can eat anything at all and I am feeling better than I have for years. I shall never be without your medicine again."

A woman who is fighting for her health and her family's happiness is a valiant soldier. She wages her battle in her own kitchen. She has no thrilling bugles to cheer her on, no waving banners.

Many other women tell us, as Mrs. Wallace did that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health.

SUMMER HOTEL FIRES

The large loss of life in the destruction by fire of the summer hotel in the Catskills near Haines Falls, N. Y., accentuates the danger which exists in just such buildings and the need of surrounding them with greater safety.

It would be ideal to have fireproof structures but they would, of course, involve so much money that it would be impossible to do enough business to make a profit, and probably it would be necessary to charge such rates that patronage would be scared away.

The burning of summer hotels is not unusual. They are invariably firetraps, so located and so constructed that there is small chance of checking a fire once it gets started, and in too many instances the conditions are just right for aiding rather than stopping a fire.

Too frequently it is the case that the kitchens and the wings containing stoves, ovens and boilers are of the same construction as the hotel and directly attached thereto so that there is a continual menace. These wings might at least be fireproof, and in addition every precaution against fire should be insisted upon by the management.

As a protection to life much could be done in the construction of these hotels, not only by providing adequate fire escapes and seeing that they are in condition for use each year, but by avoiding structures over two stories high from which those trapped might without great danger get away.

With buildings more carefully guarded in the way of construction and so to safety provisions, and with the patrons alert to the importance of doing every thing possible for their own protection, it might not be possible to prevent the burning of summer hotels, for when fire gets a good start at the shore or in the mountains there's little to halt it, but there could and should be eliminated such a loss of life as that which took place this week in New York state. And that's times we wonder that there are not more such fires.

SPEEDING CRIMINAL CASES

Various methods have been urged and tried in endeavors to dispose of more criminal cases and clear up the dockets. Now a little help has been gained through the hearing of cases by the court rather than by juries, for it is a well known fact that cases are delayed and drawn out for the purpose of influencing matters before juries.

An experiment law has been getting encouraging results in that put into operation in Philadelphia since this week [illegible] been conducting trials without juries. On one day there were [illegible] cases disposed of before the court, six of the defendants waiving their rights to jury trial, while six another [illegible] cases were disposed of at the rate of 15 minutes each and ten were [illegible]. It meant a saving of time and greatly reduced the costs and could not fail to make a good impression in view of the [illegible] which has long since characterized most forms of court action.

The Philadelphia judge has fallen in with an idea which has occasionally been put into operation by federal judges, and in a possibility justice is quite so much assured under such a method as through long and tedious jury trials.

What the outcome of the Philadelphia plan is going to be is awaited. It is of course open to protest by anyone who wants the right to a jury trial and there is promise that it will find its way into the courts for a determination of the legality of it.

It is certainly preferable that there should be a speedy disposition of the cases on the docket awaiting action than to have many of them continued because the number was so great that the time allowed for trials by jury was not sufficient to get through the list. Clogged dockets where quick action is needed in criminal matters make a bad impression. The Philadelphia judge is showing how it can be overcome. Even though it may be found that he is wrong his demonstration may prove the determining factor in settling that very thing.

FOREIGN TRADE

Note that the figures are available for the foreign trade during the fiscal year ending with June, it is noted that our trade balance for the year is not as large as it was a year ago. There was nothing in the monthly statements which indicated that it would be for there have been months when we were importing more than we exported.

For the year our trade balance was $387,468,000. Last year it amounted to more than a billion dollars. We increased our imports during the year to the extent of $642,000,000 while there was a decrease in the export trade of $111,000,000. It was a period during the last 12 months when we were receiving payment in goods from other countries on a larger scale, but it was also a period in which prices rather than quantity of goods figured in the balances.

It is, for instance, pointed out by Secretary Hoover that the large increase in imports can be attributed to more money paid for commodities, such as rubber, and that our decrease in exports on the other hand can be said in the same way to the decrease in the price which has been received for such things as cotton and grain, both of which have been commanding lower prices abroad.

Thus the changes in trade balances are not always what they seem. They are governed in many instances by conditions. When we pay more for goods the amount imported mounts in dollars even though there is no greater tonnage, and while we may be exporting just as much or more, if we do not receive as large a price for our exports the total amount as expressed in dollars and cents is bound to be adversely affected. Our rubber imports were boosted $220,000,000 because of the radical jump in price while our cotton exports alone accounted for a difference of $150,000,000 in the value of our goods sent abroad.

How long these conditions will prevail we are not informed. There will be readjustments from time to time but even though it might be indicated that we are buying much more nearly what we are selling the situation takes a different appearance when carefully analyzed. As for loaning we never did a bigger business in our history under normal conditions.

DEALING WITH POLLUTION

Rivers furnish a cheap means of carrying off pollution just as long as they are not called upon to accomplish more than it is possible for them to do. When that time comes they become a menace and some other manner a sewage disposal becomes necessary.

The effort has been underway in Connecticut for years to check the pollution of its streams. Some progress has been made. Much discussion has been created and preliminaries which will result in ultimate action have undoubtedly been set in motion. Stopping the pollution entirely is not the immediate purpose. The aim is to bring about a betterment of the existing conditions by preventing further increase in the amount of sewage dumped into the rivers and stop making demands upon the streams which they are unable to handle.

What concerns Connecticut is only what is faced by other states with growing cities. It is a problem that is bothering New York city, for it is recognized that inspite of the volume of river water that might be expected to remove and purify the sewage that is poured into it at that point the filth fails to go to sea but is eddied to and fro along the water front with conditions getting steadily worse.

The idea of building a sewer under water that would carry the sewage out to sea a distance of about 15 miles has been suggested. It may be feasible but it can be expected that New York will weigh the possibilities of other disposal before such a tremendous proposition would be tackled. Sewage, garbage and oil pollution are [illegible] about a city the size of New York, located as it is, that may well call for something more than a temporary [illegible].

A BAD SITUATION

Boston has quickly solved the mystery connected with the young woman whose body was found tied up in pasteboard boxes in the highway. It associated the character of crime that was indicated with the doctor alleged to be connected with the case an old offender in this respect.

It has been brought to light that the doctor, whose license to practice was taken away from him because of his conduct, has a record in connection with malpractice. Over six years ago he was brought into court on a charge of criminal malpractice. Just why is not known but the case dragged along for two years and then a grand jury reported no bill. Even then he was under arrest for a similar offense but that was placed on file.

Because he caused the death of a woman through malpractice in 1921 he was deprived of his license as a doctor of medicine, and two years ago he was again under arrest for a similar action which resulted in the same action which resulted in the [illegible].

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The Man of Nazareth emphasized the importance of doing first things first, for the simple reason that in the moral world there are secondary as well as primary things of importance. The great trouble with the Jews who came into contact with Him was that they magnified little things; they put them first to the exclusion of the weightier things of the law. But they were very scrupulous as to the correct measurement of mint, anise, rue and cummin, but when it came to the great principles of life such as love to God; justice toward others and morality and righteousness in their own living they were far less scrupulous. Now this criticism of the Jews we may well take to ourselves for it is just as important for us as it was for them to do first things first, and we need to abide by the admonition: "These ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone."

But is there not occasion to argue this question from another standpoint? Of course I do not mean that we ought to put more emphasis on measuring mint, anise and other insignificant herbs—that is, more emphasis on doing minor things than major things, but that we ought not to overlook the little things entirely. We ought to put more stress than we do on this part of Christ's instruction, "and not to leave the other undone." This particular advice that the Man of Nazareth gave the Jews was doubtless what they needed most. They forgot the big things of the law because they were enamored with the glamor of mere trivialities, and hence they received just the rebuke they needed. Not a word is said against them anywhere because they were scrupulous in little things, but it was because they did not give weight to bigger things.

I am, however, inclined to believe that if the Man of Nazareth were dealing with church members today the facts would warrant a shift of emphasis in his teaching; not that he would advise any less expression of the great principles of the Christian life, but that he would call attention to the more secondary things that we are apt to slump over. That is, we are more apt to err on the side of measuring "mint, anise, rue and cummin" and in the performance of little duties than we are on the side of the bigger things of the kingdom of God. But negligence in this minor world is apt to cast a shadow over the larger and more important landscape. I think his criticism would be this: "I find the general trend among modern Christians is to forget the little duties which have a tendency to throw them into discredit."

It is only sheer justice to say that no one nationality has any monopoly of the virtues. It is both reasonable and natural that those races that have been most favoured by civilization should be more advanced than those that have been downtrodden and enslaved. But there is not a nation under heaven living within our borders from which we may not learn something. In proportion to their numbers no nationality can display a longer list of notables than those of Jewish extraction. Did you ever realize that when a Jew meets with misfortune his countrymen do not pounce upon him and crush him to the death, but they rally around him and put him on his feet again. They certainly do not take their cue from us 100 per cent Americans. Visit any almshouse and tell me how many Jews do you find there! Isn't this a lesson for us Americans?

In regard to the principles stated in the first three paragraphs of this article it may be well to state some practical applications of the same. The principle of human conduct as stated by the Master is that the major things of life, of course, we ought to do and at the same time the minor things ought not to be left undone. What then, are some of the minor things that we are very apt to let go undone? First, some people neglect to cultivate the grace of good manners. Bad manners are not to be classed with murder, treason, embezzlement, highway robbery or hypocrisy, but they militate against the highest success in life. Being an old grouch doesn't get one anywhere. Everybody will steer clear of a disagreeable man or woman if it can be done without attracting notice. Many a person of considerable ability has been kept from a much higher position than he occupies just because of his rough and uncouth manners.

Secondly, every person, especially if he is a Christian, will make it a point to pay his just debts. It is one of those little things that we must not leave undone. I will not class it with downright dishonesty, and yet it is a person will buy this thing and that without the least idea where the money is coming to pay for them the line of separation between this and actual thievery is so thin that you cannot see it. Let it be admitted that the disposition is to pay, but this should be accompanied with a reasonable knowledge that there will be the ability to pay. I believe that the installment plan for most people is fundamentally wrong. Many a home has been saddened by losses through the installment plan. It may take grit and courage to resist it, but we should treat it as we are supposed to the devil.

There is also something else, usually classed with the minor things, that certainly ought not to be left undone. And that is proper care of the body. There is nothing in this world that is subject to greater neglect than the human body. It would, of course, be very extravagant to say that by proper care one could make the body immune from all diseases. No power on earth has yet been discovered that is equal to this. And yet science has told us that strict obedience to the laws of health as we now understand them would extend the average of human life 15 to 20 years. If this is true then it is a matter that ought not to be left undone. Take, for instance, the simple matter of eating. A little more judgment here in the twenties and thirties would prevent many diseases that are sure to come in the sixties. If nature is abused she exacts a penalty sooner or later. Was Talmadge wholly wrong when he said on one occasion that "the favorite pastime of the average American was to dig his grave with his knife and fork?"

A great many interesting and important events in our American life are associated with the month of July. Of course the Fourth with its Declaration of Independence outshines all the rest. Also we know that it is President Coolidge's birthday. A great shadow is connected with the twelfth for on this day in 1804, Alexander Hamilton, possibly the greatest financier that the country has produced was shot in a duel with Aaron Burr. Very likely it is not generally known that on the first of July 1859 the first intercollegiate baseball game in America was played in Pittsfield, Mass., between Amherst and Williams. Just think of the score, Amherst 73, Williams 32! History does not state whether they finished at dusk or midnight.

The longest pastorate in the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania is held by the Rev. J. A. Goodfellow, rector for 54 years of one church in Philadelphia.

SURVERY ON DRINKING IN THE COLLEGES

Flat hips, or flaskless students, are the rule in the great majority of American campuses, according to a national survey of the colleges appearing in The Literary Digest. In other words, drinking by the younger generation is reported to be decreasing, and the charge that youth generally is being debauched under prohibition is repudiated as a slander.

Following the charges aired before the senate subcommittee on prohibition and the frequent assertions in pulpit and press that the modern youth is more interested in the condition of his flask than in the state of his mind, The Literary Digest sent a questionnaire to the heads of all the universities and higher colleges in the country, asking them whether drinking had increased or decreased since prohibition, as they had observed it. The heads of 213 institutions, representing colleges and universities in 44 states replied.

Youth Better than Their Sires

It is the most sweeping survey of the kind yet undertaken, and represents opinion gathered from Maine to California and from the Canadian border to the Gulf. Included among the institutions represented in this poll are Yale, Princeton, Chicago, Northwestern Reserve, Michigan, Stanford, Duke, and Washington and Lee universities, in addition to many state universities and colleges. The replies are well-nigh unanimous in reporting that drinking by the younger generation, particularly by that part of it in the colleges, is decreasing, and some of the contributors to the poll take occasion to assert, too, that the younger generation is also mentally and morally superior to their self-anointed sires.

Yale is one of the chief points in dispute in the eastern salient, but President Rowland Angell writes that the impression which he gets from well-informed alumni is "that despite the all too frequent violation of the law, the amount of drinking at present, and particularly the amount of excessive drinking, is very much less than it was in the earlier years." Pres. John Greer Hibben of Princeton states that "the problem of intelligent control is much more difficult," while Chancellor Charles W. Flint of Syracuse university, New York, makes this significant contribution to the discussion:

"Personally, I am inclined to think that the existing conditions among young people, while bad enough in themselves, have been grossly exaggerated. I am inclined to think that drinking among women is not so extensive as it is intense in its manifestations and it would be difficult to dogmatize as to the extent to which this is a result of the nullification conditions or non-enforcement conditions and the extent to which it is due to the new freedom or new license in evidence in certain groups of men."

The Old Grad's Responsibility

A dozen replies to the questionnaire from the keystone state assert that drinking among college students is decreasing. Thomas S. Baker, president of the Pittsburgh Carnegie Institute men returning to campus who were found drinking now among students than before prohibition," and reports that 19 fraternities, with 602 members, "are pledged to deal summarily with infractions of their rules in regard to drinking." Such drinking as does occur, according to the poll, is due in part to imitation of the older generation, particularly of returning graduates who seek to inspire the youngsters with memories of the "good old daze," and in part to the spirit of daredevilry and to the elemental desire for forbidden fruit. For instance, Dean Ernest H. Wilkins of the university of Chicago reporting that "the general sentiment of the undergraduate body, broadly speaking is against drinking," makes this observation.

"Our present difficulties with regard to drinking arise, usually, not from those who are undergraduates, but from outsiders—sometimes from men returning to the campus who were undergraduates in pre-prohibition days and have never outgrown the association of the ideas 'campus' and 'drinking.' Such troubles are troubles brewed in the past, and should not be charged up against prohibition."

Drunken Man a Curiosity

In large areas of the middle west, the Pacific coast and the south, according to the poll, drinking has gone out of fashion, and in some of the college communities a drunken man is so rare as to be a curiosity. President U. S. Smith of Iowa Wesleyan college takes occasion to say that prohibition is working "marvels throughout the country," and reports: "We have a generation of youth who never saw a saloon, and we have many young men and women today who never saw a drunken man." Some of the contributors to the symposium assert that the charge that college youth are drinking more under prohibition than they did in the days of the open saloon is wet propaganda. President Albert Edwin Smith of Ohio Northern university, for instance, writes that he has "no patience with the howling of the wet wolf. All the charges of youth being corrupted by prohibition, of the wild, vicious habits engendered by the Volstead law in innocent young men, and especially in students," he declares, "is a piece of the basest and most unfounded lying that the devil of alcholism ever inspired."

Change "Little Short of Revolutionary"

Down in the land of cotton blossom and conservatism, according to the symposium, prohibition seems to have taken deep root and to be flourishing under showers of blessing from those who prefer its fruits to juleps. President George H. Denny of the University of Alabama writes that "there is less drinking each year," and that he regards "the change for the better as little short of revolutionary." Writing from the chair once occupied by General Robert E. Lee, President Henry Louis Smith of Washington and Lee university comes out strongly for prohibition and declares:

"Since the close of the World war and the advent of woman suffrage there has been a prevalent epidemic of revolt against every form of tradition, convention, ecclesiastical, social and moral restraint, of which present demand for liberty to buy and drink liquor as anyone wishes is in no sense a result but only an additional proof. But for the existence of legal restraint against the selling of intoxicants, the drunkenness, immorality and law-breaking constituting the post-war crime-wave would have been infinitely greater and more disastrous, especially because of the wide distribution of automobiles and increasing wealth.

"I regard the present outcry in and from certain sections of our non-American population, especially along the Atlantic seaboard, as mainly a definite well organized and liberally financed propaganda to break down all legal restraint against the distribution of intoxicants and other similar laws restricting personal liberty in the interest of ethics and morality.

"The constant endeavor of many organizations and of many newspapers in our wet centers of population to pile up votes for liquor through all kinds of referenda will be found, in my judgment, to originate among and to be carried on by those who are bitterly opposed to prohibition."

Even in grape-growing California a reduction in student drinking is reported. President Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford university writes that the liquor problem "is about one-tenth of what it was" during his student days there, and he remarks that the "misinfliction" of infractions of the prohibition law "has given a false and exaggerated picture." "Amazingly gratifying," writes President Carl G. Doney of Willamette university, Oregon, in describing the reduction in drinking as he has noticed it. Moreover, President Doney thinks that there has been "too much saber rattling on the part of the loose-minded and appetite-controlled booze advocates." Youth is not degenerate, he asserts. Rather, he writes, "our students have more sense, a finer poise, and a richer purpose than their parents."

Sunday Morning Talk

TRANSFIGURATION

Our richest and most heavenly experiences, come in and through prayer. "Lord," lead up to the mountain height, to prayer's transfiguring glow, and may we bring a heavenly light to this dark world below."

Only those who have served Christ faithfully in the valleys of daily duty, and have lived near to Him, can climb with him the mount of transfiguration. Daily faithfulness is the ladder to heaven.

There is glory in the Bible and in Christ beyond our ordinary conception and often veiled, but always there are those who can see, those who had seen Christ only in his human form were like those who had seen only the seeds of the rose or the bulb of the lily but had no vision of the blossom which could grow out of them.

There are heavenly experiences given occasionally to Christians, as a fore taste of their glory and a glimpse of the spiritual realities ever about them. That experience which was good for Peter is good for us. We all need the highest and sweetest experience of the love of Christ to see Him in His beauty and of the glory to glance through the gates ajar, to feel the breath of heaven and hear the voice of God.

It widens the outlook, giving earthly things their truer place in life. It gives a clearer view of the end to which we are working, of the state to which God would bring all men. It helps us bear our burdens, overcome our temptations, do our Christian work. We are amid sin but we have seen the glory of the master able to conquer it. We dwell amid sorrows, but here is new inspiration and hope, light, victory, glory, heaven shine on all this dark earth.

It gives a permanent uplifting to our character. The churches become one on the mount of transfiguration. The differences in the light for our little lamps are all absorbed in the light of the sun. Here, too, most of the difficulties in life doctrine of grace vanish. The obstacles that obstruct our path on the earth are of no account to the eagle soaring above mountains and river.

And he was transfigured before them: and his garments became white as the light, Matt. 17:2, 3. The transfiguration was a promise, a prophecy, a vision of our resurrection life. We are not only assured of the reality of the life beyond the grave, we catch glimpses of the glory that awaits us. "He shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious body." "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father." So the transfiguration was a power, a comfort, a help all their lives to the apostles.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Rev. Charles Gore, who has jarred the British Fundamentalists by his assertion that the Bible itself teaches the theory of creation by evolution, is a celebrated theologian who was Bishop of Oxford until 1919, when he resigned. A scholar of Balliol college, Oxford, he enjoyed a fellowship at Trinity college, Oxford, for 20 years following his graduation. From 1898 to 1900 he was Honorary Chaplain to Queen Victoria, and later served as Chaplain in Ordinary to her and to King Edward VII. IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The city fathers a half century ago planned to take up a contract with the local gas company for three years at the rate of $3 per thousand, but at no larger figure. If this could not be done naptha was to be used, lights kept burning all night, at a contract price not to exceed $4,500.

Items of news taken in part from the files of the Norwich Bulletin of 1876 were as follows:

Monday, July 10, 1876—Ladies dresses this summer will be very rich but without trimming. The trimming will devolve upon the men who pay for them and will be principally in trimming down the amount paid for soap and corn beef and underclothes, also other articles which are not exposed to the criticism of polite society.

The number of small lobsters being brought into the market has caused many people to state that Connecticut should pass a law similar to that of Maine and Massachusetts, making it against the law to take short lobsters.

The work of removing the east abutment of the Preston bridge is nearly completed and the new stones will be put in Thursday. Some of the stones taken out were put into the abutment at least 75 years ago.

The balloon ascension at Lafayette Indiana nearly resulted in the death of the aeronauts and of many spectators, the bag being torn when it struck the corner of a house in going up, allowing it to rise 200 feet in the air before it started its mad rush to earth. The aeronaut will lose both legs as a result of his injuries.

Wednesday, July 12, 1876—The expenses of the Fourth of July celebration came to about $650 and a balance of $250 remained. The members of the celebration committee immediately voted to donate the balance for the purchase of new uniforms for the Third Regiment band, hoping that additional funds might be forthcoming to bring the amount to sufficient size to clothe the entire band personnel.

Officers elected by the St. Mary's T. A. and B. society are as follows: First vice president, P. F. Murtagh; second vice president, T. Murphy; recording secretary, T. Doyle; financial secretary, S. O. Sullivan; treasurer, P. Fox; librarian, Joseph Cotter, directors, J. McNamara, J. Connors, D. Sullivan, Hugh Madden, J. Barry, T. Leahy and James Burke.

It is supposed that the reason graduates of female colleges are called bachelors of art, instead of maids of art, is that the former is a higher degree; at least, the maids are always after the bachelors.

The W. O. W. club of the West Side will dedicate their new club hall over Worth and Ford's next Monday evening. Washington Geer will deliver the dedicatory speech.

Thursday, July 13, 1876—The draught is very severe in this vicinity, the fields look brown and parched up, and vegetation is suffering generally for want of rain. It has been six weeks since we have had rain enough to wet the ground, the light fall of Tuesday being dried up immediately by the hot sun. Today marks the beginning of the 32nd consecutive day that the mercury has stood at 90 degrees or higher and fully half of these days have been marked by temperatures above 100 during the hottest part of the day. Saturday and Sunday last were both bad days, the mercury remaining over the century mark for a number of hours on each day. Several cases of sunstroke have been reported from outlying districts.

A body of young women in a nearby town have organized, or to put it correctly, were organized for the sole purpose of discouraging the use of slang. All went well until the last meeting when one of the members suggested a fine for a sister who had referred to her beau as "old splendid."

The girl accused started up in a protest, confusion became general and amidst the shouting could be heard such phrases as "Dry up," "Nice blackberry you are," "Wipe off your chin," Hire a hall," "Can that line," etc. The club is no more.

Friday, July 14, 1876—A dog owned by a local party nearly staged a rescue last evening. The dog was seen to jump into the Shetucket river and endeavor to drag something to shore. Four horses were struck during the storm, trees broken down by lightning bolts and two women badly burned and dazed by the fluid which entered their room. It was also rumored that a man in Baltic was killed when struck by lightning.

A stone cutter from Westerly was knocked down on Water street last evening and robbed of nearly $100. The men were not seen after the assault took place, evidently having jumped a fence made a break for the water front.

At the meeting of the court of common council last evening it was voted that the street light committee be instructed to make a contract with the gas company to furnish all the gas used by the city in the streets and public buildings, for a term of three years, if they can do so at the rate of $2 per thousand after the expiration of the present contract.

Provided this could not be done the committee was authorized to make a contract with J. J. Connor to light the streets with naptha, keep lights burning through the entire night, and at a cost of $4,560.

Stories That Recall Others

Not a Nursemaid

Two colored gentlemen were visiting as they rode along on the car.

"Well, you know," said one, "I sent my two girls to a special school and now they are both supporting themselves. One learned to cook and she had a fine position, and the other one is a sick nurse."

Danny Learns More About Crabs

The more you learn the more you find
Of knowledge to enrich the mind.
—Old Mother Nature.

Hardly had Danny Meadow Mouse recovered from the fright of his first meeting, with a crab, which to him seemed like a giant spider in armor, when out of a hole almost at his feet popped another crab quite different from the first one, but quite as startling to Danny. In the first place, Danny hadn't seen any hole there; in the second place, this fellow was so very nearly the color of the sand that when he wasn't moving it was difficult to see him even when looking right at him. He was so close to Danny that Danny had a good look at him.

"Oh!" squealed Danny suddenly. You see that crab had suddenly raised himself right up on the tips of his toes, so to speak, and then he had raised his eyes up out of his head. At least, that is the way it looked to Danny. Never had Danny seen anything like that before. Those two eyes were on the ends of little stalks, and when those stalks were raised that their owner might look all about, it gave a rather startling effect.

"Now what is it?" demanded Jimmy Skunk.

"There goes another one of the crab family," said he

"That fellow there," replied Danny, pointing to the crab standing on tiptoe.

Jimmy turned. At his first move away went the crab. Danny had thought that the Green Crab had moved rapidly, but it was nothing to the way this fellow scuttled across the sand. Like the Green Crab, he traveled sidewise, but he went so fast that it would have taken a good runner to catch him. Jimmy Skunk chuckled. "There goes another one of the Crab family," said he. "That one is called the Ghost Crab and sometimes the Sand Crab. I guess he's about the fastest runner of all the Crab family. And he can dig about as well as he can run. It is too much work to chase him and bring him back for you to look at. You know, I never like to hurry. Anyway, you will have plenty of chance to see him, for he and his friends are always about on the sand. They like the moonlight. They don't come out so much daytimes, but they certainly do like to run around at night."

"What do they eat?" asked Danny.

"Oh, any old, dead fish they can find, or other dead matter. Then they catch and eat Beach Fleas."

"Beach Fleas!" exclaimed Danny. "What kind of fleas are Beach Fleas?"

"Well, some folks call them Sand Hoppers. There goes one now. Catch it. You'll find it's good eating." Danny caught it. Sure enough, it was good eating. Though Danny didn't know it, it wasn't an insect at all, but was a crustacean, just as the crabs are. It looked much like a giant flea, only sand colored. Danny saw another and caught that, and while he was chasing this one he ran down almost to the edge of the water. There he surprised another crab. It wasn't like the Green Crab he had seen, for it was white covered with spotted rings of red and purple. Besides the two last legs were not as much like legs as those of the Green Crab. They were really two paddles, for this crab is a very good swimmer and it uses these for swimming. It was the Lady Crab, which is also called Sand Crab, though quite different from the Ghost Crab, which, as you already know, is also called Sand Crab. This one scuttled away from in front of Danny into the water. Danny was still staring after it when Jimmy Skunk joined him. "What are you staring at?" asked Jimmy.

Danny pointed out the crab. "Oh, is that all?" exclaimed Jimmy. "You'll get used to crabs pretty soon. I wouldn't mind a soft-shelled crab this very minute."

"What's a soft-shelled crab?" inquired Danny.

POETRY

Schindahli Time

(Korea)

Have you seen the pink schindahlis the shaggy little [illegible]?
Have you heard the pheasant calling in the brush?
Lo, the gentle Spring awakens by her silver bordered rills.—
It is her tender voice, it is her blush

Like the petals of schindahlis are thy baby hands, my child,
And the slender thread of thy low lifted cry
Meets the murmur of the mallard as he journeys to the wild,
As arrow pointing northward through the sky.

The long blue heron listens where the winter dragon sleeps;
And do thou listen, O my babe, to me;
Upon the breast of Taracol the pink
schindahli peeps;
My spring has come, has come again with thee!

—Winnifred MacGowan, in "West Winds."

Emigravit

With sails full set, the ship her anchor weighs.
Strange names shine out beneath her figure head.
What glad farewells with eager eyes are said!
What cheer for him who goes, and him who stays!
Fair skies, rich lands, new homes and untried days
Some go to seek: The rest but wait instead.
Watching the way wherein their comrades led.
Until the next stanch ship her flag doth raise,
Who knows, what myriad colonies there are
Of fairest fields, and rich, undreamed-of gains
Thick planted in the distant shining plains
Which we call sky because they lie so far?
Oh, write of me, not "Died in bitter pains,"
But "Emigrated to another star"!

—Helen Fiske Jackson.

According to the order passed, Mr. Harwood immediately upon taking the receivership took possession of all records of the company, with an end to protect and secure its assets.

As receiver Mr. Harwood is authorized to carry on the business for the period of not more than two weeks and to employ such assistance and make such purchases as may be necessary, all to be at a cost not to exceed $2,500; and that as evidence of such indebtedness he is to issue receiver's certificates to the amount of $2,500 with interest not to exceed six per cent per annum.

A hearing upon the confirmation of the appointment and for the appointment of two appraisers is to be held before Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court room in New London on August 5th at 9 o'clock.

The F. T. Griswold Paper company is a corporation organized under the laws of this state and has a capital stock of $100,000 divided into 500 shares of common stock at $10 par value and 50 shares of preferred stock at $100 par value. Mary E. and David F. Goodnow are owners of more than 2,300 of the company's shares.

The two applicants have brought an action to the superior court of New London county for the first Tuesday of September, 1926, for the dissolution of said corporation and the appointment of a receiver to wind up its affairs.

Weston W. Goodnow, president of the paper company, waived notice of the hearing on the immediate appointment of a temporary receiver and requested the appointment of a temporary receiver.

There was no opposition to the application.

About 40 hands are employed at the concern.

"FAIR PLAY" WEEK FOR GREENEVILLE PLAYGROUNDS

A "Fair Play" week will be observed at the Greeneville playgrounds from July 19 to 23 inclusive. Instructors Edward Sullivan and Miss Constance Raymond at the center will strive to teach the children the value of clean sports and at all times, no matter what the odds may be against them.

The orchestra at the Greeneville grounds is rapidly being formed and rehearsals are being held daily.

Sessions in the playgrounds were curtailed in the morning on Friday, because of the weather. However, the various centers were open in the afternoon and evening. All ball games, both morning and afternoon, scheduled for the Academy campus were postponed because of the inclement weather conditions.

The so-called extra activities carried on in the city playgrounds, such as horseshoe, midget baseball, volleyball, etc., contests are expected to begin next week. Extra points for the winners of these contests are given and it is expected that considerable enthusiasm will be shown in them.

The raising and lowering of the flag on the new 30-foot flag pole erected last year at the Greeneville grounds has become to be a part of the daily curriculum of the children of this center.

Interest in the new Jail Hill grounds grows daily and an increase in the attendance at this grounds is noted.

MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS FOR MANSFIELD'S SCHOOL PROBLEM

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, July 16—Plans for the development of the Mansfield school system as far as 1940 are contained in the report just submitted to the town school committee by N. Searles Light, director of rural education for the state board of education, who made a comprehensive survey of Mansfield's schools and educational problem.

A senior high, intermediate and primary school in one building at Storrs by 1940, is foreseen by Mr. Light, who has outlined a program that will care for the town's school needs for the next 14 years at least.

Commenting on the financial side of the question, Mr. Light says, "The town is not in a bad way financially. On the contrary it is a good position to undertake the program necessary from an educational as well as from a housing standpoint. Its borrowing capacity is sufficient, and the state is bearing a generous share of the town's current expenses for schools."

During the school year 1924-1925 Mansfield paid $12,213.59 for the support of its schools according to Mr. Light's figures, which show this is but one-third of $36,514.10 collected as taxes by the town. He goes on to say that most of the small towns in Connecticut pay from 50 to 75 per cent of their taxes for the support of their schools, figures much higher than that found in Mansfield. Throughout the state, including cities with fire, police, water and sewage systems to maintain, the average expenditure is 40 per cent of the taxes, he said.

Of the total expenditures for Mansfield schools last year, the state furnished $21,237.57, or 62 per cent, according to Mr. Light. From local sources other than taxes the town received $830.37. So far as the town was concerned, its net cost for schools for the year was $12,213.59, or 36 per cent.

Anticipating that the growth in population in Mansfield is most likely to occur along the state road from Willimantic to the Center, at the Ridges, at Storrs, and at the Depot, it is recommended that the greatest development of school plants and facilities be done in these four sections of the town. The report states that the population in the districts of the city, Chestnut Hill, Wormwood Hill and Gurleyville, is likely to fluctuate over a period of years, which means the investment for those sections should not be on a large scale.

The erection at Storrs of a four-room school, so planned that it can be enlarged to provide assembly hall and gymnasium as well as other classroom units, is one of the recommendations for 1927. This building should anticipate accomodating the seventh and eighth grades from the Hollow Depot and the areas which they serve, together with the ninth-year pupils now attending high school in Willimantic, says the report. This will be an effect organization when the enrollment in the grades 7-9 reaches 150 pupils.

At present there are about 100 pupils in this group. The report states that this school could be paid for with serial bonds; complete retirement to be effected in ten years. Other recommendations for 1927 include the sale of the Eagleville, City and Atwoodville school buildings, the proceeds to go to the building fund, and the beginning of improvement of Pleasant Valley road in anticipation of closing Chestnut Hill in 1928 and transporting to the Ridges.

The recommendations for 1928 are four in number. They are to sell the Gurleyville school and transport the pupils to Storrs; to take the proceeds of this sale and add to the building fund; to begin equipping playgrounds with apparatus for primary grades and with some play lay-outs for the upper grades; and complete improvement of Pleasant Valley Road, close Chestnut Hill, and transport to the Ridges.

Recommendations for the years 1929 to 1934 provide for the enlargement of the Storrs plant to provide an intermediate school organization for grades 7-9 from Storrs, Hollow, Depot, and the areas served by each under this scheme. This would mean a building with a combined assembly hall and gymnasium, a general laboratory for boys, a general laboratory for girls, and four small classrooms. This would make the Depot and Hollow plants primary schools.

Mansfield's high school enrollment with the addition of some tuition pupils would exceed 100 in 1940 according to Mr. Light's estimate, at which time he says the town should have a senior high school at Storrs. By 1934, he believes the town should have four school plants, the first of which would be an intermediate and primary school at Storrs, with the grades 1 to 9. Primary school at the Hollow and Depot would constitute the second plant, and an eight-grade, three room school at the Ridges would be the third plant. The fourth plant would be a modern one-room school at Wormwood Hill. In case the latter could not be constructed at that time, the pupils from that section would have to be transported to Storrs.

In 1940, the plans call for a senior high, intermediate and primary schools in one building at Storrs; primary schools at the Hollow and Depot, and eight grade, three and probably four-room school at Ridges. The Wormwood Hill facilities would be as recommended for 1934.

NEW ENGLAND CAN RETAIN TRADE RELATIONSHIP

There is no question but that in the past New England has been a leader in quality and quantity of manufactured goods in nearly all of the principal lines of industry writes Victor M. Cutter, president of the United Fruit company. Of recent years the leadership in various lines has been taken away from New England. This is a natural development for history shows clearly that easily established leadership and possession of wealth inevitably leads to lack of aggressiveness and most frequently to decline and fall in any line of human activity. Add to this the influence of the "dead hand" recently mentioned in Worcester, and the causes for the present situation in New England are perfectly evident.

We all know the situation in New England today. We have developed enormous manufacturing power. We produce in large quantities goods in many lines which compare favorably in quality with any produced elsewhere in the entire world. We have our share of water power, ports and harbors, transportation, skilled labor, and in fact all the fundamentals for a successful and constantly increasing trade. Our prosperity in the past has been so firmly established that it has led to self-satisfaction, lack of aggressiveness, and to a provincialism which has blinded us to the significance of the development of manufacturing and in industry in other parts of our country and to the need for developing new markets for our products.

Infinitesimal!

I believe that our manufacturing and production is amply cared for. I also believe that our merchandising and sales methods are rotten, and that our knowledge of markets for our products, both domestic and foreign, is infinitesimal. The remedy for the situation lies in a realization of these facts and in aggressive action in merchandising, which includes advertising and publicity, proper packaging and handling of our products, and the building up of sales and sales forces to balance our splendid manufacturing and production.

We have today all the necessary fundamentals for a successful export trade. Our government, and the state department in particular, is giving greater aid than ever before, our foreign service is greatly improved, government representatives are more active than ever before, our commercial policy is more clearly defined. American banking connections in foreign lands have vastly increased and are becoming adequate to support properly our own exporters. The transportation is greatly improved: more steamship lines to our potential markets are in operation than ever before. Trade information through the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, and other agencies, is adequate. In short, the necessary fundamentals for export trade are available.

Going After Markets

The essentials in addition to the mechanical details which are being discussed in this conference are:

1. Adaptability to our markets. We must scrap it necessary all of our former ideas as to modes and manners of exporting.

2. Study our potential customers and give them our splendid quality goods in the shape and form they desire.

3. Continuity of effort in our export business and we must protect our customers and markets through thick and thin and not, as heretofore, consider the world markets as a dumping ground in times of industrial and financial depression in our home markets.

4. Above everything else, we must develop a personnel familiar with the foreign end of the export trade. This is utterly lacking today and it goes without saying that all discussion of development of export trade without a proper sales force or trained Americans who know world markets intimately, is nothing but pure bunk.

Opportunities

Our markets are waiting for us. Our European trade is well developed, fairly well understood, and should remain constant without much hope for large increase. The undeveloped countries of the world present, in my belief, a great opportunity. The market in the orient is vast and only partially developed. I believe that our greatest natural markets lie in Latin America. Its potentialities are tremendous. It produces the products and raw materials which we cannot furnish ourselves and which we must have in increasing quantities—tropical fruits, sugar, tobacco, nitrates, timber, and hides, to mention only a few. In return it will need for years to come all of our varied New England manufactured products.

All we need is ability to visualize our opportunities in the world markets, adaptability in our handling of exports, development of personnel, and the guts to stick to export trade until our efforts meet with success. Granting these points, there is not the least question that New England can maintain her rightful position in the industrial and commercial world.

FISH TALES GALORE WITH RETURN OF EXPEDITION

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 16 (AP)—Fish tales, the kind that are sometimes taken with a little salt, are being told here, backed by proof, however, in the form of a collection of hundreds of species gathered by the schooner Blossom, on its recent scientific cruise.

The Blossom travelled 20,000 miles seeking specimens of pelagic littoral and island life for the Cleveland museum. Of the more than 12,000 collected 5,000 were forms of bird life and the next largest collection consisted of fish.

Headed by Captain George F. Simmons, the expedition spent 31 months gathering the specimens. Sharks, the deadly barracuda, bonitos, tunny fish, yellow jacks, flying fish, needle fish, skippers, half beaks and grunts were only a few of the hunters' prey.

Among the interesting specimens brought back is the Portuguese Man of War, known to science as a siphonophore. The fish possesses tentacles speckled with microscopic bombs which explode when they land on its victim, and fire minute harpoons, injecting an acid poison into the flesh.

The Sea Devil or Vampire of the Sea, closely resembling the stingaree of these waters, was harpooned by the Blossom. It has been known to pull the weight of a vessel after running afoul of the anchor chain. One blow from one of his wings which extend as much as 12 feet from tip to tip can stave in a whaleboat.

The Blossom encountered cat sharks, brown, blue and deepsea blue sharks and obtained several excellent specimens of them, including some newly born aboard ship. Man eating sharks, known as Tigers or great white sharks, were rarely met.

Several specimens of the deadly barracuda were secured. These are the only fish the South American natives dread.

With two fangs measuring an inch, jutting out from jaws of from eight to ten inches long, the barracuda is equipped to feed upon any flesh it meets. It is from two to four feet long as a rule and attains a maximum weight of 75 pounds.

Other fish caught included the golden dolphin, of changing hues, and the oceanic bonito, reputed to be the fastest inhabitant of the oceans. One flip of its tail is said to be sufficient to carry its torpedo shaped body a distance of 250 feet or more.

Mid-ocean fishing did not prove very productive and most of the specimens were caught near islands in the South Atlantic.

KING GEORGE MAY SEEK JOB IN THIS COUNTRY

BUCHAREST, July 16 (AP)—King George of Greece, throneless and jobless, soon may go to the United States to seek work.

Since his forced abdication in 1923, the young sovereign virtually has been living on the charity of friends and relatives. He and his pretty wife, Elizabeth, the eldest daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania, lived until recently in two small rooms of the royal palace at Cotrocenl, near Bucharest.

They did not eat with the king and queen of Rumania, but ha their meals alone in their modest apartment and generally lived in the most frugal way.

Now, however, their funds have given out, and the former king of the Hellenes says he must find a job. Friends in the United States have urged him and the former queen to go there, promising both of them remunerative positions.

But Elizabeth, who is a retiring girl, is afraid they will not be able to stand the commercial and social pace in America.

For the present they have separated. George going to his Danish relatives in Copenhagen, and Elizabeth joining her mother-in-law, former Queen Sophie (sister of Kaiser Wilhelm) at Florence. Later they will meet in Florence, and then decide on their future plans.

Although he still signs himself George Rex, the former sovereign's friends say he has definitely abandoned all hope of regaining the Hellenic throne. He recently was offered a position with a big Florida real estate concern, the officials of which believed he would be useful in interesting the crowned heads of Europe and wealthy aristocrats in American real estate.

But George's felt he had no experience or training that would qualify him as a salesman or promoter, and declined the position, which would have paid him $40,000 a year in salary and commission.

In this connection, it is interesting to recall that the former ruler of Greece already had refused an offer of $50,000 a year from the Greek revolutionary government if he would voluntarily abdicate as king. He chose, however, to retire only under threats of force, thus spurning an income that would easily have kept he and his wife in comfortable circumstances for life.

His friends say that he and his consort now regret his action, as there appears no prospect whatever that the Greek people will recall him to the throne. Moreover, he has no source of income except from small property holdings in Athens.

60 YEARS IN "GAME" BUT WOODEN INDIAN PLAYS ON

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 16 (AP)—The "Iron Men" of baseball have their day in the sun, then pass with the years, but Rochester's historic "Wooden Mah" remains ever in the game.

For more than a half century the wooden statue of a baseball player has "played the game" in front of Rochester cigar stores. He has outlived the wooden Indians that once offered competition, and has outplayed the famous baseball character he is supposed to represent—A. G. Spalding.

No games have been called on account of inclement weather, so far as he is concerned, nor has the season ever closed. Winter and summer he has stood the test of time.

But the heavy coating of paint is chipping away now, the white uniform is faded and the mass of black hair is flecked with gray.

For nearly sixty years the "Wooden Man" has stood poised in his present position.

Women's Consistency

NEW YORK, July 16 (AP)——Marion Blackton, daughter of J. Stuart Blackton, motion picture director, who vetoed Gardner James as a character in a film play, has approved him as a husband.

Following three years study in England the prospective bride became her father's assistant as scenarist and writer, also passing upon the casts of his pictures.

James was given the juvenile lead in The Happy Warror, over her protest, but within three weeks after that meeting, which was almost disastrous for him, they were engaged.

James has achieved stardom at 24, after a career including service at sea, a Broadway period as juvenile on the speaking stage, and motion picture experience culminating in the winning of a contract to star in five pictures for Inspiration.

The date of the wedding is indefinite.

Kiwanis Travel Tour

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, July 16 (AP)—More than 50 residents of at least 14 different states will soon be journeying from Shenandoah toward Europe because the local Kiwanis club believed in the educational value of traveling.

A special train carrying those who want to make the trip under auspices of the Kiwanis club will leave here July 21 for Montreal, from which point they will sail for points in England, Scotland, Ireland and France.

This is the third educational tour the Kiwanis club has sponsored. The first was arranged for school children to make an economical pilgrimage to the home and tomb of Abraham Lincoln at Springfield, Ill. Last year a tour for anyone was made to Niagara Falls.

ONLY 38 YEARS OLD BUT KNOWS AS MANY LANGUAGES

POSEN, Poland, July 16 (AP)—Tassilo Schultheiss, professor at the University of Posen, who is regarded as one of the greatest linguists in Europe today, knows 36 languages and 240 dialects.

Few people in Posen know him, for he leads the life of a recluse. Snow-white hair—he is only 38 years old—heightens the unusual character of his appearance.

For a number of years he was merely a modest teacher at the "gymnasium," or high school. When his unusual gifts were discovered, however, he was called to the university.

From a remote province in China there recently arrived a letter for a Posen merchant, who took it to the department of Oriental languages at the university.

DELANEY BATTERS CROWN FROM BERLENBACH'S HEAD IN TOUGH FIGHT

EBBETS FIELD, New York, July 16.—(AP)—In a flashing smashing finish that swept his foe before him throughout the last five rounds, Jack Delaney took the light heavy-weight champion of the world tonight from Paul Berlenbach.

The handsome French-Canadian challenger from Bridgeport, Conn., lifted the title with a victory that was spectacular as it was decisive. He carried off the unanimous verdict of the referee and judges besides being given a wide margin on points by the big majority of ringside critics.

A capacity crowd of 45,000, which paid approximately $475,000, to witness the spectacle, hailed the new champion with a terrific ovation after he had fought his way to the championship with as stirring, courageous and skillful a finish as any boxer has exhibited in years. It was the moment for which Delaney had been waiting for virtually two years—the crowning, at last, of the "uncrowned king" of the ring.

Delaney's triumph, however, was gained in a fashion as surprising as it was convincing for the challenger. In his winning finish, displayed the sort of stamina and aggressiveness which had been generally expected of the champion. Where Berlenbach was figured to be the stronger over the full route, with a better chance of victory if the fight went the limit, it was Delaney who had the most speed, the sharper hitting power and the ruggedness to turn the tide and carry off the decision in the last scenes of the struggle.

Delaney, in fact, turned the tables on Berlenbach in a manner that upset all pre-battle predictions and he did it in spite of fracturing a small bone in his left thumb in the second round of the fight. It wasn't until sometime after the men had left the ring and gone to their dressing rooms that Delaney's injury became known. There no evidence of its handicapping him in the ring, for his left was used with consistent and smashing effect throughout the last five rounds, but the knowledge of it made the new champion's triumph five rounds, but the knowledge of it made the new champion's triumph stand out all the more.

Delaney's hardest blows failed to knock Berlenbach off his feet but in at least three of the closing five rounds right uppercuts to the body and left hooks to the jaw had the champion a bit groggy. One of Delaney's smashes to the pit of the stomach in the eleventh round really turned the tide in the challenger's favor, giving him an advantage which he was quick to follow. Again in the fourteenth round, with the crowd yelling for a knockout, Delaney nailed Berlenbach on the point or the jaw with a swishing right. The champion sagged the knees for a moment and grasped for the ropes then fell into a clinch to save himself from further punishment.

The main thrills of the fight were concentrated in those last five rounds and Delaney's finish, for up until that time there was little or nothing to choose between them in a battle which found neither giving much ground, swapping blows on nearly an even basis.

Delaney had dropped four straight rounds and seemed wilting under the champion's persistent rushes when he opened up a furious drive in the eleventh. From that round on, the challenger took on new life, where he had seemed tired he was now the picture of aggressiveness, outboxing, outgeneralling and outfighting the champion at nearly very turn. Doggedly Berlenbach rushed in, occasionally sinking his deadly left chin to the body or connecting with Delaney's head, but the challenger always seemed master of the situation, cool in his defensive work and a sharp-shooter with either hand.

Berlenbach absorbed terrific punishment in those closing rounds but he did it courageously. Sensing that the title was slipping from his grasp just as Delaney saw he was on his way to victory, Paul gamely charged his foe, plunging in more fiercely as he was stung by sharp blows to the head. It took all of Delaney's agility to keep out of the way of the champion's blows but he avoided or parried most of them. Blood streamed from a bad cut over Berlenbach's left eye in the last four rounds, seeming almost to blind the champion at times, but he never halted his efforts to fight back.

In the final analysis however, Delaney held the edge in boxing craft and hitting effectiveness besides displaying the stamina to offset the champion's rugged aggressiveness.

The challenger conceded the champion a big advantage in weight, also. Officially, their marks were 174 1-4 for Berlenbach and 166 1-2 for Delaney but the champion gained considerably on his rival in poundage is a result of the 24 hour postponement of the battle, caused by rain. Tonight Berlenbach scaled at 181, six pounds over his class limit, while Delaney's weight was put at 169.

In the face of this and the further disadvantage of a damaged left thumb through 14 rounds of the battle, Delaney's achievement was hailed by veteran critics as one of the greatest in years. Ringside observers accorded the new titleholder nine of the fifteen rounds with five going to Berlenbach and one, the first, registered as even.

It was the third fight between these rivals, generally regarded as the foremost men of their weight and the second triumph for Delaney, Delaney knocked out Berlenbach in 1924 in four rounds but lost the decision to Paul in their first title fist last December.

The Preliminaries

Bantamweights held the opening glare of the spotlight in the preliminaries with Tommy Loreno of New York gaining a four round decision over Billy Reynolds of Jersey City in a bristling setto. Lorenzo weighed 118 1-2 and Reynolds 120.

Arthur Dekuh, Italian heavyweight, made short work of Sergeant Jack Adams of St. Louis, knocking the soldier out in the second round of an eight round match.

Dekuh, fiercely aggressive, floored Adams for a count of nine with a left hook and right cross early in the second round. The Sergeant came up groggy and was an easy target afterward, going down once more before he took a count of ten. Dekuh weighed 203, Adams 188 1-2.

Julius Weisse of Germany and Tommy Walsh of Dublin fought a [illegible] round [illegible] an added attraction. Walsh [illegible]ed 168 1-4, Weisse 164 1-2.

Monte Munn, Nebraska's "Larrupin' Legislator," pounded his way to a decisive victory over Gordon Munce, New York heavyweight, in four rounds, but failed to obtain a knockout for the first time in his meteoric career in Metropolitan rings.

Munn floored Munce six times, but the latter's rameness enabled him to be on his feet at the final bell despite the terrific punishment he absorbed. Munn weighed 208 and Munce 196 1-2.

In an eight-round semi-final, staged after the main event, ten more of England received a decision over Jimmy France of Union City, N. J.

YANKEES RALLY IN 9TH AND BEAT OUT TIGERS

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP)—Staging another sensational ninth inning rally which netted them three runs, the Yankees nosed out Detroit today, 4 to 3, giving them an even break in the four-game series. Johns pitched brilliantly for the Tigers yielding one hit in seven and two-thirds innings but then lost control. Stoner, Cooper and Holloway succeeded him in the box and after Lazzeri's triple scored Ruth and Combs with the tying runs, Dugan singled bringing Lazzeri in with the winnings tally. Score:

The Mackmen won both games by batting rallies in the third inning of each contest, giving them the entire series of three games with the visitors. Red Hargrave, of St. Louis, hit a home run with one on base in the second game. The Athletics have won twelve of the last fourteen games played. Score:

WAUREGAN TO HAVE A TWILIGHT LEAGUE

At a meeting held in the Atwood Hose Company's rooms last Thursday night it was voted to start a Twilight League of four teams, consisting of players made up of employes of the Wauregan Company only.

These four teams will be known as The Maynard Giants, The Raymond Colts, The Govern Speedboys, and the Dessert Braves.

They will play two games each week on the ball grounds at Wauregan, starting next Monday night, July 19, at 6.45 p. m., d. s. t. The teams will be: Governs Speedboys vs. Raymonds Colts.

The league officials will be: Directors, E. J. Farrell, F. D. Harrower, Henry Leach. Secretary, Robert J. H. Bethel. Treasurer, J. Harold S. Wignall, President, E. J. Farrell.

The league will be formally opened by a short street parade with all four teams in line, headed by the well known Wauregan band.

There is perhaps not another village in the state that can boast of as many good baseball players as Wauregan and the people of Wauregan are going to open some classy, fast baseball.

GAUTHIER PITCHES PERFECT GAME FOR TAFTVILLE AGAINST THE BEARCATS

"Rabbit" Gauthier, pitching for the Taftville A. A. in a game against the Taftville Bearcats at the Providence street grounds pitched a perfect seven-inning game. During the seven innings not a man reached first base and Gauthier fanned nine of the opposing batsmen. This is the second no-run, no-hit game that the Rabbit has hurled during the past two weeks. His teammates hit freely piling up seven runs.

Seldom is it that youngster has pitched such brilliant ball game after game as this Taftville star. In last night's game Gauthier was in fine form and his teammates played brilliantly in back of him, not a man being credited with an error. The Taftville A. A. players gathered 12 hits off the delivery of Dudek, three going for extra bases one of which was a double by Gauthier. The score:

RIVERVIEW PLAYS TWO GAMES AT HOSPITAL THIS WEEKEND

The Riverview club will play two games at the State Hospital diamond this weekend, meeting the J. B. Martin team today in the first game of the series between these two clubs, and clashing with the Newport Naval Training Station club at the Riverview diamond on Sunday. This is the first time that Riverview has attempted Sunday baseball on the home diamond since the institution was started and it is more or less of an experiment to find out if Norwich fans will patronize Sunday ball at the institution.

Today's game will be a game that is purely of local interest and as always will no doubt prove one of the most interesting games of the season. The rivalry between these two baseball organizations is always at fever pitch and it is bound to be a fight from start to finish. Manager Zemke realizes that the Velvetmen will bring down the strongest team that it is possible for them to round up. Riverview has secured the services of Joe Mulkey, star shortstop of the Newport Training station team to play second today and Jack Clabby will be in right field in place of Joe Hamel who has been shifted to centerfield to take the place of Denny Moore, who is out of the game with an injured ankle. Tony West will do mound duty for Riverview while Dugas will be saved for the Newport game the following day.

It is understood that the Velvetmen have strengthened their lineup considerably and either Ginger Clearly or some other well known semi-pro hurler will be on the mound. The lineups for both clubs as far known is as follows:

Riverview: Normandin ss, Liberty 2b, Mills lf, Hamel cf, Clabby rf, Mulkey 2b, Harrell 1b, Belair c, Dugas p, West p.

J. B. Martin: Krauss lf, DeCelles ss, F. Gley 2b, J. Murphy c, W. Gley rf, F. Murphy 1b, Joubert cf, F. Murphy 2b Peppin p, Cleary c.

Sunday's Game

For the game Sunday Manager Zemke will pitch Lefty Dugas who did so well against the sailors two weks ago and although Riverview was beaten, 3 to 2, Dugas pitched brilliant ball. Those who saw the last meeting between these clubs know that a better game could not have been asked. Both teams played brilliantly and only hard hitting won for the sailors. The Newport team possesses one of the fast outfield combinations that has ever played on a local diamond. In their last appearance here theoutfield had [illegible] putouts. Crawford, who was able to hold the Riverview team, will probably start on the mound in Sunday's game.

Riverview will be out for revenge in Sunday's contest and if Dugas pitches as well as he did in the last game it will be a contest well worth seeing. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock. The lineups:

Riverview: Normandin ss, More cf, Mills lf, Hamel 2b, Liberty 3b, Clabby rf, Harrell 1b, Belair c, West p, Dugas p.

Naval Training Station: McWilliams 2b, Pederson lf, Tague 1b, Mulvey ss, Murray 3b, Pelton rf, Yetran cf, McKiman c, Crawford p, Layton p.

WARRIORS AND SHAMROCKS CLASH ON SUNDAY

A large crowd should be on hand when the Warriors and Shamrocks of New London cross bats at Duwell field on Sunday afternoon in the first game of a series to decide the inter-city championship.

The lineup for the visitors as given out by Manager Chester includes some of hte best talent in the Whaling City. Either Collins of this year's Bulkeley team or Shefflott former Bulkeley and Fordham catcher the past year will catch with either M. Brown, Chapman Tech star or Argton pitch. The infield will be taken care of by J. Brown, Chapman Tech player, LaMotte, Geno Montall, Bulkeley the past season, Aquillo of Chapman Tech and Tuneski. In the outfield such players as Ryan, King, Hansen and Chapman.

The Warlors will lineup with either Couture or Lefty Pavlak, pitch, and Jab Burns, who has recovered from an injury received last week, catch. The outfield will be taken care of by Kempf at first, W. Burns or Marchand at second, Gibbs at short and Hamil at third. In the outfield Fitzgerald will roam in left, Jackson in center and either W. Burns or Marchand in right.

The game is scheduled to start at 3.15 p. m. sharp.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE ENTERS SECOND ROUND OF SCHEDULE

As a result of last night's Twilight league meeting held at the Duwell club the prospects of the Twilight league are again bright and rosy. All reports that the league was in hard shape and that a couple of the teams were about to withdraw proved unfounded, and when the meeting adjourned at 9:15 every manager appeared well satisfied and all agreed that their teams would fight to the last ditch and no matter who wins the pennat they sure will have earned it. Next week begins the second round and should produce some real good ball games as all the teams are playing in mid-season form and if the games to come are any where near as good as those played during the past few weeks the fans will no doubt witness some high class ball during the second half.

On Monday night the East Ends will play the St. Joseph's. Thursday night Yantic will play the Warriors and on Friday the Eastern Conn. Power Co. will play the Bon Tons.

TAFTVILLE A. A. AND FALCONS CLASH THIS AFTERNOON

The Falcons of New Britain and the Taftville A. A. will clash at the Providence street grounds this afternoon in what Taftville considers one of the most important games of the season. Taftville bases its claim on the fact that the Falcons have twice beaten Riverview once at Riverview and once at New Britain. If Taftville beats the Falcons this afternoon Manager Troland considers that his club will rank along side of the Riverview club.

It is probable that Manager Troland will start Lloyd Jarvis on the mound for Taftville, holding Lefty Buckland in reserve. The remainder of his lineup will be the same as defeated the Bristol New Departure team.

The Falcons will lineup as follows: Ferguson rf, Huber lf, J. Kamia 2b, Budnick ss, Si Budnick 3b, Klatka 1b, Kopec c, Benson c, R. Walski p, or B. Kania p.

Taftville will lineup: Eccleston c, Buckland or Jarvis p, Cardle 1b, Tombari 2b, Yerrington 3b, Gauthier ss, Leo Jarvis lf, Floyd Jarvis cf, Lefty Dona or Gaudette rf, Guilette ss.

VELETMEN TO PLAY TRUMBULL STARS TOMORROW

A fast game is in store for the locals Sunday afternoon at the J. M. Martin grounds when the Velvetmen cross bats with the fast Fort Trumbull Stars of New London. This club has played some of the best semi-pro clubs in the state and has shown the people of the Whaling City that they still have the baseball fight that they had in previous years.

Manager Gadbois will use Zepp, the speed ball pitcher who made a great record with the Chapman Tech team of New London for several seasons. Gadbois will do the backstop work; Hewitt or Emery will cover 1st, Soule will be seen at 2nd; Hutchison 3rd, Jackson or Brewer will take care of short. In the outfield will be Belknap or Dodds lf, W. Chapman cf, G. Chapman, Coda or Robinson rf, Dickson, Johnstone and Seagraves, utility.

The Velvetmen have been put through a stiff workout this week and are out to take the count of the Stars. They will lineup as follows: J. Murphy c, Pepin or Lemieux p, J. Joubert 1st, F. Murphy 2nd, F. Gley 3rd, DeCelles ss. The outfield will be taken care of by W. Gley, E. Joubert, C. Krauss and E. Murphy, U. Pepin and F. Smith, utility.

Simcox and Roy will officiate.

SARAZEN MAKES SPLENDID DEFENSE OF HIS TITLE

GARDEN CITY, N. J., July 16.—(AP)—Gene Sarazen of Fresh Meadow rallied with a 70 in defense of his Metropolitan open golf championship today over links of the Salisbury Country Club, slicing the lead of Mac Donald Smith to three strokes at the end of the first 36 holes.

Jim Barnes of Rockwood Hall, duplicated his opening round of 72 to claim third place at 144, one stroke better than the total of Joe Turnesa of Fairview.

At the close of the day's play, all those with scores above 153 were dropped. Those who qualified will play the final 36 holes tomorrow.

NORTH STONINGTON DRIVER FOUND PROBABLY GUILTY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 16—In the manslaughter case, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly, vs. Henry F. Narrone, of North Stonington, in which Narrone was charged with the death of Edward McKernan on the evening of November 17th, 1925, as the result of being struck by defendant's auto when in front of Westerly post office, Judge Williams found Narrone probably guilty. An appeal was taken by his attorney, Clarence E. Roche, who furnished surety for Narrone's appearance in the September term of superior court for Washington county.

The defendant claimed he was operating at a rate of speed between ten and 12 miles per hour, while Town Solicitor Ferguson stated that 20 miles per hour was the speed Narrone first told Westerly police authorities.

For the state, D. Girard Shea testified that he saw McKearnan struck and the two left wheels of the auto pass over McKernan's body before the machine was brought to a stop.

Dr Michael H. Scanlon, Westerly medical examiner and Dr. J. Gordon Anderson, surgeon at Westerly hospital, testified as to the injuries suffered by Mr. McKernan.

Town Solicitor John Ferguson informed the court that the state advises the discontinuance of two manslaughter cases, which had been on the docket for sometime, as there was not sufficient evidence to secure conviction.

These cases were Thomas E. Brown vs. Percy L. Perry, who operated an automobile on Canal street, February 17th, when Peter M. Rose was struck and his death followed.

Thomas E. Brown vs. Edwin Barber, Jr., this complaint charging the death of Edward J. Shulds, 3, on Elm street May 26th, when the child was reported to have stepped in front of the truck operated by the defendant.

He changed his plea of not guilty to one of nolo. Represented by Attorney Michael J. Turano, the court was informed that the attorney general's department recommended a suspended sentence. A two months suspended sentence was imposed.

Judge Oliver H. Williams Friday morning held a lengthy session of the Third District court, which did not adjourn until 12:30 o'clock. He read the following:

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

ELKS

Charls H. Grakelow of Philadelphia was unanimously elected grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks by the grand lodge at Chicago this week. He succeeds Judge William Hawley Atwell of Dallas, Texas.

Grakelow, director of public welfare in his city, was nominated by W. Freeland Kendick, mayor of Philadelphia, and was elected without opposition. He has been a member of the Philadelphia lodge since 1907, has served as exalted ruler six terms, and has been president of the Pennsylvania Elks association. He was grand esquire of the order for three years and has been a member of the grand lodge committee on membership.

Acknowledging his election, Mr. Grakelow urged that "every Elks lodge be directly known as the civic center of its community, the one great meeting place where all patriotic and charitable activities converge and where the unfortunate comes for succor."

"Bill," from Cordova, Alaska, shook hands at the convention with "Bill" from the Panama Canal zone, and "Bill" from Hawaii and California mingled with "Bills" from Maine and Florida—all brothers under purple and white hat bands as Chicago was transformed into the metropolis of Elkdom.

To the tune of 100 bands "the best people on earth," had moved into the city, to be welcomed at a public meeting and prepared for an extensive program of amusements and sessions of the grand lodge at which session of the grand lodge.

To the gathered multitudes and to those who welcomed the visitors, Judge William Hawley Atwell of Dallas, Texas, the retiring grand exalted ruler, delivered this philosophy of Elkdom:

"The Elks is not a political order. It is not a religious order. It is not a selfish order. It takes thought neither of ambitions nor successes, or riches.

"It knows the fires of love. It lives for the future. It is the society of the sincere and seeks deliverance from the deceitful; the society of service seeking deliverance from selfishness.

"It's philosophy is for men. It is grateful for life, for opportunity, for nation and for every adversity that makes men stronger."

A roll call of cities and towns throughout the nation was presented on the hat bands of the visitors, who swelled the population of Chicago by more than 150,000.

They were the representatives of the 826,704 members of the order, the total named in annual reports made public at the convention. These reports also showed that the fraternity had assets of $95,000,000 and had spent $2,407,000 for charity in the last year.

Public playgrounds, camps for poor children, fuel and rent for needy families, the boy scouts, medical work, Thanksgiving baskets, hospital donations and public relief work were the principal beneficiaries of the welfare fund.

Judge Atwell, in his annual report referred to the suspension of charter rights of seven lodges for violation of prohibition laws, and continued:

"Upon the question of intoxicating liquors, whether on the person or for sale, the issue has been fairly met by our fraternity, and I think I may say without being far wrong, that all of the lodges have recognized the wisdom, not to say necessity, of living within any and every law that is passed by state or nation. The order cannot pretend to be patriotic if it does not live the laws of the land. The unanimity of response of the lodges with reference to this matter was not only encouraging and inspiring, but is the finest evidence of clean sportsmanship and clean Americanism I have ever seen."

A majestic memorial in gleaming white stone erected in honor of the 71,000 Elks who served in the World war, brought back wartime memories to thousands of members who gathered for the sixty-second annual convention of the fraternity.

The Memorial building, facing Lincoln park on the lake front, was turned over to the order on Wednesday. It cost $3,000,000 and will serve as executive headquarters for the fraternity. Built of limestone, its principal feature is a monumental memorial hall, giving the edifice a circular shape, with low rectangular wings flanking the central cylinder.

The Elks culminated the grand lodge reunion with a colorful procession in which 10,000 men swung along the north shore in a broad ribbon of blaring bands, sumptuous floats, canarisoned drum corps and drill squads arrayed in the purple and white of the fraternity.

Led by squadrons of motorized and mounted police and by the officials of the grand lodge, the parade proceeded northward from the business district under a hot July sun to the martial airs of more than a 100 bands.

The Illinois delegations, four thousand strong, followed the escort up the line of march and in their wake came marchers, floats, bands and drum corps from almost every state of the country.

Philadelphia's contingent, with three bands and a half dozen floats, calling attention to the sesqui-centennial celebration, vied for the applause to the witnessing throng with the gay hosts of the Pacific coast, and cowboy bands from Dallas and Mexican musicians from El Paso strove for favor against the brightly helmeted platoons of St. Paul.

From a broad plaza before the national memorial of the order at the parade's northern terminus, officials of the grand lodge, with Grand Exalted Ruler Charles Grakelow and retiring Ruler William Hawley Etwell at their head, reviewed the procession at the side of high officials of city and state who joined in paying tribute to the fraternity. The procession was one of the longest ever to pass through the city's thoroughfares.

IMMERGRUEN

Two flags, one the American emblem and the other the lodge flag in black, red and gold, were presented by the Immergruen Guards to Mrs. Lena Liepold, deputy of Immergruen lodge, No. 12, when the Guards celebrated their first anniversary Tuesday evening after the regular meeting of Immergruen lodge. After the flags had been dedicated by Grand Vice-President Mrs Marie Lehman of Rockville and Ex-grand Presidents Mrs. Emma Schultz and Mrs. H. Wolf, both of Bridgeport, they were given a salute by the singing of the Star Spangled Banner as they were both carried around the hall.

The grand officers installed the newly elected officers and the guards assisted. At the close of the meeting every one was invited to sit down to lunch which consisted of coffee, cake, sandwiches and pickles.

Grand President, Henry Liepold of Norwich and First Grand Vice-President, Herman Staab of New London were present and also a large number of Germania and Junior Branch members. The hall and tables were decorated with ramblers and other flowers. The committee in charge of the lunch were: Mrs. Julia Gresser, Mrs. Elizabeth Voech and Mrs. Hulda Rosoll and the guards were waitresses.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange, No. 173, held a well attended meeting Wednesday evening in Steiner hall with Worthy Master Ida Richardson presiding. The business meeting was followed by the lecturer's hour with an interesting programme which began with an informal talk by Judge Nelson J. Ayling who spoke in an instructive way upon taxation in general, referring to federal, state and local taxes, to which, he said, all were subject whether they were conscious of it or not. One point that he made which his hearers appreciated was that the federal government was giving us some reduction in taxes, but not so with the local government.

Piano selections by Miss Faith Ryan were followed by an original sketch, "Summer House Gossip," of which Mrs. John E. Fanning was the author. The stage setting was in the form of a garden and the lines of the play brought in clever touches upon members of the grange. Those taking part were Mrs. Myra Waters, Mrs. Fanning, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Mrs. Clarence Smith, Mrs. Anna Woods, Miss Belle Rathbone, Miss Sherlock Fowler, Miss Taggart, Mrs. William S. How Methuselah Did

Methuselah ate what he found on his plate,
And never, as people do now,
Did he note the amount of the caloric count—
He ate it because it was chow.
He wasn't disturbed, as at dinner he sat,
Destroying a roast or a pie,
To think it was lacking in granular fat,
Or a couple of vitamines shy.
He cheerfully chewed every species of land,
Untroubled by worries or fears
Lest his health might be hurt by some fancy dessert—
And he lived over nine hundred years!

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

July 20—Club No. 6 has picnic at Atlantic Beach.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

XANNA: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

NAS TA BEGA: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

BALSAM FIR: Thanks for card. It looks most interesting.

GETTING READY FOR MORE PICNICS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a short letter today. Whirlwind and I had a delightful time at "Allyn's Point" with club No. 6 and reached home safely about 7 o'clock.

Jennie: Do you want to go to Sister David Dean's picnic in Norwich August 4th? Let me know.

Mavis: Do you also want to go? I am hiring a neighbor's car for that day and would like three more if you Hartford Sisters to go.

Priscilla: Sister Dean wanted me to especially invite you to go as she knows you real well. Will all you Hartford Sisters write me at once? If one can't go maybe another can as there are several of you there. I can only take three more. Be at Parsons' theatre at 9:45. If anything happens I can't get there and am unable to let you know don't wait after 9:30 for me. For all I know now I can go.

Was glad to meet the new Sisters at Allyn's Point, and we are planning on visiting club No. 6 at Atlantic Beach.

Olga: Where and how are you and all the dear Sisters? Mother is fine. Mr. Foxglove is very miserable, though we have been able to find the cause of all his trouble and hope in another month or so he will be well on the road to recovery.

Helper: Do you have a picnic this year? Sympathy for all sick and shut-ins. Also bereaved ones. Some day when I can collect my thoughts will write a more interesting letter.

Balsam Fir: Love to you and thanks for letters.

FINE DAY AT CRIMSON RAMBLER'S

Dear Social Corner Members: I want to tell you it was my good fortune to spend the day with Crimson Rambler one day last week. Months ago when roads were bad she invited interested Reader and myself to visit her, when the wheeling got good, so when the invitation came for us to come July 7 we made plans to be there and so we were. Such a good time as we had visiting, admiring rugs, quilts, etc. At noon time we did justice to a fine chicken dinner. In the cool of the day we journeyed home and now when the days are so full of duties that take all our time and strength that is something pleasant to think about.

From O. D. I hear good reports from the picnic that was held at Allyn's Point. Now we all want to remember the meeting on July 25 when Club No. 6 is to meet at Atlantic beach on day light time. As usual bring dishes and food also drink this time. The buses leave Westerly for Atlantic beach a quarter before the hour so will connect with the Norwich bus.

Melissa: Supposed you were all well but heard today the hand is still troubling you. Tried to call on you recently but no one was home.

PICNIC AT GALES FERRY MUCH ENJOYED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: When I opened my Bulletin and saw Our Page only half filled I was ashamed that I hadn't written last week, but will do my bit this week.

With other members of Club 6, I attended the Social Corner picnic at the home of Bay State, Allyns Point. Such a fine place for a picnic it proved to be, and the hostess and her husband did everything possible to make it pleasant for their guests who numbered over 50 I believe. The view of Thames river from the lawn was beautiful and the dinner served in the orchard was all that could be desired, with many good things to eat and a jolly party to sit down.

In fact, a few of us, sat down rather hard, but no one seemed to mind.

Some of the ladies came a long distance, one having left home at 4 a. m. It was told and others coming from Southington. I'm sure they will all feel repaid if they come to Atlantic beach for Club 6's picnic, July 20 and hope they make a try for it.

Beth C: Yes I did have a nice visit with my mother. Can you come to our picnic?

Melissa: How are you? A long time since I've seen you.

E. L. M.: Glad to have your letter and know you enjoyed your visit with Crimson Rambler.

American Girl: Shall look for you July 20, and I don't believe I shall be much surprised. He's hoping July 20 proves to be a real picnic day.

CARING FOR CEETERIES

Dear Social Corner Friends: I enjoy the letters in The Bulletin regardless of who by, or views expressed. They give us mental food, something to think about while trudging around our kitchens attending to the many duties that are unknown to inexperienced people. Just a bit surprised to find only about four columns filled in last Saturdays paper.

If the women of our city fail to turn out and vote at our town and city elections we are criticised by some of our politicians thus: "The women do not appreciate what has been given them." As we going to have the same applied to us regarding the Social Corner page?

In our trips around the country places it is a satisfaction to me to observe the country cemeteries are being cared for better. Saw one where the ground has been spaded up as it looks from the road, stones straightened up, brush cut and at once the thought comes, "the dear ones are not forgotten." This yard referred to is just outside our city and had been much neglected. It is old and may be the new cemetery just beyond has reminded some of our good people of the neglect.

Think the idea of dispensing with the small stones, known as foot stones, fine as they so hinder mowing the yards and think all cemeteries containing them should have them removed. I am just going to have ours removed in Westminster and Canterbury. Another bad thing to work around or let get into cemeteries or close to a church in the country is poison ivy. My son suffered much and had to go to a doctor by trying to clear one grave of the vine. It is allowed to cover some of the trees near the Congregational church. Such a nice little quiet place, fine view to east, fine air, but can not go there often on account of the condition of road for three miles. It is the shortest route from Hartford to Providence—old stage line—and can not help wishing some of our state officials were obliged to ride over it every day for one month. How changed Westminster would be in a few years! See many roads improved and money spent on less important highways. Why not boost Westminster a bit?

GETTING OUT INTO THE GARDEN

Dear Social Corner Friends: This morning at 4 a. m. I heard it raining and I thought of the little verse we used to read in school:

Oh! the rain the welcome rain,
Cheerily, merrily falls,
Beating its wings against the window panes,
Trickling down the walls.

It certainly was a most welcome rain, and has done lots of good, but we need more.

Our lawn is like lots of others, brown and bare, but a good soaking rain will work wonders.

I just felt like working in the garden this morning.

I had a few nice tomato plants that had been left over, so I set them out. Perhaps a frost will get them, but nothing venture nothing have.

Then I went down to the big garden and set out over 100 cabbage plants, and planted a package of leicle radish seed. Then I came back to the little garden and worked until noon. It is astonishing what can be raised on a small piece of ground. This little early garden is 20 x 60 feet and we have used it for 13 years. At one end we have two rows of rhubarb. Along one side and at the other end we have gooseberry, currant and red raspberry bushes.

Next to the rhubarb are two rows of sugar peas, the kind you string the beans and eat the pod as well as the pea, then two rows each of blue banham and telephone peas. Farther along we have two kinds planted of an early variety. There are pole limas, bush limas and a row of beans to be used for green beans. We have beets ready to use. Swiss chard and spinach, and three rows of lettuce. Chickens are very fond of the latter, so we always plant a lot.

One lot of peas I've cleaned up and planted it again with beans. When the other peas have ripened for seed the vines will be cleared away to make room for celery. Then there are five rows of onion sets and they are making fine onions. I always have a few flowers to brighten it up a bit. There is a row of gladiolus, some asters, poppies, calendulas, dahlias, the old fashioned blue-bell zinnias, and roses.

The roses I bought this spring and all have bloomed.

The soil is very fertile and everything does well for the care given it.

We have had a cold summer but let's hope for a late fall.

WILTWICK.

CORNER PAGE LOOKED EMPTY

Dear Social Corner: Hello Everybody! As you all see, it is very seldom that I drop in and make you a visit, but as I live in Norwalk, Conn., I only write when I'm in Norwich visiting. As that's only every six months or so, I don't get a letter in very often. Of course I realize this is a pretty poor excuse but as the old saying is, "A poor excuse is better than none." I'll just hope you will all forgive me.

I suppose nearly all the sisters had a glorious Fourth. I had quite a nice time in my own way but not an awful lot of noise though.

My aunt and uncle, my youngsters and myself hired a car. First of all we went to Columbia lake but as it was early in the morning everything was dead. From there we went to friends of ours where we had a very nice chicken dinner. No cold storage chicken, it was the real stuff. After dinner my aunt and uncle and the party where we were visiting, also our driver, all went fishing. I stayed home as I didn't want to stay around with the baby. After they had been gone about two hours I saw them coming and naturally supposed they had a pail of fish and what do you suppose! They didn't bring home one. Both women said they caught a fish but let it go but I think the whole thing a fish story.

I noticed Saturday our Corner page looked empty. Hope everyone isn't getting as careless as I am. I see Kitty Lou is as faithful about writing as ever and it is always something interesting. Was hoping to see a few lines from Anna Z. as I feel quite sure I know her.

Anna Z.: When you read this if you recognize me why give me a hint, will you? Here is a real good hint, will you. We went by the old farm in Pine street Sunday. Now if you don't guess who I am you are not the party I think you are.

Will close wishing good luck to you all. I think I made a mistake in choosing my pen name, it should have been Unfaithful. Bye folks.

OLD FAITHFUL.

WATERMELON, WEASLES AND EARLY D AYS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: Here I am again. I bet you thought I had gone on a vacation trip. Our page last week looked as though we had all gone visiting. Perhaps to Beach pond where there are plenty of fish and not a mosquito, and lovely roads all the way. I should like to see more letters this week as I set great store by those letters. Biddy Ann and I read every one. Perhaps you are very busy. The women folks are canning. The men are very busy getting in their hay. The gardens are showing up very poorly, stuff looks dried and stunted. My tomato plants that were set out the first of June have grown five inches. I see where I'll have a bumper crop this season. My garden all together reminds me of one I had when a youngster. Each day pulled and dug up all that I had planted to make sure it was growing. In this same garden I had grown a large watermelon just ready to sample and was intending to take it with us the following Sunday. However I got worried and thought I would make it fast against thieves so I put up a sign which read in large black letters, "Beware this melon has been doctored with a strong poison." The melon was gone next morning. How badly I felt. Perhaps if I hadn't called attention to it by putting up the sign no one would have taken it. Sis had some of it at a neighbors next day although she said she knew nothing of where the melon came from.

It pleased me much at the time to find Sis got the measles along with the melon but after a time and she got real sick I was sorry and a few more days I was more sorry for I came down with them. We were both quite sick. I never saw Sis for two weeks. Sis and I were all there was of the family. How long and lonesome the days were! I fully forgave her for taking the melon I wished many times we could have had the measles in the same room but I was upstairs but not in my real room. My real room had rats, and in winter the snow came in around the casing so my pillow would be nearly covered. One night I got afraid I would get buried under the snow so I moved my straw tick and blanket to the floor under the bed. I didn't like rats, but mice didn't matter. One stayed in and out of the room all winter but I didn't like him in my bed. One morning the farmer came to call me. I was late. He pulled back the bedclothes and there in bed was a little mouse. The farmer killed him. I was glad yet sorry he was all the pet I had. He was very fond of popcorn.

One night I was pulled out of bed by the farmer and was told to go downstairs and out to the yard to remove the saw horse from where I had left it. The farmer returning late from town had fallen over it and barked both shins. He was some mad. Another time the farmer and the hired man had a set to. He hit the man with his first. I was hoping there would be a fight but the farmer was a coward. He pushed the hired man down the cellar stairs which hurt the man very much as the steps were stone.

Biddy Ann wishes very much to know what will cure dandruff. She says she had much rather have bugs in her hair than dandruff. One can get rid of the bugs.

Now I should like to ask where would be a nice drive. We are invited to go with friends and are given our choice of the place to visit. Now I like museums because I've never seen one but I don't like parks because right here we have 'em skinned on scenery. We are living near three states. Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. I should like to spend the day in Massachusetts. Now what could we visit of interest without going into a large city that would give us a long ride and yet have time to take in the sights. Please leave all cities out of the drive if possible. Now I shall be looking for an answer in next week's paper. Perhaps some sister has taken just such a ride and will write to me through this paper. I'm sure I shall appreciate the kindness very much. I should like best to visit some historical place. Biddy Ann would like best the shore resort where there is plenty of amusement.

Hoping and trusting the sick are gaining and thanking who can will try and take a day off for pleasure, so as to add a day on to life, and thanking you in advance. I am as ever.

LULAR WYLIE.

SURPRISED AT FEW LETTERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I was so thankful for the lovely rain we had last night. The growing things did look sick, but today they are all spruced up again. Have just come down from my daily walk in the garden and all the vegetables seem to have quite a different look. We needed rain badly.

I was surprised to see so few letters in last Saturday's Corner page. I suppose most of the sisters are on their vacation. I have just had three day's vacation, which I spent in Norwich with Bob White. Did not meet but one Social Corner sister and just had a few words with her. Missed not seeing Necia but hope she is all right.

Mary France: You had a lovely day for your visit with Nema. Will we go to the lake some Sunday?

Canterbury Bell: Haven't heard from you for ages. Hope all is well. Think of you quite often, especially when attending to my flowers.

O. D.: Quite a parade for a small town. Hope you enjoyed your visit.

Would love to go to Antlantic beach with the Shore Line club but it is beyond my reach. To all who are sick or in trouble I extend my sympathy.

MARIGOLD.

MORE ABOUT CATS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Not very many letters last week and oh how we would miss the Corner if there were none. Some of the sisters have been writing about cats, so I will add my mite. Cats dread death terribly. Eagles are their greatest enemies, attacking puss with a swoop, much the same as puss attacks a dog. In a fray with the latter the cat often is but slightly hurt, for her skin is so loose it can be pulled half way round her body. She has been called a thief. There are many proverbs to this effect and they have the ring of truth. The cat looks on the property of man in the same way as the white man regarded the property of the American Indian. They have a definite property sense as far as their own property is concerned, however and will defend it.

We have had some good poems and many of them. I'll send the verses of an old song which many of the older sisters will remember.

JOAN.

ATTENDING AN OLD HOME WEEK

Well! Social Corner Sisters: After seeing the Saturday Corner page I felt ashamed that so few of us had written.

Kitty Lou and Ethelyn and a few other faithful ones had done their bit; (as usual). So I am going to try and write a letter.

About the middle of June I received a card with a picture of old Mt. Tom, and written underneath was Old Mt. Tom calls you to come to Old Home week, July 4, at Easthampton, Mass. So the 3rd of July I boarded the Springfield bus and at Springfield took the trolley for Easthampton. I received a very cordial welcome from my cousin when I reached her home. Sunday with a party in three autos I went to "The Gorge" just above Chesterfield. A most beautiful place, all fitted up with tables and benches on each side; also stoves and fireplaces where you can cook anything you please.

The gorge has steep sides a 100 feet or more high of granite and at some time water must have rushed through it as in some places it is all wavy looking. There you can see "the old man of the valley." His face must be about 30 feet long. Then going down at one place you can go across on stepping stones. I went part way across but when I almost lost my balance and came near getting a ducking I went back and stayed with Bachelor Maid.

The others (built on more slender lines) climbed a large rock in the center of the stream and had snap shots taken.

Lonesome Pine and Cypress were in that group. July 5th there was a fine parade with band, floats, and all the different societies, also school children. It was splendid. I wish you could have seen the Polish children, about a 1,000 of them all dressed in national costume.

The thought came to me me how hard the mothers or those children had worked making those costumes. The girls wore embroidered bodices and their stockings were white all wound with red ribbon, beautiful indeed they were.

Many elderly women marched. Also one band of young women dressed in red, white and blue costumes made a large American flag.

I wish I could describe all the different parts of the parade, but time and lack of talent forbid.

I met some old friends I had not seen for 30 years. All in all, I spent two wonderful days. And July 4th and 5th, 1926 will be red letter days in my calendar of happiness.

Eca: What a wonderful time we had on your birthday. We also celebrated Savilla's at your home same day. Was glad I was one of the favored ones.

Jack the Hunter: Congratulations. May you have a happy and prosperous time in your new life.

Club No. 4: What a good time I did have at your meeting in Danielson. Everything, both as to dinner and entertainment, was just right. I made a mistake (because of the new time) and left an hour earlier than I needed. Will do better next time. Think Club 6 sent a good delegation. But am sure they felt repaid. Also Club No. 5. Club No. 6: At the two meetings I attended, I did so enjoy myself. Was sorry I could not attend the last one June 13. But I went to Providence the 16th as my youngest daughter graduated receiving her degrees of bachelor of arts at Brown, so could not go. Am planning to meet with you at Atlantic beach the 20th.

E. L. M.: Those Leans were all the poem said they were, and then some.

Neighbor Soveready: Was so sorry when I read of your bereavement and hope you are getting reconciled. "Good and Faithful" can be written after your name. That must be a great consolation and your dear father has gained a happier lot, free from pain and at home with his dear Father in Heaven.

How we will miss Wandering Jew when we again have our meetings in our hall. Her pleasant face and beautiful alto will be greatly missed.

Yours for the Corner,

OLGA, (Club No. 1.)

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: The subject of cats has always appealed to my interest, and recently there have been some suggestions given by our writers. In regard to the treatment for fleas, I would say do not use kerosene for the cat will lick it and make her sick and soon the cat and fleas will all be dead. I well remember when I was a little girl, how my mother took somebody's advice in using kerosene as a remedy for fleas, on our half-grown maltese cat. The result was the poor cat was awfully sick, and soon died. There are especially prepared powders for cats and dogs that are reliable. It being sifted into the fur and hair, they may scratch the body, but are not inclined to lick it. I have used these powders on my cats, but as I have none on hand at present cannot recommend the name. In regard to feeding cats, I find they have their differences in tastes. Certain foods, some may like, but others will refuse to eat. I think all kinds of cooked fish is good, and usually acceptable, except canned salmon. I was told by a veterinary not to feed the cat on clear salmon, but once in a while a little of the salmon, free from oil, or skins, if mixed together with crackers or bread crumbs, will not be harmful. I think young cats should not be given meat, in fact, some cats, old or young, will refuse uncooked meat. The catnip herb, either green or dried, is generally a favorite with all cats, and I think they ought to have it often, and all they want of it. As I have heard it suggested, "catnip is the cat's medicine." I think a cat in the household helps to complete the family circle, though we do not all feel that way. Some prefer a dog for the home pet, and truly they are an interesting and intelligent animal. Personally, I have always enjoyed a cat, from my earliest remembrance, up to the present time. When I was six years old, a stray little maltese kitten came to my mothers door. She took it in, fed it, petted it, and he was willing to stay, and for ten years Billie was a part of the family. Probably due to old age, without apparent sickness the day came, when Billie was no more.

I have learned that cats want and even beg for your affection, and they will return from their animal side of life, their appreciation. It doesn't take them long to know, who they can trust for kind treatment and who to avoid, when they see a broom in the hand. If young kittens are well fed they are not apt to steal, and if in other ways trained they will be best of pets. Cats must be taken care of, if we want them as desirable pets for the house and home. I believe the first little poem or verses in rhyme that I learned in school, from my second reader, were concerning "pussy."

"I love little pussy, her coat is so warm
If I don't hurt her, she'll do me no harm
I'll not pull her tail, nor drive her away
But pussy and I very gently will play."

If children are taught to be good to cats, there will be less scratches and bites of resistance. Hope I have not exhausted the subject, as I should be glad to see other suggestions and hints concerning cats. I plead for kindness to animals.

NANNA JOINS CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I had such a pleasant day with the Social Corner I wish to become a member. I met several old friends. When they asked, "Are you a member, too?" I was sorry I had to say, no. So now the next time I attend I want to say yes.

NANNA.

DO WE APPRECIATE WHAT IS DONE FOR US?

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I always try to write you, when I send in my subscription. I don't think it would be policy to have every one, all write once a month, as some of you on each side; also stoves and fireplaces where you can cook anything you please.

The gorge has steep sides a 100 feet or more high of granite and at some time water must have rushed through it as in some places it is all wavy looking. There you can see "the old man of the valley." His face must be about 30 feet long. Then going down at one place you can go across on stepping stones. I went part way across but when I almost lost my balance and came near getting a ducking I went back and stayed with Bachelor Maid.

The others (built on more slender lines) climbed a large rock in the center of the stream and had snap shots taken.

Lonesome Pine and Cypress were in that group. July 5th there was a fine parade with band, floats, and all the different societies, also school children. It was splendid. I wish you could have seen the Polish children, about a 1,000 of them all dressed in national costume.

The thought came to me me how hard the mothers or those children had worked making those costumes. The girls wore embroidered bodices and their stockings were white all wound with red ribbon, beautiful indeed they were.

Many elderly women marched. Also one band of young women dressed in red, white and blue costumes made a large American flag.

I wish I could describe all the different parts of the parade, but time and lack of talent forbid.

I met some old friends I had not seen for 30 years. All in all, I spent two wonderful days. And July 4th and 5th, 1926 will be red letter days in my calendar of happiness.

Eca: What a wonderful time we had on your birthday. We also celebrated Savilla's at your home same day. Was glad I was one of the favored ones.

Jack the Hunter: Congratulations. May you have a happy and prosperous time in your new life.

Club No. 4: What a good time I did have at your meeting in Danielson. Everything, both as to dinner and entertainment, was just right. I made a mistake (because of the new time) and left an hour earlier than I needed. Will do better next time. Think Club 6 sent a good delegation. But am sure they felt repaid. Also Club No. 5. Club No. 6: At the two meetings I attended, I did so enjoy myself. Was sorry I could not attend the last one June 13. But I went to Providence the 16th as my youngest daughter graduated receiving her degrees of bachelor of arts at Brown, so could not go. Am planning to meet with you at Atlantic beach the 20th.

E. L. M.: Those Leans were all the poem said they were, and then some.

Neighbor Soveready: Was so sorry when I read of your bereavement and hope you are getting reconciled. "Good and Faithful" can be written after your name. That must be a great consolation and your dear father has gained a happier lot, free from pain and at home with his dear Father in Heaven.

How we will miss Wandering Jew when we again have our meetings in our hall. Her pleasant face and beautiful alto will be greatly missed.

Yours for the Corner,

OLGA, (Club No. 1.)

CATS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: The subject of cats has always appealed to my interest, and recently there have been some suggestions given by our writers. In regard to the treatment for fleas, I would say do not use kerosene for the cat will lick it and make her sick and soon the cat and fleas will all be dead. I well remember when I was a little girl, how my mother took somebody's advice in using kerosene as a remedy for fleas, on our half-grown maltese cat. A VISIT TO HUGGINS GORGE

Dear Editor and Members of the Corner: Good morning! Where are all our writers? The letters on our page grow less and less every week. I know it is a busy time for some of us but there are some that look for a few words from some friend every week, so better write.

How many have seen the rainmaker making rain?

I have seen him twice and we had some rain too. I wonder if some one will invent something to stop the rain in a wet season when we have too much. Well "Wonders will never cease."

On July 4th it went for a ride with my son and daughter-in-law. Leaving Hartford about 9 o'clock in the afternoon we went out Albany Ave through West Hartford, Bloomfield, Weatogue, Simsbury and Tariffville to Granby. Here we stopped at "Huggins' gorge." We found a number of cars parked in a large field, and several picnic parties eating lunch beside the brook. It is a wild and beautiful place with high hills on either side and water falling over the rocks into a basin where we saw a man swimming. Here are several buildings also tables and out-door stoves. Across the brook is a stand where we bought ice cream, candy and soda. It is a lovely place for a picnic or "dog roast." We went up the gorge for quite a distance and saw children paddling in the water and climbing over the stones. There was a tent and some campers there also.

One may find the place easily as there is a large boulder with "Huggins" painted on it at the entrance to the camp. I think this is called Salmon brook. It is but a short distance from the Massachusetts state line. Returning home we saw the old Newgate prison in East Granby, came through Bloomfield center to Blue Hills avenue and Hartford. I think the "Shoreline" club must have gone to the shore.

Guess Who: What is a cow heel?

The Friendly Voice: I think it is time we heard from you again.

Mildred R: How are the boys? Has Evelyn gone to N. H. yet? Do you know "Who is who" now.

Sister Amy: How are you and how is Sister Beda? Is she home from the hospital yet? How many have visited Elizabeth park this month? The flowers are beautiful.

Sister Foxglove: I hope you will have a pleasant trip on your vacation. Hope Mr. Foxglove is feeling better.

Diana: How are you? Will write you soon.

Will sign off hoping the editor and all members of the corner will have a pleasant summer.

MAVIS.

BELIEVES IN A SANE FOURTH

Dear Social Corner Editor, Sisters and Friends: A greeting to you all! How do you like the good old summer weather? I think it is fine and about time we had it, after such a cold wet spring. For the past three years the winters have jumped right into summer. The spring months might just as well be cut out of the calendar.

Well we had a crazy Fourth of July here. They started in the Thursday before firing cannon crackers, revolvers and everything that would make a noise and they kept it up until Monday night at 12 o'clock. They did not seem to have any regard for the Sabbath, but thought the more noise they made the more patriotic they were. There was quite a lot of nice fireworks in Groton. It was the first Fourth of July had spent in New London for a good many years. I don't see why we can't have a nice sane Fourth of July the same as they did in Groton. I think when they begin to use dynamite it is time to call a halt.

My niece in Groton invited me to spend the day with her a short time ago. I went over in the bus and had a nice trip and visit. She invited a friend in to take dinner with me. We had a chicken dinner and green currant pie, something I had not seen before for a good many years. It was lovely and reminded me of old times. She gathered the currants from her own bushes. They have a large garden and all kinds of vegetables coming on. They have 75 baby chicks of high class Brahma stock that takes first prizes at poultry shows.

There is a dog show here at the armory and they say they can be heard a mile. Glad I don't live near it.

Theodora: Do you think the Corner will picnic at Ocean beach this summer. I missed it all last summer for I was not well enough to go. It is going on three years since I have met with the Cornerites. That was at the Buckingham Memorial. I had one of the Corner pins and lost it so don't dare ask for another.

I am busy all the time, have braided two rugs and have another call "hen and chickens" which is not finished but I have so many pretty pieces from making dust caps I am piecing a quilt using the letter H. I sent to Balsam Fir for the pattern. Have sold about 175 caps and still have orders for them. I make a good many different kinds of fancy things.

Foxglove are the gourds coming on? Hope you give them a good chance to run for they will go from 25 to 30 feet.

Hope you all had a sane Fourth.

DOM PEDRO.

READY FOR CLUB 6'S PICNIC

Dear Social Corner: July 20 draws near. I am very fond of the seashore if home conditions will permit and there is no rain, thunder and lightning I hope to attend the picnic. I will certainly take my plate, cup, knife, fork and spoon and something to eat, if it is not so good as the others carry. I am sure to see E. L. M., Cosmos and Dorothy Bradford, with her voluminous bathing suit. I will look out for Rebecca, Wheeler, Weus, B Natural, who is never B. Flat, Nancy Peck, Y. L., Idleane, Melissa, O. D., Cutie and others two numerous to mention.

I note the name of a new member, Little Rhody. I have made my guess as to her identity. The size and the place of residence of the lady I have in mind makes me think I have hit the nail on the head.

Y. Y.: I enjoyed your letter with its graphic description of Maine scenery very much. The next best thing to seeing these interesting places is to read about them when so vividly described by one who has been privileged to view them. I, too, salute Youth, with all its opportunities and prospects. I fear I was born too early, but can not help it.

Thank you, Eclipse. I did not know that my visit to Washington would interest anyone but myself. It was extremely interesting to me and very enjoyable. In fact I found the place so delightful that I left my heart down there and have been wanting to go back ever since I came home. Oh, yes, I went to the Congressional library, not only once but twice, the second time just to read a Westerly paper and get the home news. From this second visit to the library I missed seeing the arrival in Washington of the crown prince and princess of Sweden. I intended to get back to my hotel, near the railroad station, in time to witness the advent of royalty but failed to do so. As 3000 assembled for the event, I presume I was not missed. And never mind, anyway, I saw "our Cal" and his lovely wife. By the way, the Norwich Bulletin was not to be found in the Congressional library. I wondered why?

LUCILLE DREW (Club No. 6.)

(The Bulletin goes every day to the Congressional library and must have been on file somewhere.—Social Corner Editor.)

ROMANCE OF A FIRELESS COOKER

Dear Social Corner: The Corner seems quite slow so I think I will write a romance about a fireless cooker.

Mrs. H., left her work and gazed wistfully out of the window. She was a bit tired of the endless cleaning and sewing and mending for a troop of healthy youngsters, but most of all was she tired or cooking, which seemed never to have an end. So intent was she on her thoughts she she did not hear the door open, or know that she was not alone, until a cheery voice inquired, "Anybody home?" And her next door neighbor, Mrs. R. had entered, very much excited. Mrs. H felt that it must be something important to bring her friend out so early in the day, as, in that town house work was always the first consideration. "My dear, I've found something to tell you! It came this morning, and— "Mrs. W. stopped to take a long breath and incidentally give Mrs. H. an opportunity to answer. "What came?"

A fireless cooker, Mrs. H had a faint recollection that she had heard about a fireless cooker, but without expereincing any great interest. "Yes, a fireless cooker," and warming up to her subject, Mrs. W. sat down to explain.

"Oh," she said, "Come on over and I will show you what it is and you can see for yourself." Mrs. H. followed her excited neighbor homeward. In the center of the Wright kitchen floor stood an oblong box about four feet long and two feet high, with a tight fitting cover. Upon opening the box its contents were displayed consisting of two aluminum kettles with tight fitting covers. After many questions and answers and a close examination of the new fangled cooking apparatus, Mrs. H. suddenly remembered her own dinner was cooking on a stove containing real fire, and that it was apt to burn at any minute so she brought her visit to a close and went home.

Now that little visit set Mrs. H. to thinking, and ideas that had developed were soon coursing through her brain. Hardly a day passed but what she visited her neighbor, fascinated by the new cooker. She examined the meals that were cooked in it. They were well done and delicious, although she had not expected to find them so.

She spoke to her husband, and he said: "This is merely a fad, and that the way our mothers cooked was good enough for us."

She said, "I mean to have a cooker just the same."

Reading the Social Corner there were directions How to Make a Homemade cooker, sent in by Kitty Lou. She immediately set to work making one. Among the boxes found in the cellar was one measuring about two feet each way and sufficient heavy boards having hinges attached and a hasp. This was lined smoothly with several thicknesses of newspaper to prevent cold air from finding its way through the cracks. A firm layer of hay about four inches deep, was now packed in the bottom of the box. A four quart covered pail of the same depth as its diameter was purchased for 25 cents, the sides being straight and perpendicular at the bottom and the cover fitting securely in place. This kettle was firmly set in the middle of the hay bed and the hay packed around it until level with the top of the kettle. A thin piece of board was sawed to fit the box exactly. A hole was cut in the center just large enough to slip over the nail. Some difficulty was found in getting the circle cut right, but was finally accomplished. The board was then fitted into the box, to cover the peaking completely. The cover put on with hinges and everything was now complete but the cushion which was made good and firm, four inches deep to fit the rest of the space at the top of the box and placed securely on top of the thin board which held the hay in place. As her first experience, she boiled a head of cauliflower. This was boiled five minutes, taken from the stove and slipped in the cooker, and in 9 minutes it was thoroughly cooked. Several other articles were prepared with equal success.

From this time on her life seemed changed. She soon joined several clubs and was constantly going to afternoon teas, leaving little time for cooking.

There is only one time when it is anything but a "friend" to the family and that is when you try to make it do all the work, not only the house but the home as well.

Rich Rice Pudding: 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 2 cups cold boiled rice, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter melted, 1-4 cup seeded raisins, 1-4 cup chopped walnuts, 1-2 teaspoon almond flavoring, 1-2 cup of sugar.

Beat eggs until light, add milk and combine with boiled rice, add salt, butter

He came along Main street and got to the corner of Church when he was in collision with a car operated by Gus Lautermaker, of 95 Main street. Hiltt made a miss when he supposed he could run a car in this city without having a license so to do. He represented that he supposed a fellow he took into the car with him was possessed of a license. He was fined $10. Hiltt claims to reside at 24 Grosvenor Place, Norwich.

William Goulett, who was in the court yesterday and then got away with a fine of $5, which he paid, was back this morning to answer for intoxication. He told what has come to be known as the Fishers Island story yesterday, and could not improve upon it today. He was given the same medicine that was administered to him yesterday, a fine of $5.

Edward Geoghagan, a sailor man on a vessel in the harbor, was very drunk on Montauk avenue last night when Policeman Thomas Leyden made his rounds. When Geoghagan was encountered he was as ugly as he was drunk, so he pulled out a pocket knife and slashed the officer's coat. Of night stick and that was followed by course that brought a wallop from a second one when Geoghagan showed fight. That was the last of the struggle for the sailorman was rushed to the "brig," which in this case was a cell in the police station. This morning he was fined in court and made arrangements then and there to buy Mr. Leyden a new raincoat, in addition to his other expenses. So his trip ashore was an expensive one.

VOLUNTOWN

As a result of Thursday evening's accident, Arthur Lindell of Glasgo was presented before Justice of the Peace Warren E. Tanner, Saturday, on a charge of reckless driving and being without registration. He was found guilty on both counts, being fined $10 and costs on the first and $1 on the second count.

Benjamin F. Wilcox of Griswold was fined $5 and costs for parking his car on the left hand side of the highway near the site of the accident.

Chester F. Dyer of Glasgo was charged with reckless driving and being without registration. His case was continued to next Saturday morning. Attorney Myron of Putnam appeared for Mr. Lindell. Thomas McDonald prosecuted the cases.

Saturday evening the Finnish corporation of Voluntown gave a dance in Union hall, there being a large crowd in attendance. Among those present were parties from Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New York and many nearby towns. The dance features were mostly the polka, two step, waltz and schottische, music being furnished by violin, piano and accordian. Everyone present enjoyed the evening. The same society held a picnic Sunday at Pachaug which was largely attended by local people.

The work of running out the stock in the local mills is rapidly nearing completion. Hands are being laid off nearly every day as their work is completed. Soon the mills, which are the only industry in the town, will be idle.

The Stowe mill, which has called the hands to work for many years, is now silent, as the fires have been drawn and the mills are using only water power.

Rain Wednesday morning was very welcome to farmers and gardeners.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

At the Broadway theater starting Sunday local picture fans will see what can be termed the greatest two feature bill ever presented in the city.

The main attraction is a popular return of Harold Lloyd's Girl Shy. Just think—7600 feet of laughs and thrills with the most thrilling climax ever produced. The captions, comedy gags, everything in fact will bring forth one hearty laugh after another. Those who saw this production at this theater about two years ago will want to see it again and those who missed it at the initial showing had better make arrangements now.

A frequent triumvirate in pictures has been that of Mae Busch, Percy Marmont and Nita Naldi. The three have worked together in many highly successful productions, and are especially popular with the movie-going public.

They are together again in The Miracle of Life, the second feature attraction at the Broadway theater starting Sunday in which Miss Busch and Mr. Marmont are cast as a young married couple, and the black-haired Miss Naldi is the temptress. The Miracle of Life is an adaptation to the screen of the novel by Olga Printzlau.

Strand Theater

If you are interested in boxing, you will get a real kick out of The Patent Leather Pug, the new Harry J. Brown comedy-drama, released through Rayart, and starring that agile young fellow, Billy Sullivan, which comes to the Strand theater for a part of a two feature bill.

Directed by Albert Rogell, he who has handled the megaphone on a number of other boxing stories starring the nimble-footed Mr. Sullivan, The Patent Leather Pug tells the story of a wealthy young man who after a party at which a lightweight champ takes his girl away from him suddenly wakes up to the fact that in living a silk-cushioned existence, he has allowed himself to deteriorate physically. The young man decides on the instant that it is high time he reformed, and that the first thing he will work toward is the knocking out of the champ. It is said that the action of The Patent Leather Pug does not lag for a moment. It is further said that the winning young Sullivan is at his best in this, his newest picture.

The second feature is also one that promises to give the action fans something to talk about. It features Buddy Roosevelt in The Dangerous Bub.

Short features with a new episode of Perils of the Wild and comedy completes this bill that is sure to pack 'em in at the Strand Sunday.

Breed Theatre

See Joseph Greer, recluse and man of science, master the savages in the jungle.

See what Civilization, in the form of a shrewd body of financial exploiteers, later do to this dominent personality!

See George Burns, humble chauffeur, spirit his wilful mistress from the midst of jazzing idlers!

Ever have your picnic spoiled? Well, if rainstorms and romance mix like in this case, what do you care?

Have you ever seen the idle rich while away an afternoon in the swimming pool?

The modern argonaut, the mail pilot, at the wheel—an elopment by air! Wouldn't it thrill you?

Man's greatest fight—to conquer self! You'll jubilate with Joseph Greer at his victory.

There are sevn sidelights on "What Fools Men," opening at the Breed Theatre Sunday. The picture was made from Henry Kitchell Webster's novel, "Joseph Greer and His Daughter," by First National under the supervision of June Mathis.

You will find the Webster characters assumed with fidelity by such artists as Lewis Stone, Shirley Mason, Barbara Bedford, Ethel Grey Terry and David Torrence; also two rising young film players, Hugh Allan and Joyce Compton, just placed under First National contract, and a host of others hardly second in importance.

George Archainbaud directed the new offering.

Sacred Film Story at Y. M. C. A.

At the local Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock, the well known and intensely interesting historic Bible account of Cain and Abel will be shown on the screen. This story illustrates the penalties of jealously and disobedience. It is splendidly executed, showing the sacrifices of the two brothers, the jealousy of Cain at the acceptance of Abel's sacrifice, the killing of Abel by Cain, who is unable to escape the consequence no matter where he reams, but at last, penitent, makes his way to a distant land where his descendants were many. The thrilling story is not only flawless in photography, but the character work is most wonderful and the picture follows the biblical record with a surprising accuracy. It is well worth the attendance of all who are at all interested in the unique lessons contained in the book of God.

In addition to the feature picture, an educational reel on "Bird secrets" will be shown. Both men and women are cordially invited, and boys and girls fourteen and over will be admitted. Music will be furnished by H. C. Zabriskie, baritone and Miss Marcia Zabriskie, pianist.

Schwartz Bros. Have Outing With The Glenwood Range Company

Thursday afternoon being a half holiday the personnel of Schwartz Bros. of New London and Norwich went to Taunton, Mass. as guests of the Glenwood Range Co. It was quite a treat for the furniture men as they went through the largest stove foundry in the world.

They saw the stove from the time the pig iron was melted to the finished product. The foundry covers about five acres of floor space and it took several hours to go through it. One of the most interesting parts was the enameling department, for the Glenwood Range Co., are the only range concern in New England who enamel their own ranges.

Another very interesting part was the stock room where there are between a thousand and fifteen hundred ranges piled, in tiers six high with the assistance of cranes. The general factory man, Mr. Woodward acted as guide and explained everything thoroughly through the plant.

Ranges, gas ranges, oil stoves, pipeless heaters and heaters of every kind were being shipped all over the world. At the time Schwartz Brothers, men were there two ranges were being shipped to Portugal.

The Glenwood Sales force is scattered all over the world and its head, Mr. M. E. Abbott, General Sales Manager was there to meet the local people in a very cordial way for after going through the plant a splendid shore dinner was provided at the factory banquet room.

The menu consisted of:

Pickles Celery Olives
Lobster Soup a la Glenwood
Steamed Cape Cod Clams
Broiled Lobster
Watermelon
Cigars Demi-Tasse Cigarettes

After the dinner was served Abner Schwartz, president of Schwartz Bros., made some very fitting remarks to the gathering, expressing the concerns gratitude to the Glenwood Range company for their hospitality and the fine manner in which his concern was received. Jos. M. Lahn, secretary and treasurer of Schwartz Bros., was then called upon, who dwelt upon Schwartz Brothers success as Glenwood dealers and assured the Glenwood manufacturers of the co-operation they will receive from Schwartz Bros. in keeping sacred the good name of Glenwood which already is of the highest quality.

M. E. Abbott, general manager of the Glenwood company, then spoke of the success of his company. Through honest dealing and giving people high quality merchandise is the foundation of success for any concerns, and that he was assured that this was Schwartz Bros., policy and therefore success was certainly to be theirs.

Mr. Fowler, present Connecticut representative of the Glenwood Range Co., then told of his pleasure when calling on Schwartz Brothers. Mr. Nickerson another member of the Glenwood sales force spoke on the general lines of some of the previous speakers. Jos. R. Schwartz of Schwartz Furniture Co., New London also spoke of his faith in the Glenwood product and of his concern's support in making New London county a wonderful Glenwood territory. Alfred Duhamel favored with a beautiful solo.

Among those present from Schwartz Brothers, were: Abner Schwartz, Jos. M. Lahn, Benjamin Lahn, Jos. R. Schwartz, Raymond Girard, Clarence Brown, Harry Schwartz, Alfred Duhamel, Edmund Cote, Orville Bissonette, Thomas M. Monaghan, John F. Donahue, James McGarrity, Alonza Geer, and Napoleon Thurette, the welcoming Glenwood men were: Mr. Abbott, Mr. Fowler, Mr. Nickerson, Mr. Woodward, Mr. Spencer and the Office Manager.

Arriving at home at a late hour everyone expressed his opinion of having a grand and glorious time.

Christ Episcopal Church

The third of the special July summer union services will be held in Christ Episcopal church on Sunday. Mr. Pierce will give several extra fine numbers on the organ before the processional hymn "Saviour Blessed Saviour," by Professor T. Morley. Then will follow the beautiful Kyrie Eleison by S. Naylor and by J. Barnby, the sequence hymn, "Come Thou Almighty King," by F. Giardini, Gloria Tibi and Gratias Tibi by C. Gounod, sermon hymn, "O Bless the Lord My Soul," by A. Williams, the Sursum Corda and Sanctus by J. Camidge, the Benedictus by T. Morley; adoration hymn, Adeste Fideles, O Come let us Adore Him; the Agnus Dei by Prof. Adams Gloria in Excelsis hymn, "Lead us Heavenly Father, Lead Us," by Dulce Carmen. The service will close with the recessional hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," Coronation, by O. Holden. ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOM

Brainard. The special committee reported progress on the bean supper and the committee is planning on handling a large crowd with the assistance of the D. of A. who have so graciously offered their services to make the supper a success. The committee on the outing held a joint meeting with the D. of A. Thursday evening and the present plans are that they will be held the second Sunday instead of the first Sunday in order to give all members time to provide for the outing after the bean supper. The outing will be held dat Pontepot Mills in Baltic on the property of the state secretary.

The members of both committees are leaving nothing undone to make this a success. There will be all kinds of games and running races for men and women and a ball game between the married and the single men. The single men seem to think that the married men are a bunch of has beens and cripples so the benedicts are anxious to show the singles how little they know about the great American game. There will also be swimming races for the members under the directions of Uncle Walt Wyman. The committee has secured some nice prizes for the contests and with all told everything looks to a good day.

It is the wish of the committee for all of the members to be present next Wednesday evening so that further plans can be laid for the picnic. It is the intention of the council to invite every council in the state to attend the picnic.

The trustees audited the books and read their reports which was accepted and the council was found in good financial condition, showing a nice gain in the last six months. There was a large delegation of members who went to Rocky Point last Saturday to the state outing of the Rhode Island councils and all the delegation reported a wonderful time. The contests were closely fought. The committee councils made it interesting for all but they lost by a small margin.

For the next six months there is to be a prize awarded to the one who gets the most new members and the council has set a membership mark of 500 before Jan. st, 1927. There will also be prizes given by state and national councils. The [illegible] Rocking-

FRIDAY'S MARKET

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP)—Responding to the leadership of high grade industrials, today's stock market closed with an outburst of strength after having been subjected to renewed selling pressure, in spots, during the early trading. Final quotations disclosed a long list of net gains ranging from 1 to nearly 10 points, with total sales reaching 1,607,100 shares, as compared with 1,423,600 yesterday.

Speculators for the advance apparently convinced that the recent reaction had sufficiently corrected the weakened technical position resulting from the prevous rapid advance, started the ball rolling by bidding up a selected list of stocks. They were aided by the lowering of the renewal rate on call money, publication of another series of favorable earnings statements and in increase of quarter to half a cent a pound in brass prices. Bear traders, who had sold stocks short in expectation that the New York Federal Reserve Bank would raise its rediscount rate late yesterday, rushed to cover when large buying orders again appeared.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported a further improvement in business. This was particularly gratifying in that gains have occurred in some quarters at a time when a declining tendency is usually noted.

General Motors was again the outstanding individual feature, soaring over 6 points to a new high at 164 7-8 as compared with a low of 113 1-4 earlier in the year. U. S. Steel common was bid up over two points to 143 1-4, or only 1 1-4 points below its record high. American Can jumped three points to 58 1-2, a new top for the present stock.

Dupont, which has large General Motors hlodings, climbed over 7 points to a new peak at 261.

Revival of activity in the coppers reflected the stiffening tendency of non-ferrous metal prices. Oils were again rather backward although Houston showed independent strength by climbing 2 3-4 to 61. American Hide and Leather preferred sagged nearly 2 points on reports of poor earnings for the first six months.

Establishment of the highest levels in several years by New Haven and Missouri Pacific preferred, and a jump of over 9 points in Jersey Central were the high spots in the railroad group. There was a tendency on the part of some traders in railroad stocks to restrict commitments, pending further developments in the conferences between the Van Sweringen Brothers and the special Pere Marquette directors' committee on the revised terms of the "nickel plate" merger plan.

Commodity prices were mixed. Wheat futures advanced 1 1-2 to nearly 3 cents a bushel on adverse weather reports, but cotton declined 3 to 10 points on reports of better weather in the south. Sugar and coffee prices were practically unchanged.

Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent., and then dropped to 4 per cent. Closing at the low figure. Time money was slightly firmer with the short maturities quoted on a flat 4 3-8 per cent., basis instead of 4 1-4 to 4 3-8. Longer loans were quoted at 4 1-2.

Establishment of another new low record for all time by French francs at 2.35 cents, an overnight decline of 10 points, featured the irregular foreign exchange market. They later rallied to above 2.40 cents. Demand sterling was slightly firmer at $4.86, pending color to reports of large transfer of capital from Paris-London. Italian and Belgian currencies held firm, but renewed heaviness developed in the Chinese silver exchanges.

New Series Now Opened

In speaking of the new series which opened on July 1st, Mr. Johnson, secretary of the association said: "We expect the 23rd series which we have recently opened to be largest we have had and this seems to be a logical conclusion based on past experiences. As the people get to know more about the Norwich Building and Loan association, its purposes and its plan of operation, it seems easier to arouse their interest and the result has been that each succeeding series has been larger than the preceding one, in the number of shares issued. Since the last semi-annual report, for the six months ending December 31st, 1925, the total number of shares issued has increased from 5,368 to 5,912 and assets have grown from $253,006.33 to $280,377.51 which the board of management feels is a very creditable showing for the six months period which ended on June 30th. As a more striking indication of the progress of the association let us take the semi-annual report issued on July 1st, 1923, only three years ago. This report showed a membership of 570 with assets of $107,000, while the report issued on July 1st of this year shows a membership of 942 with assets of $280,377, a gain of approximately 162 per cent in assets in three years.

A Great Community Asset.

"Building and loan associations are organized to promote home ownership by providing a way in which persons of good character may borrow money for the purpose of buying or building a home. It is very generally conceded that building and loan associations have played a very important part in the upbuilding of towns and cities throughout the nation, there being today about 12,000 associations in the United States, so we naturally feel that the Norwich Building and Loan association is rendering a worthwhile public service in encouraging home ownership."

Inviting Public to Join.

"In announcing the new series it is not the purpose of the board of management," said Mr. Johnson, "to make an intensive drive for members but rather to appeal to those citizens men and women, who realize the advantages of membership in a well managed building and loan association which provides a safe investment for those citizens who see the tremendous possibilities of this co-operative association as a civic asset of immeasurable value, as well as an appeal to those prospective home seekers who see in this movement an opportunity to secure their own home by making use of the loan privileges which the association offers."

How to Become a Member.

"To become a member a person has only to sign an application form and pay a 50 cent membership fee for each share to which they subscribe. Dues are paid at the rate of $1 per share per month; 25 shares, or $25 a month is the maximum that can be taken by one person in one series. A person may have one to 25 shares in a series. For safety, convenience and sound business principles the business of the association is conducted on the series plan. Twice each year, in January and July the association may issue a new series. Shares taken in any particular series will mature, or reach their full value, when that particular series has earned enough by interest, in addition to the monthly dues paid, to equal the sum of $200 per share. This period of time is usually 12 years. The shares having reached their full value must be withdrawn. Re-investment of the whole or part of the matured shares is permissable."

"When the shares, with dues and earnings, have reached the value of $200 they will have matured, and the association will pay the member the full amount of the matured value of all the shares held."

Single Payment Shares.

"The Norwich Building and Loan association also issues single payment shares. These shares are for the convenience of those persons, who, realizing the value of the association as a community asset, as well as its soundness from an investment standpoint, desire to become shareholders without being bothered with monthly payments. Single payment shares are issued upon the payment of $110 a share (matured value $200) and mature at the same time as do the monthly payment shares of the same series.

Application Forms Provided.

"Application forms may be procured from any officer or member of the association. Or in the event that a prospective member is not acquainted with any member of the association they may visit the office of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce in the Thayer building, where I as secretary of the association make my headquarters. I will be pleased to furnish the applicant with application forms, together with all the necessary information concerning the association, and in my absence any member of the office force of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce will supply application forms and furnish the necessary information to applicants."

Board of Officers.

The board of officers of the Norwich Building and Loan association is as follows: Ernest O. Rodier, president; Daniel T. Shea, first vice president; John M. Lee, second vice president; Henry D. Johnson, secretary; Alexander Sharp, assistant secretary; Charles I. Smith, treasurer; James F. Fleming, assistant treasurer. Directors, H. M. Lerou, L. M. Crandall, Robert McNeely, George S. Power, J. J. O'Rourke, Earle M. Wood, Edward J. Graham, William S. Elliot, Herman Stelzner, M. L. Bergstresser, Charles F. Wells, John W. McKinley, Attorney. Charles V. James, Auditors, Frederick H. ENGLISH BREWERS OPPOSE ANDREW'S RUM CONFERENCE

LONDON, July 16—(AP)—Shipping and brewing men in Great Britain are beginning to rally their forces in opposition to the discussions now going on between British officials and Brigadier General Lincoln C. Andrews, American prohibition enforcement chief, to curtail international rum smuggling.

Although the opposition is not considered very serious in some quarters, in others it is felt the conferences may yet have an echo in parliament. This latter feeling is particularly strong in political circles.

The shipping interests are aroused over proposals to give American revenue cutters certain latitude in British territorial waters, especially in the Bahamas. At the same time the brewers and distillers, whose spokesman in the house of commons is Colonel John Gretton, conservative, of a well known family of brewers, are watching developments closely.

The attitude of critics of the present conferences is that British prestige on the seas should not be menaced by any agreements which the British government might countenance. The government had expected more or less opposition even from within its own conservative ranks, a number of whose members are interested in the manufacture of alcoholic beverages in one way or another.

In anticipation of opposition from these sources, however, the government has already given assurances that the alarms being sounded are all without cause. The British officials have assured the Americans that the opposition broadsides, which are developing, are really not serious. General Andrews tonight said that he was more than satisfied with the progress of the work.

Today's discussions were carried on by sub-committees of inter-departmental experts each of which is studying some particular phase of the problem of international liquor smuggling.

WHEN A MULE WAS WORTH MORE THAN FORTY ACRES

CHICAGO, July 16—(AP)—The grandfather of Edgar Lee Masters, poet, just about a century ago refused to trade his pony for 40 acres of land in what became the heart of Chicago.

Now the city council of Chicago is considering a proposal to sell the Marshall Field estate a little downtown alley, one block long for $400,000.

Many real estate stories have been written about the phenomenal growth of Chicago, but one of the most interesting has been contributed to the Journal of the Illinois Historical society by the poet.

When Squire Davis Masters returned from the Blackhawk war, he scorned a chance to trade his pony for the land, described as "somewhere between the Chicago river and Lake Michigan," which corresponds generally to downtown Chicago. Squire Masters had his eyes on the fertile black corn land of Morgan county, near Spoon river, which his grandson made famous.

In the case of the alley strip proposed to be sold to Marshall Field, each side of the 40 foot strip, about 600 feet long, is shadowed by a towering department store. It normally is filled with trucks delivering merchandise and taxicabs and private cars delivering shoppers.

The new Studebaker sedan for the purchase of which the fire commissioners arranged some time ago in order to provide a new car for Chief Howard L. Stanton has been delivered, and was put into commission Friday.

It replaces Chief Stanton's old car which was bought 11 years ago and has been in constant service since then. It was the first motor car bought for the fire chief's use.

The new machine is painted the regulation fire department red.

THREE DEATHS CAUSED BY A STORM IN SPRINGFIELD

Two Men Were Drowned—Falling Tree Killed Another Man—Two Apartment Houses Unroofed, a Church Steeple Blown Down—Girl Was Instantly Killed by Lightning in Adams—In vicinity of Springfield Heavy Damage Was Wrought by a Thunderstorm of Hurricane Proportions.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 18.—(AP)—A rain, hail and lightning storm of cyclonic velocity which struck western Massachusetts late this afternoon claimed four lives, injured more than a score and left in its wake damage which will mount to $500,000, in Adams a girl was instantly killed by lightning; in Springfield two men were drowned when their canoe overturned and a man died beneath a falling tree at the height of the storm.

The dead are:

Marie Angie Dubois, 19, Adams, instantly killed by lightning.

Soturno Mantani, Springfield, killed by falling tree.

George Guillotte, West Springfield, drowned.

The storm generated high in the Berkshires where lightning struck in many places and rushed eastward, doing its heaviest damage in this city and West Springfield. In the latter town the roof was torn from a large dance hall, a boathouse flung into mid-stream and numerous trees and small buildings ripped from the ground.

In Springfield the 90-foot steeple of the Asbury Methodist church crashed to the ground, the roofs were ripped from several apartment houses, billboards and trees were swept flat and open blown from automobiles. Trolley service was demoralized, underpasses flooded and lighting wires torn down. Telephone service was crippled through the district so that it was several hours before reports of damage began to come through.

The two men drowned in this city were canoeing on the pond at the government arsenal when the wind struck. Their canoe overturned.

NEW HAVEN, July 18.—(AP)—An electrical storm descended on the greater part of Connecticut late today. Lighting flashed and rain fell heavily for a short time.

Hail did considerable damage to early tobacco in Windsor. Although hail fell in Winsted, it was not believed tonight that crops there were damaged.

The only fire attributed to lightning occurred in Wingsor where six sheds and contents were destroyed after the largest building in the group was set on fire when struck by a bolt. Samuel Shohman, owner of the property, estimated his loss at $20,000.

Trolley service in this city and vicinity was halted for a short time when lightning burned off a terminal wire connection on the direct current side of a rectifier in the Grand avenue power station of the Connecticut company. Sewers were clogged in some sections of the city when three fourths inch of rain fell in a short time.

Wallingford and other towns in the Naugatuck valley served by a Waterbury power company were plunged into darkness for several minutes because of the storm.

DAMAGE CAUSED BY THE STORM IN BOSTON

BOSTON, July 18.—(AP)—One of several sudden storms which broke over New England causing the loss of six lives and heavy property damage, ripped a path through the Roxbury district of Boston shortly after 6 o'clock. Many trees were uprooted and windows shattered. The wind velocity was estimated at 100 miles an hour and the temperature dropped rapidly 20 degrees. The three back rows of the grandstand at Fenway park, home of the Boston Red Sox, were demolished.

The storms followed a day of extreme heat and humidity which attracted throngs to beaches and inland resorts. Weather bureau officials said the outbursts in the various parts of New England were not connected although due to a similar cause.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad station at Brockton was struck by lightning and the roof set on fire. In Portsmouth and Hampton Beach, N. H., and Kittery, Me., damage estimated at $50,000 was caused by hail. Crops were destroyed and windows shattered in factories, stores and homes.

LIGHTNING KILLED GIRL ON PLAYGROUNDS IN ADAMS

ADAMS, Mass., July 18.—(AP)—One girl was killed by a lightning bolt and two other persons suffered serious shocks during one of the most severe electrical storms of the season here today.

Marie-Ange Dubois was crossing the Valley street playground in company with her brother Alfred, and Leonard Nourdon. Alfred was struck by a bolt and threw out his hands. One hand came in contact with his sister and she fell dead. Bourdon also was stunned but escaped serious injury.

Another lightning bolt struck a tree in Forest park under which John Mancek had taken refuge during the storm. He was found some time after the storm had passed, partly paralyzed and with his head badly lacerated.

YOUNG CLAM DIGGER KILLED BY LIGHTNING

HAMPTON BEACH, N. H., July 18.—(AP)—Leo McCaughey, 15 year old clam digger, was struck and killed by a bolt of lightning while at work in Hampton Flats today. E. L. Rowe, his companion, was also knocked unconscious, but revived in time to help a third digger carry McCaughey's body ashore. McCaughey was the son of Mrs. Annie McCaughey of Lowell, Mass.

THUNDERSTORM CAUSED CONFUSION IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—A heavy electrical storm beginning about 6 o'clock today and lasting more than an hour, when thousands of New Yorkers were returning from the day's vacations, threw the entire metropolitan district into the greatest confusion.

Traffic jams on every road into New York were said by the police to be the worst they have ever encountered.

At Coney Island, where the crowd was the second largest on record, police reserves were called out to handle the panic stricken throngs trying to board subway and elevated trains.

A dozen small riots occurred as men and women rushed for shelter. One hundred-twenty-three lost children were picked up by the police.

Similar scenes were reported at Rockaway and at the Staten Island beaches.

The coast guard cutter No. 143, during the height of the storm, made a spectacular rescue of two men and a woman from an overturned canoe in the Hudson. Passengers on the excursion boat Bear Mountain, rushing to the rail to see the rescue, caused the boat to list dangerously, and the crew had difficulty in restoring its equilibrium.

A man and a woman were rescued from a capsized canoe off Riverdale by another coast guard crew.

ELECTRICAL STORM WAS TERRIFIC IN DOVER

DOVER, N. J., July 18.—(AP)—A terrific electrical storm, similar to the one to which the Lake Denmark disaster is generally attributed, tonight struck this vicinity. Lightning flashed for almost two hours and a driving rainstorm continued unabated for many hours after, but no damage was reported.

TWO YOUTHS MISSING; THREE PERSONS RESCUED

SANDY HOOK, N. J., July 18.—(AP)—Three youths who set out from here in a canoe for Coney Island, were reported missing and five persons were rescued from two stranded motor derries off Highlands in an 80-mile gale and rainstorm which struck the north Jersey coast tonight.

The name of only one of the missing trio could be learned. He was E. Albright, of Brooklyn. Coast guards at Highlands took off Francis O'Neill and his two sons of Leonardo and two brothers who said their name was Pretz of Newark, when their dories went aground during the gale.

NAVAL COURT OF INQUIRY IS TO MEET IN BROOKLYN

DOVER, N. J., July 18.—(AP)—The naval court of inquiry, presided over by Admiral Coontz, which is investigating the Lake Denmark arsenal disaster, will transfer its hearings to Brooklyn Wednesday. It will continue its hearings here tomorrow and Tuesday.

The transfer will be made to take the testimony of the marines, who escaped death when a series of explosions devastated the arsenal July 10. On Friday the court will return to the arsenal and continue its hearings in the residence of Captain Otto C. Dowling, one of the few buildings which escaped destruction.

Another naval board is engaged in sifting the claims of civilian damage and injury in the neighboring towns and villages, which were rocked by the explosion. Each claim is considered separately and carefully weighed by an engineer or surgeon. All claims must be filed before July 23.

Damage to the army arsenal, Picatinny, which adjoins the naval depot, is being surveyed by a board appointed for the purpose.

If awards are made for civilian claims, a special congressional appropriation will be necessary to meet them.

Naval officers point out that the navy department has power to pay no greater sum than $1,000 for damages.

WHERE STARS AND STRIPES GOT ITS BAPTISM OF FIRE

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP)—Armistorians have unearthed evidence that the stars and stripes got its baptism of fire in land battle in the defense of Fort Stanwix, New York, August 3, 1777. The colors improvised by the garrison appear to have shown both the alternate stripes of red and white and the "stars of glory" set upon a field of blue but from a "camulet cloak taken from the enemy at Peekskill."

At the request of historical societies, the war department began a search which has brought to light a work entitled "a narrative of the military actions of Colonel Marinus Willett" who was a member of the garrison. It describes the necessity for making a flag when the enemy invested the fort, and adds that "a decent one was soon contrived."

DENY THAT MANY PERSONS WERE KILLED BY LANDSLIDE

BELGRADE Jugo Slavia, July 18.—(AP)—A semi-official note has been issued denying the report that many persons were killed in a landslide near Sarajevo, Bosnia. It says there was a cave in on the Sarajevo railroad caused by floods, but that there were no casualties from landslides.

A Vienna despatch of Saturday reported that 117 persons were killed by a great landslide, which it was said, buried a train near Sarajevo.

SEVEN MEN HELD IN NEW HAVEN AS BURGLAR SUSPECTS

NEW HAVEN, July 18.—(AP)—Seven men were arrested today on technical charges of breach of the peace pending police investigation of a series of burglaries and holdups in this city the last two days. The arrests were made following complaint of John Horan of Putnam street that he had been held up early this morning as he walked across the Blake street bridge by a number of youths who had jumped from a machine that stopped near him. They were frightened by Horan's yelling and drove away without robbing him. The arrests came through Horan's observation of the car license number.

BOMB WAS EXPLODED AT COUNTY JAIL IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 18.—(AP)—A dynamite bomb was exploded against an inner wall of the "bull pen" of the Cook county jail today, in what jail officials believe was an attempted jail delivery.

Although a quantity of brick was torn out by the explosion, a complete hole through the jail wall was not effected and no prisoners escaped. The majority of the prisoners were locked in their cells at the time, 12 trusties mopping the floor being the only ones in the bull pen, where the prisoners are released at intervals for exercise.

Officials believe it was an effort to liberate Henry Fernekes, midget bandid, under sentence to hand for murder.

The explosive had been wrapped in a blanket and placed against a wall, when it went off. The trusties stampeded to safety. Suspicion was directed at Fernekes because he had been exercising in the jail corridor at the time of the explosion, but as the explosion occurred he was grabbed by a guard as he started to run toward the explosion and was locked up.

The explosion tore a hole 18 inches across and within three inches of penetrating the eight inch brick wall. It would have taken but a moment's work officials said, to push out the remaining bricks.

The explosion was first thought to have been black powder but Sheriff Peter Hoffman finally concluded it was one stick of dynamite. But the heavy blanket wrappings around the dynamite, Sheriff Hoffman said, the wall probably would have been penetrated by the blast.

AMERICANS IN FIGHT WITH RAIDING TARTARS

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 18.—(AP)—An experience recalling wild west days, in which two American Near East relief workers, Paul H. Phillips of Seattle, Washington, and his wife, had a narrow escape in a fight with raiding Tartars in Russian Armenia is related in messages from Drivan to the Near East relief offices in Constantinople.

Phillips who superintends the relief organization's model ranch at Karakalis, was aroused one morning by excited orphan employes crying that Tartar tribesmen from Azerbaijan had crossed the mountains in the night and were raiding the ranch.

Phillips, who had often encountered cattle thieves in the northwest, picked up his rifle and hurried out to see the Tartars driving away prize Swiss stock imported by the Americans to improve Armenia's breed. Thinking to frighten the thieves, he opened fire, but the raiders, numbering from 20 to 30, made a stand behind the rocks and returned the fire.

In the subsequent fighting Mrs. Phillips was severely beaten by a tribesman. Throughout the day the sniping and stalking continued, and when it was growing dusk the situation became desperate.

Suddenly another relief worker, William Cronin, of New Haven, Conn., appeared over the hills with a company of cavalry. They rushed down upon the tribesmen, shooting some of them and clearing the American ranch of the invaders.

MRS. MARION HEMMING IN POSSESSION OF "THE CABIN"

WINSTED, Conn., July 18.—(AP)—Among the hundreds who came here today to see Mrs. Marion Hemming, who has maintained possession of "The Cabin" despite efforts of Louis S. Griffing, of Hartford, owner of the cottage on Highland Lake and former close friend of Mrs. Hemming to oust her, was her father, Hugh McCahey fo New Haven.

Few of the many motorists, who came from different sections of Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York got a glimpse of the woman who claimed "the Cabin" was given her with a promise of marriage, saw the object of their stop here. Mrs. Hemming still feeling "certain" that harm will come to her, never ventured from a doorway in the cottage. She spent only a short time on the porch where she read.

Outside of the unusual number of persons who passed the place the day went by without incident. Mr. McCahey who is general manager of the Connecticut Marine Deck Composition Flooring company of New Haven and a former state senator, left his home during the afternoon.

Isbell of the city court of Ansonia were treated for lacerations and bruises at Grace hospital today following a collision of their car with another at Norton and Gotfe streets. Judge Isbell and Fred W. Henninger of this city, driver of the second car, were arrested on reckless driving charges. An additional charge of failure to grant right of way was lodged against the Ansonia man.

Frank Wakelee, 76, Judge Isbell's father-in-law, and Mrs. Isbell were the two treated at the hospital.

Plot to Overthrow Government in Greece

Three Former Premiers Have Been Arrested and Banished to the Island of Naxos.

ATHENS, Greece, July 18.—(AP)—Former Premiers Kafandaris, Papanastasiou and Michalakopoulos have been arrested in connection with the discovery of a plot to overthrow the government and take the life of President Pangalos. They are being transported to the Island of Naxos.

President Pangalos himself, in a proclamation issued today, charged that a conspiracy was developing to overthrow the government and take his life. He said there was evidence that Venizelist leaders had joined with General Plastiras, who is supposed to have been behind the recent unsuccessful revolutionary movement, with a view to carrying out a new revolt.

The president complained of the General Venizelist opposition to his efforts to establish normal conditions, but declared he would continue his work of reconstruction and take measures against those who attempted to disturb law and order.

It was also announced that in addition to the three former premiers, who are described as "democratic leaders," several other politicians and newspapermen have been arrested. All are charged with conspiring against the present regime.

Republican Greece has been in the throes of political upheavals ever since the Hellenes voted to disperse with royalty in March, 1924. These upheavals appeared in various forms, cabinet crises, plots, conspiracies and even open revolt.

M. Kafandaris was premier of Greece just before that country became a republic, and M. Puranastasion assumed power as first premier of republican Greece.

The culmination came in June 1925 with the military coup headed by General Pangalos, the present Greek president and dictator. He overthrew the existing Michalakopoulos ministry and installed himself as premier. Among the dictator's first acts was to banish General Plastiras who was suspected of organizing a revolt. Jointly with Colonel Gonatas and Captain Phokas, Plastiras headed a successful anti-royalist revolution in 1923.

Soon after the sensational Greco-Bulgar frontier clash which was finally settled by the League of Nations council, there were rumblings of a conspiracy against the militant Pangalos. A communist plot was discovered in February of this year, and a few days later word reached London that M. Papanastasion and other prominent Greeks were under arrest and were to be deported. Then in April soldiers mutinied in Salonika.

This rising was promptly crushed, and it was reported that General Plastiras was involved.

When Pangalos was elected president early in the present year he ordered the liberation of all political prisoners and the return of exiles, among whom was Plastiras. The dictator's troubles were not yet at an end, for he failed to find a suitable prime minister. General Paraskevopoulos, M. Zavitsanos and Judge Zelemon have all refused to serve as premiers.

MURDER CHARGE FAILS TO RESTRAIN REV. CHIPPS

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 18.—(AP)—Charged with murder, for the killing yesterday of D. E. Chipps, Fort Worth lumberman, the Rev. J. Frank Norris today preached his regular Sunday morning sermon from the text, "There is no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus."

Standing within 50 feet of the church study where Chipps was killed when he called to protest against certain utterances of the widely known Baptist pastor, Dr. Norris told one of the largest Sunday audiences he has ever commanded that his faith was stronger than ever.

The large First Baptist church auditorium which seats 6,000 was filled to the doors with many standing, and several hundred outside. Before Dr. Norris started preaching a choir of 700 voices sang hymns after hymns while two pianos with relays of pianists, furnished the music.

When Dr. Norris finished speaking several hundred of his congregation saunted down to the front of the church to shake the preacher's hand as he stood before the platform. Many embraced him, and at this point Dr. Norris showed the only sign that the tragedy had affected him. He neither smiled nor nodded, but appeared to be on the verge of tears, and seemed unable to speak because of emotion.

While this service was in progress, Chipps friends prepared for the latter's funeral this afternoon.

THE COOLIDGES DROVE 14 MILES TO ATTEND CHURCH

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 18.—(AP)—A drive to Saranac Lake, 14 miles distant, to attend morning services at the First Presbyterian church, marked the second Sunday spent by the President and Mrs. Coolidge in the Adirondacks.

In the ride across the mountains to the church, where they worshipped last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were recognized by many of the natives who had gathered outside their little cottages to wave as they passed. Their route through Saranac Lake was crowded with cars and people, and at the church a throng had gathered, unable to gain admittance to the small building in which only the early comers had found seats.

President Coolidge, wearing a straw hat and blue suit with pencil stripe, and Mrs. Coolidge who was dressed in white, were ushered to the chairs they occupied last Sunday. After the service, which lasted an hour, Mr. Coolidge was greeted by the preacher, Rev. Dr. John Bailey Kelly of New York city.

FOREST FIRES EXTEND DEVASTATION IN CALIFORNIA

REDDING, Cal., July 18.—(AP)—Fanned by high winds, forest fires that broke out yesterday near Redding, at the foot of Lassen Peak, spread their trail of devastation today. Four fire fighters were reported missing.

Many hundred acres of grazing land was burned and several ranch houses and a school house were destroyed. A hundred men left here yesterday to fight the fires, which endangered scores of homes.

Fears were felt for the safety of the four men who had not been located tonight after disappearing into the fire zone last night. Their comrades reported them hemmed-in by the fires when they were last seen.

Borah Sees Menace in Dry Referendums

Regards Such Procedure as a Means of Undermining and Destroying the Constitution

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 18.—(AP)—Warning that constitutional government is faced by an almost world-wide attack was given here today by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, who said its enemy in this country was openly preaching nullification of the prohibition amendment.

"Bolshevism in Russia, fadism in Italy, military dictatorship in Poland and nullification in the United States," he asserted, "are whelps from the same kennel, barking at the same thing—constitutional government."

Speaking under auspices of the Protestant Ministers association, the Idaho senator said that referendums on the prohibition question, such as that to be held in New York state, were "for the purpose of undermining and destroying the constitution through nullification" and there "has never been a time when men should stand so firm in defense of law and order."

"When the debate on the liquor problem opened a few months ago, the question did not seem particularly important," he asserted. "The controversy had not proceeded far, however, until the most important issue that a self governing people can ever be called upon to consider forged its way to the front.

"Instead of a modification of the Volstead act, we now have the nullification of the constitution. Instead of non-intoxicating liquor within the constitution, the demand is now for intoxicating liquor in defiance of the constitution.

"The same leaders who asked in the beginning for modification within the constitution, now declare that they will have intoxicating liquor, constitution or no constitution, Volstead act or no Volstead act. This is the issue that we now have to meet."

"It may be that it is within the power of the liquor interests to amend the constitution, a thing which it is well within their right to undertake and within possibilities to achieve. But I take the privilege of asserting and without fear of the future that it is not within the power of the liquor interests to nullify the constitution.

"If the 18th amendment was an injudicious distribution of power between the state and national governments, the people can take it out of the constitution by the same process they wrote it in. If a mistake was made, the people can be shown that it was a mistake, and they are wise enough and brave enough to take it out.

"If, on the other hand, after reconsideration and further reflection, the people conclude it was not a mistake, then under proper and sincere leadership the people will live it.

"There is no possible excuse to invoke nullification. There is no law, there is no provision of the constitution which may not be rewritten or wholly expunged. To preach nullification is to preach lawlessness—ancient and persistent enemy of all republics.

"What are the arguments against following orderly procedure of amending the constitution? They are familiar arguments. They are the practices which are making a hell of Europe today. First is that it will take too long, and that the method is tedious and cumbersome. It is said the 18th amendment is against conscience, oppressive, therefore, disregarded.

"This is the precise argument which nullified contracts and the law of property in Russia. We are told the people are fanatics or wanting in judgment, and that they may not repeal the amendment—that is the basis of military rule in Poland.

"If adversaries of the amendment would submit a referendum of their respective states for repeal of it, they would be pursuing a course not subject to criticism, an orderly, dignified course. But their referendums in the form submitted are for the purpose of undermining and destroying the constitution through nullification.

"This is the exact meaning of the proposed referendum in the state of New York, to be followed, we are told, by similar referendums in other states. The people are not being asked to express themselves in favor of amending the constitution but in favor of the states respectively construing and enforcing the constitution.

"The state of New York long ago repealed its statute for the amendment declaring thereby it would not, as a state assist in enforcing it. Having repealed its state law for enforcement it now asks that it be permitted to enforce it and that the national government consent in all this program.

"Nullification is not revolution. It has none of the open, manly qualities of revolution. Nullification is the slinking, silent, cowardly sapping of the very foundation of all order, all government, the evasive betrayal of a nation, and the spirit and motive of anarchy, without either its courage or its faith.

"What we need is not less democracy but more, not less faith in constitutional government, but more. There is no evil but what we cannot for a time endure, there is no hardship that we cannot afford to forget, there is no patience which we should not be willing to practice, rather than to aid and abet in this almost world-wide attack upon a constitutional government."

PEOPLE WERE AWAKENED BY BURSTING OF METEOR

PORTLAND, Me., July 18.—(AP)—A crash, which Professor Charles Hutchins of Bowdoin believes to have been the bursting of a meteor, awakened thousands of people in Maine today at 5:08 a. m., daylight time. This city, Dexter, 15 miles north and Saco, 15 miles south, are among the places reporting the phenomenon. The crash was preceded by a blinding bluish light, a number reported. The fact that there was no indication of an electric storm at the time added to the alarm of many.

A thunderstorm tonight did little damage in this section, although a number of minor fires were started.

HERRIOT TO UNDERTAKE FORM FRENCH CABINET

Radical Leader and Former Premier Called Upon to Select a Ministry to Deal With Acute Financial Crisis—Will Endeavor to Form a Cabinet in Which All Parties Will be Represented Except the Communists, Socialists and Royalists—The Public Has Begun to Show Signs of Impatience.

PARIS, July 18.—(AP)—Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies, radical leader and former premier, will, at the request of President Doumergue, undertake the task of forming a new ministry and solving the seventh cabinet crisis which has occurred in France since he first took power a little more than two years ago.

Financial problems, which were responsible for the downfall of all these governments, reducing the average life of a ministry from nine months to something more than three, have progressively increased the difficulties until cabinet-making now is generally considered to be a job for a superman.

M. Herriot, however, apparently is confident, and his first consultations indicated that he would try to form a national union ministry in which all parties will be represented except the communists, socialists and royalists.

The general feeling is in favor of such a combination, as it was before the formation of M. Briand's tenth cabinet, but there is some question among certain groups of the chamber as to whether M. Herriot is the man to preside over it. There is doubt if such a cabinet could agree on M. Herriot's programme.

The Briand-Caillaux cabinet, it is pointed out, fell not only on the question of "full powers" demanded of parliament, but on the policy of borrowing more money abroad. The solution of the treasury's difficulties regarding the stabilization of the franc is admitted to lie between foreign loans and a capital levy. More of the leaders of the moderate groups with whom M. Herriot had been consulting have been uncompromisingly against a capital levy.

The new government's policy consequently is regarded as a serious complication in the formation of a national union cabinet by the president of the chamber. Political experts are widely divergent in their predictions, some of them looking for failure on the part of M. Herriot to find men and a programme that will go together. Also there is talk of a Poincare cabinet, in which Herriot, Painleve and Tardieu would have important portfolios.

The first indication of hostility to M. Herriot as head of a national union ministry came from the national bloc. Louis Marin, the leader of this group who was more instrumental than Herriot in overthrowing Premier Briand, since a majority of this group voted against Briand, while only a minority of the radicals followed Herriot, declared this evening that his friends would not accept M. Herriot as premier.

M. Marin's group, the republican union, built on the remains of the old national bloc, is second in size in the chamber, numbering 104 as compared with 134 radicals; its support is regarded as absolutely essential to enable a union cabinet to live.

M. Herriot has the alternative possibility of rebuilding the old coalition of the left, but in that case, it is argued, he will be obliged to adopt the socialist programme, with a very slight chance of getting it through the senate.

The public which for two years has watched the passing show of ministerial combinations with passive indifference, has begun to show signs of impatience. The police held cordon guard over the Rue Du Faubourg-Saint Honore, in front of Elysee Palace today in consequence of a manifestation last evening hostile to M. Herriot.

Everybody connects the continued downward slide of the franc with the political complications which have been persistently thrown into the efforts to solve the financial problem. Public discussions have become more and more vigorous lately, and even the guards around the chamber of deputies have been reinforced.

This precaution is due to the fact that the crowds of bystanders always waiting before the chamber in the hope of getting a sight of some of the notables, have considerably increased of late, and remarks more or less threatening are frequently overheard.

Every effort will be made to hasten a solution of the crisis so as to forestall its effect on the exchange market. If M. Herriot fails, however, it is regarded as extremely unlikely that a new government can be formed before Tuesday.

COMMENT OF PARIS PRESS ON FALL OF BRIAND CABINET

PARIS, July 18.—(AP)—The Paris papers comment variously on the proceedings in the chamber of deputies Saturday, when the Briand ministry fell.

L'oeuvre congratulates M. Herriot for "leaving the chair of the, president of the chamber for the rostrum to defend the perogatives of parliament menaced by Caillaux." Louis Marin, it adds, also deserves praise.

L'Avenir says "the real victor of the day was Louis Marin, chief of the republican federation, who hurled against Caillaux the anathema that Jaures (socialist leader assassinated in 1914) hurled against Briand. Nevertheless the cabinet dies bravely.

"M. Briand's speech was pathetic; M. Caillaux's very clear, very plucky. Their victory had been certain if the chamber had not remembered that the man asking for full powers was the same man that had imagined "the Rubicon."

The Figaro asserts: "The chamber simply refused to accept what looked like Franco's being compelled to submit to foreign blackmail. M. Caillaux's plans would have proved useful six months ago, but they are scouted today. The president must now find a man able to put through acceptable proposals."

The Decho De Paris says: "The chamber replied 'no' to the cabinet's ultimatum that it say 'yes.' The chamber replied 'no' to the Washington accord. Through the stand of Louis Marin, France will not place herself under foreign tutelage. The country must immediately be guided by strong, wise hands. It is a matter of life or death for France, and France will not die."

THREE PERSONS INJURED BY HARTFORD-NEW LONDON BUS

HARTFORD, July 18.—(AP)—Three persons were injured, one seriously, this morning when a Hartford-New London bus crashed into an automobile owned and driven by Charles A. Greene, of 498 Union street, Springfield, Mass., at the intersection of Morgan street and the Boulevard. Mrs. Anna Burt, 63, passenger in the Greene machine, is at the Hartford hospital, where, tonight the extent of her injuries had not been determined. An X-ray will be taken tomorrow if her condition allows, to determine whether she has a fractured skull.

Miss Evelyn Mae Green, daughter of the driver, and Mr. Greene was taken to the hospital but the daughter was able to leave for her home tonight. Her father has severe bruises and is suffering from shock.

The bus, loaded with passengers, was bound for New London and was traveling east on Morgan street. The Greene car was struck as its driver attempted to make a turn in front of the bus from Morgan street into the Boulevard.

Harry L. Hunt of 30 Harwich street, New London, driver of the bus, was allowed to continue his trip to New London after the names of witnesses had been obtained and he had been told to report to Hartford police headquarters on his return here. He was questioned later by Detective Sergeant Peter B. Gavin, who is investigating. The matter has been placed in the hands of Prosecuting Attorney Frank J. Carlson but no charges had been made against Hunt late tonight, pending the report on Mrs. Burt's condition.

POLICEMAN SAVED THE LIVES OF TEN PERSONS

NEW HAVEN, July 18.—(AP)—Risking his life by entering a gas filled tenement house at 521 Dixwell avenue early this morning, policeman Thomas Ryah saved the lives of ten persons, four of them children. Two of the eight, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ahearn, required medical treatment after the rescue. The other occupants were revived by clear air.

Ryan, noticing an odor of illuminating gas as he passed a tailor shop on the lower floor of the building went up to the second floor, where he found Ahearn and carried him to the street. Mrs. Ahearn was brought out by the policeman on a second trip into the building.

Making his way to the third floor of the building after leaving Mrs. Ahearn in the street, Ryan entered rooms occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. Shanely and their four children. With the help of the policeman they made their way to the street.

The policeman, after awakening another couple in another part of the building, took Mr. and Mrs. Ahearn to a doctor for medical aid. Returning to the shop, Ryan located the owner. The two entered the shop, finding two jets in a gas stove had been left open.

SUPPOSED WATER TRAGEDY MAY TURN OUT CHEAP TRICK

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 16—The state police were summoned this afternoon to assist in the search for a man described as about 5 feet three inches tall and about 35 years of age who disappeared at the pumping station pond in company with a row boat he had hired from Supt. Willard N. Bowen of the station. The man came to the station at four Saturday forenoon and asked Superintendent Bowen if he could rent one of his boats to do some fishing. The superintendent being busy at the time told the stranger to take his choice of the boats and pay the rental fee when he returned. The boat and the man had not been seen up to late Sunday afternoon although the pond and river was closely scouted and the banks were examined to see if the boat had been dragged away. The river being low, the water is not pouring over the dam at the station, thus eliminating that danger, and due to another dam at Kirby's Mills at Mansfield Hollow and low water the boat could not have been carried beyond that point. The missing boat was a comparatively small one constructed of matched boards. It was painted lead-gray. Two boys reported late Saturday afternoon they had seen a man and a boy fishing from a boat of that description. This corrected the suspicion that the boat had been taken by the stolen. Unless the mystery is cleared up beforehand, it is believed that vigorous search will be started Monday.

Later Sunday afternoon the boat was found adrift, the two oars in the craft. It was right side up and after considering the circumstances the state police were disposed to vote it a trick rather than a tragedy and to give up working on the case.

From looking for a drowning or a suicide, it was the theory that the man was merely jumping the fee.

F. B. Atkinson of Pittsburgh, Pa., was fined $25 and costs, for reckless driving when presented in the Chaplin town court Saturday afternoon. Atkinson's arraignment followed an accident Friday afternoon, when his Chandler touring car struck and injured Leo Biondino of this city, who is employed by Contractor Joseph Masetti in the construction of the new state highway between Willimantic and South Chaplin. Biondino was helping in setting a track from the uncompleted part of the highway just south of the home of Edward F. Belek in South Chaplin, onto the concrete half. After setting stones to make a gradual incline to the cement, Biondino was stepping back as the truck down. It was said that the Pittsburgh car was traveling at a fair rate of speed. With Atkinson was his wife and their two children. Following his arrest Atkinson was placed in the custody of Constable Joseph Peck of this city and is car was held as security. Due to the illness of the mother of Justice of the Peace Charles B. Bulk Justice Samuel B. Harvey of this city heard the case, Grand Juror Frank W. Dodson prosecuting.

The Johnson livery stables on North street have been sold by Miss Ella Johnson to Louis N. Dondero of this city, it was announced Saturday. The building will be altered to meet present demands and part of it will be occupied early next month. The Johnson stables, originally owned by Warren Tanner, grandfather of ex-Mayor Oscar O. Tanner, had been a landmark in Willimantic for 75 years. It is a two-story wooden structure and is considered in good condition. Various owners operated the stables until 40 years ago when it came into the Johnson family and was operated by them until the death of James Johnson, two years ago. The building was erected in three sections. The present front was built by the Johnsons and extends 65 feet on North street, has a depth of 130 feet, with a right of way leading through the building from North street to Church street, between the Pomeroy and Lincoln blocks. Mr. Dondero plans to gradually remodel the structure.

Clarence Roswell, holding a police record in this city, faced two counts, one of driving while under the influence of liquor and another of assault on Mr. and Mrs. Omer Cossy of Chaplin, when in the Chaplin town court Saturday afternoon. Convicted on both charges, he was fined $100 and costs for driving drunk, and given a fine of $25 and costs and ten days in jail for assault. Roswell was arrested early Saturday morning by Officer Marrotte on a charge of intoxication. He was being held for trial when a telephone message from the Danielson state police barracks gave the information that he was wanted for committing the offenses in Chaplin. Roswell was then turned over to the state police.

Under the decree, Mr. Knight is to receive $466.66 for his services as temporary receiver and the other two waived their claim to compensation as temporary receivers. The decree authorizes the payment of $773.43 to Gardner, Moss and Haslam for services and disbursement as attorneys for the temporary receivers. The report for the temporary receivership covering the period from May 19 to May 31, showed receipts of $30,518.84 and disbursements of $25,708.17, leaving a balance of $4,810.73. June 1st. DANIELSON

NEW FIRE ALARM EXPECTED TO HAVE HAIR-LIFTING EFFECT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 16.—Some morning within the next ten days an unearthly wailing will startle Danielson and convince more of less timid people that the end of the world, or some other such disaster, is at hand. But there will be nothing to worry about, as is usual when most unseemly and surprising things occur.

Installation of the new fire alarm siren is going on, at the central fire station on Academy street. Some of the work was done the past week and further operations having to do with getting the thing working are under way today. The test of the new apparatus, costing in the neighborhood of $2500 and authorized purchased at the annual borough meeting last April, may come before the end of the week, is uninterrupted progress is made.

In event, the first test of the siren likely will stand the borough on end. If all the advance notices about the soul-racking qualities of this device are a true measure of its potency, every man who likes to be heard above the crowd will buy one if he has to sell his automobile and pledge his earnings for a year in advance.

This new siren will be heard at least ten miles from Danielson in all directions. Putnam people will know when there is a fire in Danielson, and will the folks over in Brooklyn and Pomfret and in the major portion of the town of Plainfield.

Compressed air will be the force back of this all-powerful warning of fire trouble. This siren will be an auxiliary to the present siren located on the Main street plant of the Paco Manufacturing company. It has been purchased, that the borough may have a duplicate fire alarm signal in case anything goes wrong with one of the warning units. The new siren will be located on the roof of the central fire station and pointed in a general northerly direction. In itself it is not so impressive, but those who have heard one of them in action, as Chief A. P. Woodward will tell you, and who never heard a sound before will hear this strange contraption when it goes into action. It will be synchronized with the present siren so that they will blow boxes simultaneously.

With the new alarm in service there will be small excuse for the person who has relatives and given morning that he didn't know there was a fire during the night. And in the daytime. Not a chance of missing hearing it!

AIRPLANE FLIES SO LOW PUBLIC ASKED "HOW COME"

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 16.—Chief John McFarland was about to reach our his hand for a shake with the pilot of an aeroplane that circled over Danielson, Sunday morning about 11 o'clock when the aviator decided to go up high enough not to knock the roof off some building in the business section and create difficulties for himself and his flying companion.

This may not be literally true, but it at least may give an inkling of the fact that the plane circled lower over Danielson than one ever ventured before and within a few minutes had an idle, curious Sunday throng doing neck exercises in following the circuitous course of the machine through the skies.

The plane circled again and again over the business and central residential section, banking sharp turns and dropping ever lower and lower until it seemed to many that the under carriage would skim the roofs of the buildings in the course of the flyer and his companion. The machine was hardly more than 75 feet above the ground circling over the railroad station when the pilot leaned over the side and waved a greeting to Chief McFarland. That's the time the chief responded with an upward extended arm, and for all practical purposes this may be considered a near handshake with the man in the sky.

Over on the West Side the plane lured down over the fields on the Prentice place to within fifteen feet of the ground and then soared up again without landing. Meanwhile scores of machines flushed over them to see the plane and its occupants but they were away on their course again.

The strange and unusual performance of the plane gave a sleepy borough some thing to talk about and speculate on for a time. Up to late Sunday afternoon it had not been established that the aviators had any special mission here, nor was there anything to establish their identity, but there were many guesses. There were those who said the machine was an army plane, and others that it was one of the Boston-New York mail fleet. No one actually knew.

The motor of the plane war functioning perfectly all the time it circled and circled over the borough. Motor trouble could not be charged with as strange a performance with a plane as Danielson has witnessed.

By Tuesday morning officers and men of the Service battery will have rounded out two weeks of absence from Danielson. Down at Tobbyhanna, Pa., where the 102d field artillery, of which the battery is a part, is in camp the men enter today upon the last week of their annual grind of field service. Cards and letters coming from at the week end indicated that while they are well and interested in their training, they will be pleased when the homeward journey starts.

Maintaining regular patrols, state officers from Danielson barracks found traffic moving with regularity and conservativeness among the drivers Sunday. Unto late afternoon of Sunday, no serious week end accidents had been reported in this territory.

Negotiations are under way which, if successful, would mean the construction of 20 to 25 houses in Danielsno a community that appears to be chronically afflicted with a housing shortage.

Plans for the restoration of the tombstones that require attention in Old Trinity churchyard, Brooklyn, will be worked out by a committee made up of Paul Wilcox, Miss Emily M. Morgan and Miss Elizabeth B. Bigelow, representing the Colonel Daniel Putnam association. This historic churchyard, where sleep some who came into this territory when the churchyard territory was known as Kingswood Manor, part of the British colonial possessions in America, is in a beautiful natural setting. Some of the tombs, dating back far beyond a hundred years, are in need of attention, and it is to such matters, including many, that the association addresses its efforts.

August 26, has been selected as the date for the monthly birthday party of the Danielson Girls' club. The club each month arranges such an affair for all the members whose birthday comes in that particular month, and these events are always certain to be pleasant for the members.

Mrs. Walter F. Jacobs and children, after spending the winter at Port Cristobal, Canal Zone, where Commander Walter F. Jacobs is stationed, are in Danielson to remain through the summer season.

Danielson is not to be caught napping as to having an ample supply of fuel next fall and winter—coal strike or no coal strike. A heavy percentage of the households of this community now have next winter's supply of fuel on hand.

Mr. and Mrs. James Dielads and Wilfred Fulso motored to Rocky Point Sunday.

A considerable number from Danielson motored over to Arctic Center Sunday afternoon to see a baseball game between St. James' school team and the parish boys' team of Arctic.

As is the summer custom, some departments of the Pace Mfg. Co. are operating on a curtailed schedule and allowing employes a vacation period.

Thunder showers early Sunday afternoon brought some relief from a temperature that was nearing 90 at the noon hour.

A new home for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Keech is being constructed on Broad street, opposite Carter street.

James A. Williamson of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

At Bishop's crossing in the town of Plainfield concrete abutments for the new overhead bridge are in place and a fleet of motor trucks is continuing to haul dirt for the big fill at each side of the crossing. The work has been under way since spring and will eliminate a dangerous grade crossing on a trunk line highway.

Members of the fire department have plans under way for an outing and clambake for members to be held probably at the Old Furnace on a date to be announced.

Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., has plans for fencing both St. James' and Holy Cross cemeteries. Some of the new fencing is in place at St. James' cemetery.

Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church conducted a service at the Baptist church in Brooklyn Sunday afternoon.

PUTNAM

MAIL ROUTE TO WEBSTER ESTABLISHED BY AUTO

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, July 16—A new mail route has been established between Putnam and Webster. An automobile with body enclosed in a heavy wire mesh and with the inscription on the sides, "United States Mail," leaves the local postoffice at 8:30 every morning loaded with mail from Boston, Worcester and Webster, a large part of it being made up of newspapers. The route began operation July first, under a three years contract. The Boston and Worcester newspapers arrive in Webster by trolley or bus, is transferred to the mail motor truck and is brought on to Putnam. Stops are made at North Grosvenordale, Grosvenordale and Mechanicsville.

As soon as the van is unloaded it is filled with northern-bound mails, practically the same in quantity as that which it brings here, and it starts back over the route for Webster.

When the train service between Worcester and Putnam and other points to the north was disrupted several months ago, the postoffice department sent inspectors here to study the situation and the transportation of mail by motor bus is the outgrowth of their recommendations. Boston and Worcester morning newspapers did not reach here until 10:30. Under this new arrangement they arrive in Putnam at 8:30.

BODY OF JOSEPH SMITH SOUGHT FOR SUNDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, July 16.—A crew from the Watch Hill coast guard station searched unavailingly until early afternoon today for the body of Joseph Smith, 39, resident of Pawcatuck, reported drowned in Little Narragansett bay, near Rhode's folly, late Saturday afternoon. Other volunteer searchers also went over the waters unsuccessfully between Sandy Point, Napatree Point and Rhode's folly and a reason for the non-success of their efforts may have been the fact that the tide was reported as running out at the time of the drowning.

Accompanied by Benjamin Randall, 54 Mechanic street, Smith, unmarried, who resides at the rear of 73 Mechanic street, had gone down Pawcatuck river to secure mussels. Transferring from a launch to a small boat, the successful haul was made, but the small craft floundered in rough water and the two men were struggling to make shore. Smith disappeared from sight, but Randall was picked up by C. A. Root's private yacht Toorac, Captain Emilus B. Harvey, of Watch Hill. The Watch Hill coast guard station was notified and Captain Amos E. Broadmeadow commanded a crew to visit the spot to search for Smith's body.

Joseph Smith is survived by two half-brothers, George Smith of 79 Mechanic street; Albert Smith of Dedham, Mass., and a half-sister, Mrs. William Phetteplace, who resides in Pawcatuck.

A short message received in Westerly announces the marriage Thursday in Bangor, Me., of Hyalmer Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Larson, 7 Jay street, and Miss Margaret True, daughter of Mrs. Maud E. S. baseball teams of 1925 and 1926 and captain of the football team of 1924. Miss True also attended the Westerly high school the past year, being a junior, and member of the class of 1927.

The death of Miss Charlotte Augusta Doty, 91, occurred Saturday night at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. C. Burdick, 9 Dixon street, with whom she had resided for the past 44 years. Miss Doty had had remarkable health, had retained all her faculties and did not take to her bed until Saturday morning. Death was due to infirmities incident to age.

She was born in Stonington borough June 20th, 1835, the third of the family of 11 children of Orrin and Hannah Hancox Doty.

She is survived by two sisters, Hannah, Mrs. S. C. Burdick of Westerly and Agnes, Mrs. H. J. Kelsey of Amherst, Mass.; also by a sister-in-law, Mrs. Sarah J. Doty of Westerly.

Hill at their home, 256 Pleasant street, Providence. Preceded by her maid of honor, the sister of the bridegroom, Miss Edith W. Olsen, the bride entered the room with her father, while the bridal chorus from Lohengrin was played by Miss Elsie Benson. Irving C. Hill was the best man and Robert M. Hill acted as usher, both being brothers of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ellery L. Wilcox. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Olsen left on a motor wedding trip and on their return will reside at 191 Ninth street, Providence.

John Habereck, 50, under sentence of nine months in Providence county jail, made his escape from that institution about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. While working with a gang of other prisoners on the prison farm, he disappeared while the guards were not looking. He was described as weighing 220 pounds, light complexion, gray eyes and height, five feet ten inches. He wore prison clothes and overalls.

Habereck was committed May 26th at the Westerly term of superior court for Washington county by Judge Antonio A. Capotosto, on a deferred sentence for assault with a dangerous weapon upon Frank Knight, deputy sheriff commissioner of Washington county. The assault occurred Sunday morning, December 20th, 1925, on the Habereck farm, known as the Edward Keagon place in the town of Richmond, about a mile and a half south of Hope Valley on a cross road, leading from the state highway to the squirrel school.

Several court appearances were made by Habereck, both in the third district court of Westerly and the superior court for Washington county. Resulting from Habereck's snaring birds with a wire snare, Chief of Police Elmer A. Smith, of the town of Richmond had him arraigned for hunting without a license. Before Judge Turano in the district court he was found guilty of hunting without a license and fined $25 and costs. Second district court appearance was on complaint of Howard Swan for hunting with wire snares and on conviction his fine was made $50 and costs. Another complaint alleged violent assault upon Deputy Frank Knight and an appeal was taken by his Attorney John Dunn to the superior court for Washington county. A plea of not guilty was changed to one of nolo at Kingston, before Judge Capotosto and a suspended sentence of nine months was given on the assault charge and the $50 fine was set in the snaring case.

While the April term of Washington county superior court was in session in Westerly, complaint came to Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell, who went to Richmond and brought Habereck into court for assault upon his wife, daughter and son. No new assault complain was made out, but Habereck was given the nine months imprisonment on the suspended sentence for assault upon Frank Knight. Sheriff Mitchell on receipt of the information of Habereck's escape, got in touch with Richmond police authorities and warned the Habereck family. Rhode Island state troopers were also notified to be on the watchout for the escaped prisoner.

TAFTVILLE WINS AND LOSES IN WEEK-END GAMES WITH N. B. FALCONS

Taftville A. A. divided the honors in their weekend affil with the New Britain Falcons winning a ten inning pitcher's battle, 1 to 0, at the Providence street grounds on Saturday, and losing the Sunday game 6 to 5 at New Britain on Sunday.

The 1200 fans that saw Saturday's game saw one of the best pitching duels that has been staged in Eastern Conn., in many days. Lefty Buckland and Benny Kania battled on almost even terms for nine innings but the New Britain boy weakened in the tenth and the game went to Taftville. Buckland had the edge on Kania striking out eight men and allowing six scattered hits and never was in danger. Kania fanned but two men and allowed seven hits. Each passed one man.

Going into the last half of the tenth with the score deadlocked Kania weakened. Eccleston singled. He was followed by Tombari who was passed. Gauthier singled and Buckland fanned. With the bases full Leo Jarvis came through with the third single of the inning scoring Eccleston with the winning run. The only extra base hit of the game was a double by Klatka.

Sunday at New Britain the Falcons scored four runs in the seventh inning enough to give them a six to three verdict and even up the series. The four runs were a gift by Taftville as Tombari erred with a double play in sight and the winning runs scored after the error.

Lloyd Jarvis pitched for Taftville and was nicked for 11 hits and passed two. He fanned three. Fisher pitched for the Falcons allowing nine hits and fanning seven. He passed one. Gauthier led the hitting with three singles. The score:

SARAZEN AND SMITH TIE AGAIN FOR TITLE

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., July 18.—(AP)—A record for continuous deadlock in championship golf was set today.

Gene Sarazen, defending champion, and MacDonald Smith, western and Long Island open titleholder, fought a dead heat to the end of a double playoff in the Metropolitan open at the Salisbury Country club, and will meet in another 18-hole contest next Saturday in an effort to decide their contest.

The cards totalled 428 each for the 108 holes, or less than an average of 4 strokes to the hole, and 16 under par, for the six rounds.

The more than 3,000 fans furnished a sometimes breathless gallery through the two rounds today.

After tying for 72 holes with the unusually low score of 286 yesterday, Sarazen was trailing at the end of the of the first extra nine with a 36 against 34 for Smith. Twice in the remainder of that round the match was squared and the final two holes were halved in par, when Sarazen missed a 5 foot putt for a 69 on the 18th green.

Smith again took an early lead in the afternoon attempt to play it off, but Gene caught him at second hole with a birdie 3. The next three were halved and again Smith gained the 8th and rounded the first turn 35-36 but the 10th saw them even when Gene tapped another birdie 3. They halved their next four holes in par figures.

Sarazen went to the front at the 15th sinking a 20 foot putt for birdie 1, but Smith came right back and squared ot at the 17, when Sarazen's shot went in the trap from tee. They halved at the 18th finishing all even of the 36th hole playoff. Sarazen in 73 and Smith in 37. The afternoon card:

CHARLIE PADDOCK TO WED BEBE DANIELS, PICTURE STAR

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. July 18.—(AP)—Charles Paddock, the sprinter, tonight showed Hollywood his speed as a wooer with the announcement by Bebe Daniels, film star, whom he has known for but five weeks, that they would be married, but not for a year.

Paddock, holder of 37 world's sprinting records, met Miss Daniels when he was engaged to appear in her support in a motion picture now being filmed. The production marks the champion's debut on the screen.

"Charlie is one of the driest men I have ever met," said Bebe. "We have made no plans other than that we expect to be married. The wedding will not take place for at least a year because we each have other plans which will occupy most of our time during the next 12 months. I have another picture to make here right away, then a two months' vacation abroad and then another picture."

Paddock could not be reached for a statement although he followed a custom he established a few weeks ago by accompanying the star home from the studio. However, he admitted to friends there that the engagement had made him happier than any of his track achievements.

The engagement came as a surprise to Hollywood film folk because there has been no intimation of the announcement. Bebe is 26 years old, while Charley will celebrate his 26th birthday during the coming week.

EAST ENDS AND SAINTS IN CLASH THIS EVENING

Now that all twilight league teams are again back in line after what seemed like the end of the league, the league scheduled tonight will find the East Ends and Saints opposing each other in the first game of the second half.

The Saints and East Ends met in the first game of the season and the East Enders drove Stanleys offering to every corner of the lot until they had piled up a score of seventeen runs while the best the Saints could do was collect seven. Then and there the fans decided that the Saints would be a set up for the other teams during the season, but they were destined to be wrong because the management of the Saints immediately got busy and signed up a team which during the remainder of the first half lost only one game, that being to the league leaders the B. C. P. The Saints with "Tony" West, Liberty, Koslowski and Stanley available for mound duty have built up one of the strongest pitching staffs in the league. The remainder of their lineup including Bill Liberty behind the bat, Robinson at first, Gilbert second, Nap Liberty at short, Guillete at third, and Ralle Gilbert, Benjamin and Jodian in the outfield presents a real powerful team both on the offense and also the defense.

While the East Ends defeated the Saints in the opening game, since then have not appeared as strong as some of the other teams losing two games and barely winning their game last week with the Warriors, but Herry Mills, their manager, claims that tonight when his team takes the field he will give both the players on the other teams and also the fans something to talk about during their spare time as he has gathered together under his wing a team which in his estimation will be second to none and if some team can only defeat the league leaders once the pennant will be floating over the East End's camp when the season is over. Just what kind of a team Mills will present tonight is unknown but one thing is known and that is that he will need a team every bit as strong as the one he claims to have assembled if he expects to half the Saints in their march towards the pennant.

Rickard is 56 years old and a widower, his first wife having died last fall, his bride-to-be, he said, is 25 years old, and he has known her for eight years.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP)—Cleveland collected most of its hits in two innings to shake the jinx Covelskie has held over it for two years and defeated Washington, 6 to 3, today. RIVERVIEW BEATEN BY J. B. MARTIN CLUB BUT WIN FROM NEWPORT T. S.

Riverview split the week end bill losing a loose game to their old rivals J. B. Martin, 10 to 8, on Saturday afternoon, and swamping Newport Training Station club 12 to 1 on Sunday. Sunday's game was the first Sunday game ever played at the State Hospital diamond but the attendance was rather disappointing.

In losing to J. B. Martin on Saturday, Riverview has no one to blame but themselves for errors at critical times were responsible for the loss of the game. The Velvetmen were away to an early lead which Riverview was unable to overcome although they staged rallies in the seventh and ninth innings. West was weak with men on bases while Cleary tightened when the sacks were populated.

The Velvetmen scored five runs in the first inning. With one out, DeCelles drew a pass, F. Gley sacrificed and West threw wild to second and both were safe. J. Murphy hit to Normandin who fumbled and DeCelles scored. Cleary singled scoring F. Gley and Murphy. Eddie Murphy singled and W. Gley slashed one over second for a single but two runs crossed the plate on the hit. The next two men were easy outs.

In the second inning the Velvetmen tallied three times when an error by Normandin, and two singles filled the bases. Krause scored on the squeeze play by J. Murphy laying down a pretty bunt. Cleary again came through with a hit that scored DeCelles and F. Gley.

Being held without another run until the eighth the Martin team scored twice. Lemieux singled but was forced at second by Krause. DeCelles singled and he and Krause scored on Frankie Gley's smash over second base. This ended the scoring for the Velvetmen.

Riverview squeezed one across in the third inning when with one out Normandin singled and took second while Liberty was thrown out at first. He scored when DeCelles mussed up Mills roller. This ended the scoring for the inning.

In the fourth another run scored. Mulkey was safe on a third dropped strike. Harrell singled putting Mulkey on third from where he attempted to score but was caught at the plate. F. Gley to Murphy. Harrell took third on the play and scored while West was being thrown at first.

Three runs counted in the seventh when Liberty singled and scored on Clabby's triple. Mulkey was passed and Harrell tripled scoring both Clabby and Mulkey.

Another rally in the ninth netted three runs but fell short of tying by two runs. Mills flied out. Hamel hit a Texas leaguer over second but was forced at second by Clabby. Mulkey singled and he and Clabby scored on Harrell's double. Bejair came through with a single that scored Harrell. Wear was an easy out.

Clabby and Harrell were the hitting stars of the game.

Sunday's encounter was a slugging bee for Riverview and three pitchers were touched for 19 hits. Clabby and Dugas led the hitting attack Clabby getting a triple, two doubles and a single in five times up while Dugas collected three hits a triple and two singles. Dugas allowed the sailors but four hits two coming in the sixth inning when Newport scored its only run. The scores:

ALSACE-LORRAINE MAY TAKE CAUSE TO L. OF N.

GENEVA, July 18.—(AP)—Leaders of the recent unsuccessful movement in Alsace-Lorraine to obtain autonomy for the recovered French provinces, may it is believed in some quarters in Alsace, take their cause before the league of nations. That there is a certain amount of sentiment in this direction among these leaders was learned by a staff correspondent of the Associated Press who has just made a tour of the districts.

Reference of the matter to the league, presumably would be fought vigorously by France, while league officials say that even if any petition reaches Geneva, it would not be acted upon and would not even be circulated among league members, since France never signed a minority treaty concerning Alsace.

RICHARD TO REVEAL HIS PLANS TODAY

CHICAGO, July 18.—(AP)—Whether Chicago will be the scene of the world's heavyweight championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney will be revealed within 24 hours.

Tex Richard, New York promoter, who has the signed articles of the champion and the challenger, said tonight he would have a definite announcement to make before 6 o'clock tomorrow night, adding that indications strongly favored the selection of Chicago as the battle ground.

To Dedicate Memorial

CHICAGO, July 18.—(AP)—One of the most pretentious memorials ever built, the $3,000,000 Elks Memorial Headquarters, will be dedicated at the Elks annual convention July 14.

In memory of the 1,500 Elks who gave their lives in the World war and the 70,000 who entered the conflict, the building will also serve as the permanent national headquarters. The main section is circular with a flat, dome-like roof surrounded by a colonade 41 feet high, which rests upon a sculptured frieze. Another massive frieze surmounts the columns. Two small squarings at either end of the memorial will house the executive and editorial staff. The structure, situated on the rim of Lincoln park, facing Lake Michigan, is of Indiana limestone.

The trial of Dr. C. A. Haysmeir, American medical missionary, stationed at Pingyang, Kores, on charges of cruelty, has been set for July 27.

QUALIFYING AS GULLS

However much it might be figured out beforehand is said about fraudulent promotions to cause others to fight shy thereof, such doesn't appear to be the case. There are those who lose and make a fuss about it, but there are others who keep mum. Thus it is hard to tell the extent of losses through fraud and yet, large as they are, there are those who are always ready to contribute more.

From New Haven comes the story, published for by the detective bureau, that residents of that city have lost $6,000 in the past ten months through fire-flammers. The old game of changing bundles, the pocketbook trick and the solicitation of fake subscriptions made up the most of this amount, but the detective bureau doesn't undertaken to estimate the number of those who have been "touched" in other schemes or the amount they have lost. Living off the public is a game that is certain to be practiced just as long as enough easy marks can be found.

But aside from the gold brick schemes and the like, there are many individuals who are extremely careless with their money, and particularly as to the place in which they put it for safe keeping. This is well illustrated by the case of a Springfield man. Funds to the extent of $1300 had been saved up to go to the West Indies. For "safe" keeping, and unbeknown to his wife, he put this money in a bag of rags, where burglars would not be interested in looking. His wife, however, became interested in housekeeping, added much more to the bag, called in a junk dealer and disposed of the accumulations. The husband was in a frenzy when he returned how and tried to locate his money, and he had good reason to be. It took some time for the police to locate the rag peddler and the money, but fortunately it was done and we have an idea that a rag bag will not be selected for banking purposes by that fimaly in the future.

These are all cases similar in character to hundreds of others where losses have been even greater or the losses against such practice more pronounced, but the cases continue to multiply and to keep the police busy just as if nothing of the kind had ever happened. Some people are never satisfied until they have qualified in the gullible class.

STUDYING THE PHILIPPINES

While Colonel Carmi Thompson is making a personal investigation of the Philippines it was inevitable that the Philippine legislature should decide it a proper time for again in expressing itself upon the subject. Thus we find, according to the legislature, that the Philippines are unanimous in their demands for quick and complete independence. This is set forth that Colonel Thompson may make note of it and include it in his report to President Coolidge.

That the special investigator noted it is to be expected, but it furnishes no new information. The legislature has been doing that same thing about 10 years, and while the legislature is undoubtedly for the most part desirous of independence the sentiment in the Philipines is far from unanimous and opportunities for noting that fact are also being recognized by Colonel Thompson.

The unanimous action of the Philippine legislature must be taken with its political flavor, quite the same as the action of the Mexe representative in asking for independence when the Mexes have only recently declared they are unalterably opposed to it. The politicians in the Philippines are making the most of their chances to support the claims which have been previously made concerning the desire for freedom, but demands which are not borne out by conditions are likely to carry much more than they have in the past. It is fully understood what would happen to the Philippines if they were cast adrift. They would be subjected to danger from inside as well as from out. Feeling is said enough now but it would be given more intense on the part of the Filipos should American control be withdrawn?

The demonstrations in behalf of independence for the islands are all being made from the standpoint of the Filipino politician. What that means can be inferred from the claims which have been made in the past that it would be decidedly unhealthy for any member of the legislature to prevent a unanimous vote for independence.

FRANCE'S SITUATION

Another Briand cabinet has come and gone. Another attempt has been made to adjust the financial problems of France and it has failed. For the second time Caillaux has been called upon to dealt with the financial tangle and he has failed to get support. In the meantime the trend of the franc has been downward and it continues on its course. What is going to stop it?

It has been pointed out to the French parliament that it must stop playing politics and get down to business. It has shown no disposition to take any short cuts in doing so. It has been presented no proposition thus far which has convinced it that there should be a departure from its stand. When it gets to the point of taking action upon a definite plan it resorts to the disapproval, but it never has anything as good or better to take its place. Regardless of what it disapproves it fails to bring to attention anything that it is willing to approve.

Pointing to the fact that Belgium has recently granted dictatorial authority to Kink Albert in dealing with finances in that country, the appeal was made to France to resort to similar action. But while there may have been recognition of the critical situation in France there was an unwillingness to consider it so critical as to get approval for so drastic a move. There were those who could not be convinced that the republic ought to take such authority away from the people.

Now the problems must be tackled all over again for they still exist. The do-nothing policy has simply made the situation worse, set the different factions the more firmly against each other and emphasized the size of the task that confronts the next cabinet. Where it was the question last week as to whether the Caillaux plan would be adopted, attention is now centered upon the one who will form the new cabinet and the one who will be picked for the portfolio of minister of fiance. It is clearly not an office for which there will be a contest. There's no certainty that the best possible solution of the financial problems of France would be given approval, and yet some other than Caillaux might have gotten more confidence.

JAYWALKING

Establishment safety in the streets is no easy task. It places large responsibilities on those who are dealing with traffic, but it is not always the street traffic, by autos and teams, that gives the most bother. There are those who insist upon jaywalking who not only invite trouble for themselves but who make difficult the efforts of the traffic authorities and the drivers of machines. They disregard signals, appear from unexpected places and create accidents, or near accidents, when consistent efforts would prevent them.

This is particularly true in cities where there is much traffic and where the use of the streets by autos and pedestrians is alternated, involving but brief delay on the part of either in order to insure a clear right of way and the elimination of trouble. When respected it works well. When there is disrepect it creates a dangerous situation and aggravates.

Those who figure that street crossings can be effected without stopping to look to see if the street is clear, who step in front of traffic from behind autos, who slowly and deliberately walk into and across highways in the face of oncoming machines and making no effort to get out of the way and who walk along roads with defiance as if inviting a bump, and show no disposition to yield even when two machines are passing beside them are contributing in a large degree to the needless accidents in the street and highways.

There were the days when jaywalking was never heard of, for everyone did it. Today it represents a dangerous practice and the less indulgence therein the greater safe protection. It should never be attempted except under a careful survey to see that the road is clear and no danger in sight.

RELIEVING THE COURTS

Much has been said about clogged dockets and inability to keep up with the business needing the attention of the federal courts. From time to time new judges have been added and yet business has increased faster than the judges.

What seems to be a step that will give the federal judges more time to attend to the actual disposition of cases in the law adopted by the last congress which changes the method of dealing with naturalization cases.

Heretofore certain days have been assigned by the courts for this business. Considering the many cases this has required considerable time, but at the suggestion of Secretary Davis of the labor department federal judges will select naturalization examiners who will conduct hearings and make recommendations concerning the petitioners and the finding of these examiners the court is authorized to accept.

This doesn't mean that there is going to be any greater laxity in connection with naturalization than was the former practice. It means that the work will be shifted to other shoulders and the federal judges will have the time which was hitherto devoted to naturalization business for the disposition of the regular matters before the court.

It is one of those changes which is in keeping with developments. Where there may have been time in other days for federal judges to give such matters the time they require, the growth of court business and the increase in naturalization business made such an arrangement necessary, or more judges, in order to keep up with the demands. It will no doubt be a welcome relief on the part of the courts.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The score now stands: St. Swithin 2, opponents 1.

If it rains every day for the next 40 possibly we can get along without a new reservoir.

The man on the corner says: Does the kind of weather make any difference with the midsummer night's dream?

Those who are driven so desperate by the lack of work that they are ready to take life ought to apply for a safety conservator.

The Literal club of London has put Lloyd George's picture in the cellar. Had that been done in a prohibition country it would have been following the crowd.

A Boston lawyer fined and sent to jail for a year for bribing the police sought the mercy of the court on his 13-year record. But was his record really clean, or had he managed to escape detection that long?

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Old pieces of velvet and velveteen should be saved as they make excellent polishing cloths and pads.

Dried fruits such as peaches, apricots and prunes will need very little sugar if you cook them long enough.

Sandwiches filled with tuna fish or salmon mixed with celery and mayonnaise dressing are highly nutritive and very delicious.

You will never have lumpy soups or sauces if you mix salt with the flour before moistening it. Stir with a fork instead of a spoon.

The cellar should be whitewashed at least once a year, not only for cleanliness and appearance, but for disinfecting purposes as well.

When building a home have your kitchen windows large and be sure you can lower them from the top with ease. Most kitchens are badly ventilated.

Before you fry the breakfast bacon soak it in cold water for four or five minutes. This will prevent the grease from running, and it improves the flavor of the meat.

When baking apples, fill the cavities with honey and broken walnuts. These are delicious.

A paper soaked in vinegar placed over newly made jam before putting on the cover will prevent its fermenting.

When the soil around house plants becomes dry water should be applied until it begins to run into the saucer. No more water should be given until the soil becomes dry on the surface and the sides of the pot.

If your hardwood floors have become chipped, sandpaper or smooth the chipped places with steel wool then oil by rubbing with a pad made of cotton waste covered with tied and dipped in linseed oil.

When frying doughnuts the bread test is more reliable. Put a cube of bread in the fat. When it begins to turn a golden brown, remove and add another, counting slowly up to 70. The bread should then be a golden brown, and the fat ready to use.

WILL SAVE YOU MONEY

A small calendar and pencil kept near the telephone and a line made for the call on the day it was used, will do away with arguments and errors in the bill at the end of the month.

ASPARAGUS TIPS

Serve boiled asparagus tips on toast and pour over them a cream sauce seasoned with grated cheese and the chopped whites of hard-cooked eggs put through a seive. Use the rubbed yolks for garnishing.

FANCY POTATO SALAD

Cut raw potatoes into balls with French vegetable cutter. Put one quart of these balls into boiling salted water, add one sliced onion and boil until tender. Drain, marinate with French dressing, let stand one hour, moisten with cooked dressing, place on bed of lettuce leaves, sprinkle with chopped chives and garnish with slices of hard-cooked eggs.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

If your child develops the habit of being fussy and overparticular about his food, try to replace it with the habit of eating whatever is set before him.

Quite often the cause of excessive dryness or oiliness is bound up with other bodily conditions, like underweight or overweight, a poor circulation, or general ill-health. This is particularly true of the scalp and hair.

Never clean your nails with a file, penknife or any sharp article. It will only scratch the underneath part of the nail and this roughened surface will collect dirt and hold it far more quickly and stubbornly than before. Use an orange stick for this purpose.

The first thing mothers should watch is the weight and general health of their children. A love of nature and outdoor sports should be instilled into every boy and girl. The natural interest that all children have in plants and animals should be cultivated, as it will take them out in the fresh air and will help them understand their world.

SAVING THE FEET

Many women make the mistake of saving old, run-over shoes to wear "around the house." Others spend a large part of the day in felt or soft cloth house slippers. The woman who wears correctly fitted, comfortable shoes to work in will be going a long way toward making her housework lighter. There are so many steps to be taken and so much bending and kneeling to do and a pair of good walking shoes with soles that are flexible and not too heavy will make housework much pleasanter.

TRANSFER PATTERNS

Do not throw away hot iron transfer patterns after using them once. By using a few thumb tacks and carbon paper the designs can be used as many times as desired on any cloth that may be washed in hot water. This carbon paper method permits of much originality in embroidered linens, since the clever housewife many copy designs from wallpaper, or magazine covers, or may even draw upon her own ideas.

PREVENTS V SHAPED PATCH

To prevent the appearance of the V-shaped red patch on neck and chest, the bane of the woman tennis player, an accessory to this season's tennis outfit is the "sunburn scarf." Made of double crepe de chine, the scarfs are just long enough to twist around neck and throat except for the embroidered ends, one of which falls over the chest as a sun shield while the other does the same service for the back of the neck.

A DRY CARRIER

For the first time an attractive piece of luggage has been developed in which to carry a wet bathing suit. Week ends at the beaches have been hampered by the difficulty of taking home a still damp bathing costume. The new carrier is shaped like a hat box and is attractively decorated. Inside it is lined with waterproof fabric and is large enough to contain suit, cape, cap and other beach accessories.

DICTATES OF FASHION

An innovation of midsummer fashions is the short box coat of linen in white or colors.

Black embroidery and black lace or net is frequently seen on the fine white linen kerchief.

Flannel coats in pastel tones have straight lines and tailored collars, and are very youthful and charming.

The accent of color in a white costume is provided by a hat and by the envelope bag of red acrase leather.

A distinctive sport ensemble consists of a black kasha jumper worn with a grey kasha skirt, a black felt hat and a gray fox fur.

The most attractive footwear for midsummer comes in linen and may be had in all the delicate colors to match up the summer frocks.

Youthful dance frocks are fashioned of black point d'esprit over a foundation slip of pink chiffon or satin.

To wear with the sheer frocks of summer are chocker necklaces formed to alternate links of cloudy crystal and jade, lapis, carnelian or onyx.

An innovation of midsummer fashions is the short box coat of linen in white or colors which is worn over the silk or jersey sports dress.

A parasol of straw matting painted in gay colors and a large bag which matches it are among the accessories that accompany a bathing suit or red and white checked taffeta.

Beaded shawls are a novelty in Paris, and present a very colorful and glittering appearance. Large squares of plain colored silk with wide knotted fringe are very fashionable.

Many of the smartest women are wearing lisle hosiery in the most delicate colors and in a weight almost as sheer as the chiffon silk stockings. The colors are exactly the tone which are considered the most correct in silk hosiery.

SLEEVES COMMAND ATTENTION

Like most other competitions, the race to led in fashions depends largely on the finish. Never before have clothes been so beautifully finished off. Tremendous attention has been paid to the cut of a sleeve and the mounting of pleats. In consequence the clothes of this season give the impression of extreme simplicity whereas they are anything but simple and are not to be duplicated in home manufacture.

LINEN TAILLEURS

So far this year the weather in the north has been such that the tailored suits have been composed of woolen materials. Now, however, the smartest costumes seen around the country clubs are of linen or pique, in rose, pink, or other pastel shades. Pleated plaid skirts are being worn with little tailored jackets of plain material which are shaped at the waist and which fasten at the waist and which fasten with a single button.

CALICO DRAPERIES

Calico which has tiny figures of red on a white background is used for draperies on a four-poster maple bed that is an excellent copy of an early American model.

LAUNDRY HINTS

By putting hooks and eyes on the elastics of the children's bloomers, and removing the elastic before washing, not only makes the bloomers easier to wash and dry, but saves the elastic.

Scorch marks, unless very bad, when of course there is no cure for them, may be removed from linen in the following way. Cut an onion in halves and rub the scorched part with it; then soak in cold water. You will find that the marks will soon disappear.

The ironing board's position has much to do with speedy and satisfactory ironing. First, it should be placed in a good light. Then it should be the correct height for the ironer. Last but not least, don't put it in a position blocking the kitchen door. If you do you won't speak to your young hopeful by the time you are finished ironing.

A BISCUIT SUGGESTION

How often many of us would add hot biscuits to our evening meal were it not for the trouble of making them at the last minute and when we are most probably wearing a dress which we dislike to risk near such a task. But just as many other parts of our dinner may be prepared during the forenoon, so can the biscuits. They may be mixed, cut, arranged for baking, and set inside the refrigerator until dinner time and when baked will be just as perfect as if they went directly from the board to the oven.

Another biscuit secret is this—if an aluminum or tin sheet is used instead of the usual baking pan, the biscuits will be much lighter and bake more quickly.

KEEP THEM SEPARATED

How often have you watched a housewife frantically going through the dresser drawer in search of a spoon or fork while smoke arises from the article being cooked? This would be avoided if the drawer for kitchen cutlery were partitioned and the various utensils sorted and kept in their places.

DON'T BE DISCOURAGED

After the maid has been discharged and you go into the kitchen and find the saucepan and coffee pot black on the bottom, set them in a shallow pan in which a teaspoon of soda has been dissolved in a little water. Then heat the water to a boiling point and they can be cleaned quite rapidly.

THE VEGETABLE BRUSH

That stiff vegetable brush that we always seem to have in reserve is just splendid to brush the suede so fashionable this year. It brings up the nap in a jiffy.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Dresden, Saxony is the latest European city to inaugurate the system of women police.

Women are now eligible to higher than welfare workers in the Berlin, Germany, police department.

The Alaska Federation of Women's clubs has just celebrated its 10th anniversary.

Emilie Snethlage, Brazil's celebrated woman naturalist, is called the "Roosevelt" of South America.

Mrs. M. T. B. Hanna, called "the mother of journalism in Washington," because she was the first woman to publish a newspaper in that state, died recently at her home near Seattle.

In a contest with other high school students all over the United States, Loretta Kier, a high school girl of Portland, Ore., has won first prize in an interior decorating contest sponsored by wall paper manufacturers.

FOR SLOWER COOKING

One or two asbestos mats are convenient in the kitchen to put under saucepans containing foods liable to burn. They are a joy when heating articles such as canned corn or things containing thickenings.

A PRETTY GARNISH

Finely chopped parsley is such an attractive addition that almost any dish with a cream sauce will look more appetising if a little is added.

RECIPES

Sour Cherry Soup: Mash a pint of sour cherries, cracking the pits, and cook in one pint of water ten minutes after the boiling point is reached. Add one stick of cinnamon and the thin yellow rind of half a lemon to improve the flavor. Strain the liquid through a square of cheesecloth, return to the saucepan and thicken with two teaspoons of arrowroot blended with a little of the cherry water. Add one quart of clear bouillion, season with salt, pepper and two teaspoons of granulated sugar. Serve hot or cold with toasted oysterettes.

Fruit Salad Dressing: A delicious dressing for fruit salads is made with: 2 egg yolks, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon (scant) dry mustard, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon olive oil, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1-4 cup whipped cream.

Beat yolks of eggs, add butter and sugar creamed together, vinegar, lemon juice, oil, mustard, salt and paprika. Cook in a double boiler until thick, stirring constantly. Cool and add cream. Pour over salad and serve.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Never More Prosperous

Mr. Editor: In response to E. D. Balkcom's inquiries I am a regular subscriber to The Norwich Bulletin, but, I would not think of scanning the ads to get any idea of the general prosperity of our country. I speak from my own observation as I travel and from reading the reports from those financiers who make it their business to know the financial condition of the country. If Mr. Balkcom is not familiar with the excellent reports given by Alexander Dana Noyes in Scribner's, he will find it very profitable reading. I have just finished reading it, and it is a pleasure to pass it on to him. Mr. Nowes says: "When railway traffic has continued at a volume never previously reached at this time of the year, when payments reached through the banks are still similarly exceeding the previous high mark for the season it is reasonable inference that at least the basic considerations that go to shape prosperity have not been removed." He considers that there are other and even more convincing evidences of the American peoples' wealth and purchasing power. The statistical bureau at Washington reported production of iron and steel to be greater by 54 per cent. than even in 1919, production of automobiles 163 per cent., of textiles by 23 per cent., of lumber by 56 per cent., of oil by 121 per cent., etc., etc. I have noticed that families who had to be helped by charity before prohibition now have not only the necessities of life, but even support a flivver. He may well ponder the report from the U. S. treasury that the income tax receipts during the current fiscal year will be higher than any previous year since 1922, in spite of the material reduction in the revenue of 1924. I would go on multiplying proofs of the marvelous prosperity of America. The day laborer gets larger wages than ministers and teachers or professors in most of our colleges. Let them put their earnings into beer and wine and the flivver will go, as well as the ordinary comforts of life.

Yes, I say it again—never in my memory has the working class been so prosperous and happy as today.

Down with the wets!

Stories That Recall Others

Chance for Misunderstanding

The service boy at a tire store had taken a tire off a customer's car and it was badly broken inside. The customer remarked that he would take the tire back to the firm that sold him the car (a second hand one), for it had told him that the car had five new tires. He found, however, breaks in every tire.

The service boy looked up and drolly said:

"Maybe you didn't understand the deal."

The customer said: "How's that?"

"Well, maybe they says it oughto have five new tires," commented the boy.

Couldn't Be Both

This woman had an alteration with a gatherer of swill, who got rather "fresh." She called the man he worked for and reported his conduct to him saying that he spoke to her in a very "ungentlemanly manner." The man at the other end of the line said:

"Why, lady, you surely wouldn't expect him to be a gentleman and a garbage collector, too, would you?"

NEW LONDON'S FIRE CHIEF ROSE ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL SATURDAY

SHIELDS AND CAMPBELL TO FISH IN THE DOMINION

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 19—James Shields, engine dispatcher of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, and Harry Campbell, train dispatcher, formerly of Norwich, began their annual vacation of two weeks today. The referendum petition requesting that a special city election be held, that the voters may decide by ballot either for the present form of city manager government or to have the business conducted in the future by municipal charter, is believed by city officials to be invalid. This will not be determined until after City Clerk Julian D. Moran concludes his check up of the signatures, and this will not be before the latter part of next week. The petition, it is declared, by the circulators has 2,300 signatures. Of this number but 2,040 are necessary to compel the calling of the election, but it is known that 225 of the signatures will be thrown out and on the check-up of the signatures to date, about 25 additional signatures have been pronounced invalid. The number already thrown out, together with those which were obtained by Elmer E. Kenerson and will be rejected because obtained before the expiration of the two years' reign of the present government as provided by charter, makes the total number of alleged defective signatures 250, or about half of the surplus number of signatures necessary to obtain the election. City Clerk Moran has made a check-up of about only one-seventh of the signers and it is belief that there will be more than 250 defective signatures in the remaining check up. If such is the case the petitions will have 10 days in which to attempt to obtain such an additional number of signatures as will validate the petition and result in the election being held.

Fisher stated that he did not miss the bag until after the train left New London and that he suspected a young man about 18 of committing the theft, as passengers observed the youth leave the train here carrying a bag that answered the description of Fisher's bag. The railroad police in New London were notified of the theft and so were the local police.

Frank Lovell, 24, a sailor, at the submarine base, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Sergeant Samuel Hick charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $200 for trial in the police court Monday morning. MRS. BARRETT'S HUSBAND BOUNCED AS MANAGER

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 19.—Fred Barrett, husband of Mrs. Harriet Scheele Barrett, proprietress of the Rotisserie, Waterford, restaurant and dance hall, frequented mostly by New London and Norwich young people, was arrested twice Friday night, charged with breach of the peace, by Mrs. Barrett. Barrett was presented in the Waterford town court this morning, but the case was continued until Monday afternoon. Barrett furnished a bond of $500 for his appearance in court.

Barrett has acted as manager of the Rotisserie several years, but of late, it is understood, his conduct and services were not such as Mrs. Barrett countenances, so Friday she relieved her husband of further duties as manager. Barrett became enraged and caused a decided disturbance at the place, resulting in Sergeant Clifford Gorgas and Officers Arthur Whitmarch and Bernar Kenerson going to the road house and arresting the manager.

He furnished a surety on his bond for presentation in court Saturday, but during the day he went to the Rotisserie and created another disturbance. He smashed things generally, including a couple of doors. The state police were complained to a second time and Barrett was again arrested. He was held a prisoner at the police station Saturday afternoon and night and this morning he was turned over to Officer Whitmarsh, who took Barrett to Waterford that he might be given a hearing. The continuance was ordered by Judge Fred N. Dinmock, in order to permit Barrett to obtain counsel.

Mike Baldasarri will go before the September superior court charged with an assault on Mrs. Rose Verdi on the 1st inst. at which time, the woman alleges, he robbed her of $166. The robbery took place in Bank street in the early evening, about 10:30 in front of the garage just below Tilley street. OBITUARY

Charles S. Ebberts

Following an illness of a little over one week with plural pneumonia, the death of Charles Sylvester Ebberts of No. 106 Chestnut street, veteran Norwich police officer, occurred Saturday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of his nephew, William Mathews of West Haven. Mr. Ebberts had been in West Haven since the commencement exercises at Yale university, when his grandson, Charles Dewhurst of Hialeah, Fla., was a graduate. He had been in his usual good health until about a week before his death and there was no warning that he was seriously ill.

The news of the death of Mr. Ebberts, retired officer of the Norwich police department, will be received with regret by a host of friends in this city. A man of quiet habits, he had made many friends who extend their sympathy to those left to mourn his loss.

Mr. Ebberts was born December 8, 1850 in Baltimore, Md., the son of Sylvester and Mary Ebberts. He received his early education in Baltimore and came to Norwich when about 20 years of age. For a number of years he was employed in the old Norwich lock shop and later as a substitute carrier for the Norwich postoffice.

In July 1885 he received his appointment to the Norwich police force and served faithfully for 38 years as an active officer, being retired in September 1923 and placed on the pension list. His death leaves but three members of the department on the retired list.

Mr. Ebberts was married June 1, 1871 in Norwich to Eliza Jane Mathews whose death occurred in 1895. For his second wife he married Kathleen Borden, also of Norwich, in June 1896, her death occurring in Norwich in August, 1921.

Surviving are four daughters, Miss M. Emma Ebberts, who was with him at the time of his death, and Miss Henrietta Ebberts, also of Norwich, Mrs. Robertson Dewhurst of Hialeah, Fla., and Mrs. Everett T. Gray of Webster, Mass.; one step sister, Mrs. Barton Clark of Oxford, Mass., and ten grandchildren.

Fraternally Mr. Ebberts was affiliated with Shetucket lodge No. 27, I. O. O. F.

Her husband died a number of years ago. Surviving her are three sons, William and Albert Kenyon of Sterling and Fred Kenyon of Bridgeport and a daughter, Mrs. George Lincoln of Oneco. She was a sister of Mrs. Ellen Waite of Oneco, who died about two years ago.

LIGHTNING BOLT STUNS BOY AND DAMAGES AUTO AND HOUSE AT LEBANON

During the height of the severe electrical storm which swept over this section of the state Sunday afternoon a bolt of lightning stunned Paul Bliss of Hartford, a ten year old boy who was visiting at the home of Fred Lillie, Kick Hill, Lebanon. The bolt struck a tall tree in Mr. Lillie's yard, splitting it from the top down and scattering bark and branches over a wide area.

The same bolt took a corner off a Dodge touring car, parked under the tree and belonging to Mr. Lillie's father. The boy who was in a room in the house was stunned, the lightning slightly burning his stocking and leg. He soon recovered from the shock and is little the worse for his experience.

Besides splintering the tree, damaging the automobile and stunning the boy, the bolt entered the well and followed the water pipes into the cellar where it split a beam. The house telephone was put out of order.

Half of the telephones in Lebanon were put out of commission by a second storm during the early evening. It is thought a bolt of lightning entered one of the cables at the Lebanon exchange.

The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bliss of Hartford and is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. James Card in Labanon. The tree hit by the bolt was splintered for a distance of 30 feet, half its length.

NORWICH-WILLIMANTIC ROAD NEARING COMPLETION

Travel by automobile in eastern Connecticut, especially concerning the highways leading out of Norwich, is improving rapidly in condition as the various state road projects are brought nearer to completion.

The Norwich-Willimantic road is open for one way travel from a point above Smith's corners to the foot of Cooley's hill, practically all this distance being over the new cement road which has been practically completed on the southerly side. On the north side the cement has been laid from Cooley's hill to a point about mid-way to the crown of Franklin hill, but this portion has not been opened for traffic. Traffic above Smith's corner proceeds over the old macadam highway, the new cut through the meadows not having been cemented, simply being graded preparatory to pouring the cement.

On the Norwich-New London road the new work has been completed to a point at the foot of Trading Cove hill, travel on the cement being open both ways. From Trading Cove hill to the foot of Mohegan hill is one way travel, the cement having been laid for all the distance.

On the Norwich-Groton road work is being done at the dangerous S curve at the Submarine Base, where it is intended to straighten out the road and eliminate the bad turns. The travel here is not bad as the change effects only a short distance of the highway.

On the Norwich-Plainfield road work at Bishop's crossing is proceeding nicely, a small detour being necessary for a short distance each side of the railroad crossing. "Bumpy" is the word to describe this section but it is not so bad but what it could be worse, and, it is only for a few hundred feet.

The Norwich-Westerly highway and the Norwich-Middletown highway, also the Norwich-Colchester highway are in excellent condition, there being only routine work on these roads.

Practically all city streets leading to these various main highways for through travel are in good condition, the one exception being Thames street and West Thames street, which are in wretched condition, and, according to every motorist, local or transient, who rides over them, should be repaired before accidents happen and bring the usual law suits. Deep holes, bad spots between the trolley rails and between the cement and the trolley rails, fully a third of the entire street, from the foot of Stove Foundry hill to the city line, is in this deplorable shape. A trip over this road reveals bad breaks in the cement in some places and quickly brings to mind, according to many local automobile drivers, that the city should take steps immediately to bring this road into condition to compare with the cement road leading to this main artery.

SKIDDING SEDAN CRASHES OVER STONE WALL

Losing control of his car after passing another automobile on the Norwich-Westerly highway about a mile below the city line Sunday night, John Gregson of No. 130 Washington street miraculously escaped death when the heavy Willys-Knight sedan stopped its mad dash by landing upside down and nearly perpendicular against a tree.

Mr. Gregson suffered slight cuts about the face caused by flying glass and was somewhat shaken up after his ride but was able to crawl out through a side window when the steel body withstood the shock caused by the overturning of the car.

The accident evidently happened when the car skidded off the road to the left, the wheels became imbedded in the soft dirt and tore the wheel from the driver's hands. The momentum of the sedan carried it over a stone wall, pulled up a heavy fence post and then ended over into the ground throwing the car upside down against a tree, where it remained at an angle of nearly 90 degrees.

Fortunately Mr. Gregson was alone in the car at the time of the accident for had there been passengers in the rear seat a fatality would have been practically unavoidable. A heavy fence rail, nearly five inches in diameter, was jabbed through the roof at the rear of the car, the sharp end resting close to the rear seat.

A badly twisted frame, bent fenders and bent axle and scratched body comprised most of the damage to the sedan, most of the glass remaining unbroken and the windshield not being even cracked.

The wrecked car attracted hundreds to the spot Sunday night and in order to protect against theft of parts Mr. Gregson engaged Officer Coburn to remain with the car until a wrecker could be secured to bring it to a local garage.

The accident happened during the storm and the highway was in a treacherous condition, this probably accounting for the skidding of the car.

FORMER NORWICH BOY SCALES MOUNT FRYATT

Howard Palmer of New London, a native of Norwich, and son of George S. Palmer of New London, and Dr. J. W. Hickson of Montreal have scaled Mount Fryatt, one of the highest and most formidable peaks in the Athabasca river section of the Canadian Rockies. Palmer and Hickson are believed to be the first persons to reach the summit of the mountain which is guarded by precipitous shale slopes on one side and glacier fields on the other.

Forest fires to the south of the mountain interfered with the climbers, but they managed to reach the top despite this. Mr. Palmer is president of the Alpine club of the United States and Mr. Hickson is president of the Canadian Alpine club. Swiss guides from Jasper Park lodge assisted in the climb.

NORWICH AERIE, F. O. E. INITIATES 15 MEMBERS

Saturday evening at their new home on Cliff street, the officers and members of Norwich aerie, No. 367, Fraternal Order of Eagles, started the new administration activities with a class initiation. Fifteen new members were taken into the order.

At 8.15 o'clock when the meeting was called to order by Worthy President A. Hastedt, a large delegation was present from the following subordinate aeries: Putnam, Hartford, New London, Bristol, Waterbury, Naugatuck and Terryville.

The initiation and degree work of the evening was conducted by the officers of the Bell City aerih degree team of Bristol.

After the initiatory work the following brothers made brief remarks on the good of the Fraternal Order of Eagles: State Chaplain William Farley of Bristol; State Conductor Richard Dempsey, of Hartford.

The following visiting officers of Bristol aerie also spoke: Joseph Goodnow, Alexander Bernagie, Thomas Yates and A. E. Trothier, who dwelt on the activities of the old age pension.

Other visiting brothers to make brief remarks included David Carroll, worthy president of New London aerie, Daniel Callahan, secretary, and Charles Smith, who is also an active member of New London.

On the entertaining list was the smallest Eagle in the United States, Edward Beagle of New Britain and Richard Dempsey of Charter Oak aerie of Hartford.

Norwich also had the honor of having William Kelley of the state organization department and Mathew Smith, grand worthy conductor of the grand aerie wish them success.

They were on their way to Providence where they were to be guests of the state aerie of Rhode Island during the state convention.

The following were the visiting brothers who signed the roster of Norwich aerie for visitors: William Farley, Joseph Goodnow, A. E. Trothier, Alexander Bertinagie, Thomas Yates, John Coam, Emil Bachmar, Homer Mitchell, of Bristol aerie. Representing Hartford was a delegation of ten members, while the Whaling city sent a bus load of enthusiastic Eagles.

To continue the activities that have been started to make this the banner year in the history of Norwich aerie the committee that has charge of all entertainments and class initiations for this year have requested that the aera hold a past worthy presidents' night on the regular meeting to be held Monday, August 6. This committee will send an invitation to all past worthieles to be present at this meeting.

RELIGIOUS SERVICE AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

The usual religious service was held at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The music was a pleasing feature, and was furnished by H. C. Zabriskie, baritone and Miss Marcia Zabriskie pianist. The latter also played for the moving pictures. Hymns, scripture reading and prayer constituted the opening exercises. A short educational reel entitled Hunting Bird Secrets was shown and proved very interesting.

The special picture was the historic story of the Bible, "Cain and Abel." The picture was very vivid in its portrayal of the two brothers, their offering unto the Lord, one being accepted and the other rejected. The scene when Cain slew his brother was most thrilling, as was the wandering of the frightened Cain over the earth. Between the reels Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk, and has spoke in part as follows: While very few comparatively become murderers, yet very many of us say and do things that hurt the hearts of others. We should daily ask in prayer that "the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts shall be acceptable in Gods sight." What a power for good or evil a word may be: sometimes our words are very cutting and harmful, while at other times they are most helpful. If Cain had stopped to think of the terrible results of such an act he would have refrained from doing the awful deed. The trouble with many people is that they do not stop to think. The suggestion that we should count ten before we speak is a practical piece of advice. Let us guard most carefully our thoughts and our words and we will avoid giving pain to others. Emery H. Davis operated the picture machine.

The July meeting of the Y. M. C. A. board of directors will be held on Tuesday evening of this week at 7:30 o'clock at the association building.

NORWICH GIRLS LOSE MONEY AND WATCHES AT BEACH

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 16—Bathhouse thieves operated at Ocean Beach this afternoon. The crooks gained entrance to a locker room at the Neptune baths and robbed a quintette of Norwich young ladies of a sum of money and two wrist watches. The money taken, it is believed, is not more than $15, but the wrist watches were valuable. One was a round watch, Waltham movement, and the other was a watch of square design and Swiss movement. The Misses Dora Safernowitz, 28 Maple street, Norwich, and Ethel Levine, 219 West Main street, reported the theft to the police.

The Misses Safernowitz and Levine and their companions went to the shore resort early in the day and this afternoon they attired themselves in bathing suits and entered the surf. They did not return to the bathhouse until about 5 o'clock when they unlocked the door and found their watches and money gone. There was no evidence that the door had been forced and every indication pointed to the thieves using a skeleton key.

RAIL ATHLETIC ASSN. HAD OUTING AT RED TOP

The New Haven Division Athletic association of the N. Y. N. H. and H. railroad held its fifth annual field day Sunday at Red Top on the Norwich-Groton highway. A special train from New Haven carried the 600 people to and from the picnic grounds. An athletic programme and swimming races were features of the day. Thomas W. Cronin of New Haven was chairman of the committee in charge of the outing.

FISHBONE WINS FIGHT AGAINST DEPORTATION

After a battle of three and a half years Harry Fishbone may now remain in this country, the legal battle waged on his behalf by Attorney John E. Barnes against the department of labor, having ended in his favor. Attorney Raymond M. Hudson was also counsel for Fishbone in the long legal battle.

The case in question was that of Aaron Poliszek, or Harry Fishbone, of this city, against James J. Davis, secretary of the department of labor, and Robe Carl White, acting secretary of the department of labor, which had been pending for some time in the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

The plaintiff, Harry Fishbone, was a blacksmith and came to the United States from Russia three and one half years ago. He has two brothers, Isadore Fishbone of Hallville and Harry Fishbone of Yantic and they were bringing him to the United States to settle here. Harry Fishbone, the immigrant is unmarried and about 31 years of age.

Immigration officials refused to allow the plaintiff, Harry Fishbone to enter the United States and classed him as an "undesirable alien." They contended further that he was unable to read or write the English language, and that Fishbone was not "physically capable" of reading, being deaf and dumb.

Fishbone was ordered deported by the secretary of the department of labor. However, Attorney John H. Barnes of this city took the matter up with the U. S. government immigration department and Fishbone was allowed to leave Ellis Island, where he had been held in detention, and to stay in this country for a period of six months, as a "visitor."

Attorney Barnes obtained extensions of time, under the six months period and during that time the case in the supreme court was begun to allow Fishbone to remain permanently in this country.

Seeing that the case would be a hard proposition, under the conditions in which Fishbone, deaf and dumb, entered the country, Attorney Barnes sent Fishbone to the Mystic Oral school, a school for the deaf and dumb. Here for some time Fishbone stayed and he acquired a knowledge of the three R's.

Lately the immigration department refused an extension of time for Fishbone to remain in this country and aerie officials ordered him again deported from this country.

When Fishbone was taken into custody, Attorney Barnes, in another legal skirmish, succeeded in obtaining a bond of $2,000 to allow his client his liberty until the U. S. supreme court had decided the issues.

Attorney Barnes filed a demurrer to the complaint as set forth by the United States government in their attempt to deport Fishbone, and his demurrer was sustained by Judge Hitt of the supreme court of the District of Columbus, who sustained the contentions of the immigrant as set up by Attorney Barnes. Judge Hitt will sign the writ of prohibition which will forbid the government from deporting the emigrant and allowing Fishbone to remain. The department of labor has notified Attorney Barnes that they will not appeal from the judge's decision, so it is thought that the matter is closed.

Some of Attorney Barne's contentions were:

"The plaintiff owned a one-sixth interest in his father's undivided estate, which is worth some $20,000, of which there is a home and about 100 acres of land, on which he now lives with his brothers and sisters which is worth $7,000. Since this action was instituted the plaintiff has secured a better position and is now earning $20 a week as a blacksmith and he lives with his brothers and sisters.

NORWICH ESCAPED FURY OF ELECTRICAL STORM

The series of electrical storms, all accompanied by high winds caused havoc in the country towns surrounding Norwich according to reports that reached this city during the evening. Large hail stones fell at various places during the storms, beating farm produce to the ground and cutting them to shreds.

Thousands of people caught at nearby beaches by the suddeness of the arrival of the storm sought shelter where ever it could be obtained and many more endeavored to make home before the storm broke in all its fury. Evidently this haste on the part of the drivers resulted in numerous accidents for reports of cars being wrecked kept drifting into the city throughout the evening, the larger part of them however, consisting solely of damage to cars, the occupants escaping without injury.

In Norwich the storm was not as severe as it was in outlying towns for the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company reported practically no trouble locally, but that many phones were out of order in Preston City, Taftville, East Great Plain and other outside places.

The City of Norwich Gas & Electrical department had trouble during the evening when lines were broken down by falling trees and branches. One report from Oak street, near the cemetery, informed them that a large branch had struck wires and blown out a transformer fuse, while a second break occurred at the Falls on Yantic street. At this place a cherry tree had blown over and carried down wires. In the city there was practically no damage.

The Connecticut company had no trouble on this division, all trolleys making their usual trips on time, the rainfall not being heavy enough to cause trouble on the iron. At South Coventry lightning struck the trolley as it was leaving the South Coventry end of the line, burning out both controllers on the car. Another car was secured and Motorman J. J. Younns continued the trip, the wrecked car being taken to the barn for repairs.

The local police are looking for the driver of a Massachusetts automobile which knocked down and quite badly injured Eugene Rondeau, ten, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rondeau of No. 297 West Thames street, Saturday afternoon. The accident happened near the city line in Thamesville and the driver of the car is said to have left the injured boy in the street. The child's injuries were attended by Dr. Boris J. Sohn.

The registration number of the Massachusetts car was reported as 149,159. The local police want the driver on a charge of evading responsibility.

SATURDAY NIGHT BREAK AT W. TOWN ST. GARAGE

Sometime Saturday night entrance was forced to the West Town street garage and a $15 automobile ohrn was stolen. As far as known the horn compelled the booty taken by the burglars. A report of the break was made to the authorities. A window at the right of the garage door was broken by the burglers.

Theodore Goodrum of Vallejo, Cal., is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Morgan, on Saturday.

Upon arrival at the beach, sports and games of all kinds, and bathing were enjoyed. The return to town was made about 7.30. The committee in charge of the affair were Allan Bogle, Miss Elsie Heap and Miss Flossie M. Meyer and they were assisted by George W. Weller, Jr. Tickets were sold by Lester Pingree and James Heap.

Alfred Masse of North A street is to leave this week for a vacation trip to Quebec, Canada. He expects to be gone several weeks.

POETRY

The One Note of Heaven.

In Nature all is harmony—
Here reigneth order and law.
Sublimely moving to an end.
Without a pause or a flaw.
Beauty attends her perfect work.
Offends she never the eye.
But blends her colors wondrously
In water and earth and sky.

The tender green of the new-born leaf
'Gainst the weather-beaten pine,
Reflected in the deep river's blue
Doth the vault of heaven shine.
A-down the meadows the cowslip blooms
By the musical rivulet
And dotting fields is the buttercup
With the sweet-faced violet.
The sunset cloud in its glory sprays
The sky with soft rose and gold—
Oh, souls are so dull that do not feel
That the half has not been told.

Ah, and it is, and strange to see,
That of all God's mighty plan,
The one thing out of harmony
Is the wayward will of man.
—Gertrude B. Walker.

Epicedium

Like to the leaf that falls,
Like to the rose that fades,
Thou art—and still art not!
We whom this thought enthralls,
We whom this mystery shades,
Are bared before our lot!

Like to the light gone out,
Like to the sun gone down,
Thou art—and yet we feel
That something more than doubt,
And more than Nature's frown,
The Great Good must reveal.

'Tis not with thankless heart,
Nor yet with covert hand,
We reach from depths to thee.
We take our grief apart,
And with it bravely stand
Beside the voiceless sea!

O, gentle memory mine—
I fill the world with thee,
And with thy blessing sleep!
But for thy love divine
To warm the day for me,
Why should I wake or weep?
—Horace Traubel.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Two outstanding feature attractions are at the Broadway theater the first half of this week.

It takes Harold Lloyd to make people laugh and in Girl Shy one can see his greatest picture which just teems with laughs and thrills. Those who saw it yesterday for the first time unconsciously shivered with suspense as they shook with laughter.

What is termed one of the most extraordinary film dramas of the day is playing at the Broadway this week as the second feature attraction and is exciting numerous discussions as to the problem it presents.

The Miracle of Life is the title of this screen masterpiece, the theme of which is motherhood. The central figure of the drama is a young wife around whom rages the conflict of motherhood instinct and the eternal desire for freedom.

Mae Busch is said to do some of the best acting of her career in this difficult role, supported by Percy Marmont and Nita Naldi.

A new Kinogram tops off a real picture program, which we advise you not to miss.

Breed Theater

Logical story development and strikingly life-like characterizations make First National's What Fools Men, the new Breed theater offering, a play easy to follow. It is an adaptation from Henry Kitchell Webster's novel, Joseph Greer and His Daughter.

The story deals with the ambition of an inventor, long out of touch with the civilized world, to pit his intellect against the brains of the coterie of stock market operators who back him in marketing a device which promises to revolutionize the manufacture of linen.

Lewis Stone is, as always, convincing in the role of Greer; Shirley Mason is the daughter; Barbara Bedford the business adviser and family friend. Other important roles are taken by Ethel Grey Terry, David Torrence and John Patrick. There are

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP)—Improvement in business and agricultural conditions last week provided a firm foundation for the upward movement of stock prices, which made good headway despite occasional technical setbacks and several adverse news developments.

Outstanding features of the week were the attainment of new high records by United States Steel and General Motors, the two recognized leaders and the establishment of the railroad price averages at the highest level since 1911. The carrier stocks later were depressed by the failure of eastern roads to obtain the long-sought increase in freight rates, but the Van Sweringen issues continued to reflect progress on the revised market plate merger plan.

Aside from the recessions attributed to profit taking, exceptional weakness was shown by International Mercantile Marine preferred stock due to the unexpected breaking off of negotiations for the sale of the White Star Line to British interests.

The most significant change in the commodity markets was the advance of 7 to 8 3-4 cents a bushel in wheat futures, based on the lowered Canadian crop estimate. With prospects favoring a large domestic yield, the higher prices were especially welcome to farmers. Crop uncertainties lifted cotton prices about $2.50 a bale during the week.

French and Belgian francs both touched record low levels last week, but the Belgian exchange subsequently recovered in response to the establishment of a financial dictatorship.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES
His Little Bat and Ball

There lay his little bat and ball,
In dust and dirt, it made me sad;
And there his ragged, long-legged pants,
The very first he ever had.
How proud he was, long, long ago,
An athlete in his budding mind,
Suspenders and the long-legged pants,
Made him the proudest of mankind!
But how the years have fled away,
His family has ceased to be
His parents, brothers, sister gone,
And he, the kid who played with me!
These clothes and playthings laid aside
Were fondled by his mother's hands;
S' e loved them as she loved her boy
Now dust to dust—Who understands?
O what a flood of thoughts arise
As I behold these dusty things!
Unbidden tears flow from my eyes
While clear the bell of memory rings
I greet again my boyhood chum
As vividly he seems to me
To work and play and laugh and cry
As yesterday in childish glee!
Yes! He is gone, while I remain,
A little lonesome, I admit;
What if a tear does blind my eye?
Thank God, I'm not ashamed of it!
Bat, ball and ragged pants arouse
Sweet memories that say to me,
These dusty things long left behind
He swapped for immortality!"
To dust and dirt they all return,
As will this temple made of clay.
Why cannot a dirge when just ahead
Are joys that never pass away?
—By Rev. William Wood.

Gran'pa's Schooldays

When gran'pa was a little kid
He loved his teacher dearly.
He always did as he was bid
Or, that is, very nearly.

Somehow she always had a way
That comforted and cheered him.
He took her pories every day,
And licked the boys who jeered him.

Of some dear love in every class
His heart made shy confession.
Right cheerily he loved a lass,
He loved 'em in succession.
In mischief in his hours of ease
While playing with his buddies
In school he always tried to please
And mastered all his studies.

Ay, speedily he made advance
With teachers wise and witty.
It is a curious circumstance
That all of them were pretty
At least (he says) they knew the way
To keep affection active
They wore some new thing every day
And kept themselves attractive.

And gran'pa says his massive brain
Keeps all his foes distressful.
If all his teachers had been plain
He'd ne'er have been successful.
For he's a millionaire forsooth
And thousands do his bidding.
Perhaps he tells the simple truth
And maybe he is kidding.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Members of the Wide Awake circle are evidently enjoying themselves this summer, and, at the same time, are remembering Uncle Jed who sits back here in Norwich waiting to hear from his little friends and learn about their good t[illegible]

You Wide Awakes probably enjoy reading the stories written by other members of the circle but you must remember that they in turn would like to hear from you.

Often times we read stories in papers and magazines, delightful stories that have been written by someone who has been away, who has been out of the beaten paths, and who is thus able to write about something which interests those of us who are left behind, unable to go to see the things written about. This affords the stay-at-homes interesting reading and no little enjoyment.

Perhaps some of you Wide Awakes have been away to some far off place, or you may be going there this summer. Certainly your accounts of the trips and the fun you have while away will be interesting to other members who have remained at home.

It has been said that there is no pleasure like a pleasure shared with others. Surely you may share your pleasure with Wide Awakes by telling of your travels and adventures.

This will work as a double benefit for it will give enjoyment to others and the important points of your vacation trip will become fixed in your memory. Writing or something seen and enjoyed gives one an opportunity of sharing a pleasure with others, and, through the Wide Awake circle, you have that pleasure of sharing your pleasure with many nice Wide Awake companions.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

The Great Ball

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I enjoy reading the page for the Wide Awakes. This is how my story begins.

All the birds were seen preparing to go to a great ball at which all the birds of the air were to attend. That morning I saw Mrs. Red Winged dressed in a most gorgeous black satin gown trimmed with a red and yellow sash. She was ready to start and I saw her tripping over the green rugs and bidding farewell to her young ones. On her way she met Mrs. Lark dressed in a robe of brown and yellow crepe. Around Mrs. Lark's neck was a pair of black jet beads. To protect her breast she wore a yellow silk scarf. Red Winged and Mrs. Lark went to the ball as partners. At this great ball a prize was to be given to the best dressed man or woman. Mrs. Red Winged was hiding in a corner. The hostess of the ball saw a scarlet sash and Mrs. Red Winged was called to the front and everybody at once cried, "Mrs. Red Winged wins the prize."

I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story as much as I have enjoyed theirs.

ALINE MORIN, Age 12.
Norwich.

Our Club Picnic

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about our club picnic. In Occum school we have a club called the Waywaeino club. The grades who can join our club are the fifth, sixth and seventh. The club is only two years old but a very good one. For dues we pay ten cents a month. With the money from the dues we had a picnic. We went to Mohegan park for a whole afternoon. While there we went boating.

The girls enjoyed the first trip and the boys the second. We had three rides to play on in the truck while the others were singing.

When we got there a girl took our pictures. The boys had a base ball game with some other boys from Norwich. Our boys won the game. The score was 6-4 in favor of Occum. When we were there about three hours we had soda and ice cream. We came home at six o'clock. We were sorry we couldn't stay till dark but anyway we were glad we had a good time.

A Trip to New York

Dear Uncle Jed: I was in New York a year ago July 4th and had planned to go again this year. Instead I went to a wedding for my father was asked to drive the young couple on their honeymoon. Our car was beautifully decorated. When my father got back he took all the little children for a ride. We all felt proud riding after the bride for everyone stood watching us go by. I wish all the Wide Awakes could have seen our car.

The colors of the decorations were orange, red, green, blue, purple, yellow, pink, white and a big sign, Just Married. There was an orchestra playing all day.

IRENE CHARBONNEAU, Age 10.
Norwich.

A Generous Man

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you and I am going to tell you about my generous man. A number of French masons ware building a house. The scafolding on which three were standing gave way and every man fell and were killed except two who had caught hold of a post while falling. They hung there until they heard a cracking noise and knew they would have to die. The generous man said, "You belong to a large family and have children to support." While saying these kind words he let go and was killed. That is what I call a generous man. I hope you and the Wide Awakes enjoy my letter.

ALMA MORIN, Age 11.
Norwich.

Visiting My Aunt

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about visiting my aunt, the Fourth of July. A little girl came to visit her also. We played many games. Some of them were Touch the Old Man's Finger and baseball. I like to go visiting my aunt because I have a good time.

MARY LEMOINE, Age 12.
Baltic, Conn.

A Lost Treasure

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a beautiful, sunny day last summer when my friend and I planned to go in swimming in a lake near by home.

Mother gave the permission to go, on the condition that I would take off my pearls so I would not lose them. This I promised to do, but not doing it immediately I soon forgot and we started on our way. When we arrived at our destination my friend and I put on our bathing suits and got ready for a good time.

After two hours of swimming my friend stepped on a sharp stone and in order to keep her balance grasped me around the neck, and in doing so, broke my string of pearls and one by one they fell into the water, never to be seen again.

It was very hard to keep my temper against my friend for breaking my pearls, but then I thought—if I obeyed my mother it would never have happened. I knew it was my fault so I calmed down and we started for home.

When we were at home I went straight to my mother and told her about my pearls, fear clutching at my heart. She was very angry, but glad that I came and told her the truth. I shall always obey mother hereafter.

ERNA L. SEIFERT, Age 14.
Norwich.

My Trip to Rocky Point

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about my trip to Rocky Point.

When I went to Rocky Point I had a good time. We went on the hobby-horses and other things. We were watching the snap-the-whip when I looked around and saw that my mother was gone. Then I began looking for her but I could not find her. Pretty soon I found her. My mother thought I was with my sister and my sister thought I was with my mother. After that I stayed with them. About six o'clock we came home.

UNSIGNED.

Dated, Plainfield.
(Names must be signed to articles.—Uncle Jed.)

Bessie

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to the Wide Awakes. I am going to tell you about my cow. Her name is Bessie. She is black and white. She is seven years old. She gives me 15 quarts of milk. My sister Mildred and I go after the cow and my sister Yvonne goes after the horse. When it is time to milk her she will moo to come in. I like her very much. I hope you will enjoy reading my story.

ROGER L. MORRISSETTE, Age 7.
Jewett City.

The Spelling Contest

Dear Uncle Jed: The Rural Spelling contest was held at the capitol in Hartford, on June 8, 1926. As I was the winner in Windham county, I had to go. I went with a few friends of mine. There were 12 of us in the contest.

It was rather easy at first but after three or four had misspelled and had taken their seats, the words began getting a little harder. I kept on spelling just the same until I failed on the word, chrysallis, which forced me to take second place. For the prize I got a sterling silver medal. The gold medal was awarded to Jennie Bayk of Burlington.

HELEN MAYO, Age 15.
Pomfret.

The Statue of Justice

Dear Uncle Jed: In one of the public squares of an ancient city there was erected a large statue which was called the Statue of Justice. The base of this statue was made of white marble and the statue itself was that of a woman and was made of bronze. She held in her right hand a sword, which when the sun shone, glistened so that it would hurt ones eyes to gaze upon it. In her left hand she held a scale, which meant that everyone should be treated fairly.

It so happened that one day the wife of a nobleman missed her necklace of pearls. The woman called all her servants to her and questioned them. One, who was a poor orphan girl, was accused. The girl not having enough money to receive a fair trial was condemned to die on the scaffold, which was placed before the Statue of Justice.

After the execution the skies darkened the thunder roared, the lightning flashed and the rain came down in torrents. Suddenly, in the midst of the storm the scale of the statue was cut from the hand by the lightning. Then, when the skies cleared and the people came out of their houses, and saw what had happened, they picked up the scale and found the pearl necklace interwoven in a nest that had been made by a bird.

CHIEF STANTON CAUGHT IN SPRINGFIELD STORM

GREENPORT FIREMEN HIGHLY PLEASED WITH RECEPTION ACCORDED THEM HERE

Eagle Hose company, a volunteer fire company of Greenport, L. I., came to Norwich Sunday and during their three hour stay in this city were guests of the Norwich fire department. The Greenport firemen, 34 strong, made the trip across Long Island sound and up the Thames river by special steamer, which was gaily decorated. The firemen's band, connected with the hose company, provided a concert programme throughout the trip.

The visiting firemen docked at the local wharf about noon time and were met by Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft who welcomed them in behalf of Mayor Milo R. Waters and Chief Howard L. Stanton, both of whom were unable to meet the firemen in person as they were out of the city keeping previously made appointments.

Deputy Chief Taft escorted the visitors around the city and guided them to the Elks home which they were particularly anxious to view. They were also shown about the central fire station and while at the station, the band entertained the Norwich firemen with a concert programme.

The trip down the Thames and back across the sound was made during the late afternoon, the boat leaving Norwich at 3 o'clock. The visitors expressed themselves as highly pleased with the reception accorded them in Norwich. This was their annual outing. Some years ago the Greenport firemen responded to a call to extinguish a fire which threatened the boat on which they make their annual excursions. In appreciation of the work of the firemen in saving the boat the owner accords them the free use of the steamer one day each summer for their outing.

The firemen enjoyed box lunches on board the boat.

YOUTHFUL BURGLAR SENT TO STATE REFORM SCHOOL

A youthful "Jesse James" who had his den in a shack on a back road off the property of the Norwich Golf club, and who was charged with making numerous breaks in this city during recent weeks, was before the juvenile court Saturday morning and was sentenced to the Connecticut school for boys, at Meriden, by Judge Arthur F. Libby. The boy, aged 14, admitted the thefts, most of which were on the West Side.

Following the arrest of the boy he gave information which led to the arrest of three employes of the Max Gordon & Son Corp., on charges of theft of metal, but the cases were discharged against the employes when the state failed to prove its charges.

CONN. MOTOR EXHIBIT AT SESQUI-CENTENNIAL

The evolution of vehicles and highways in Connecticut in the past century and a half since the Declaration of Independence is illustrated in clay models in the Connecticut state motor vehicle department exhibit in the Connecticut building at the Sesqui-Centennial exposition at Philadelphia.

A booth 9 feet long, 6 feet high and 6 feet deep is devoted to the motor vehicle department exhibit. The entire table area is used for the clay models illustrating, in four sections, the development of modes of highway transportation. In the first section is shown a one-horse shay on a mud road of 1776. The second shows the first motor vehicle meeting a frightened horse more than a century later on about the same type of road. The third shows two average cars on a later road and the last shows many modern cars on the latest type concrete road of today, with gasoline stations and other roadside features.

The growth of traffic problems in Connecticut is illustrated by a chart on the wall to the left of the visitor facing the booth. Here it is shown that the number of motor vehicles registered by the state of Connecticut has increased from 1,300 in 1903, when the registration law went into effect, to 266,000 in 1925, and the accidents have increased from a total of 1,987 reported in 1918 to 22,000 reported in 1925. The first registration certificate, issued to Judge James P. Woodruff of Litchfield in 1903, the first motor vehicle law and pictures of the first few cars registered in Connecticut are reproduced below the chart. The first registration marker of heavy leather bearing nickel plated numerals is shown. The car was a "two-seater" with the front and rear seats arranged back to back so that two passengers faced forward and two backward. It was steered by a handle bar instead of the conventional steering wheel of today.

There are four panels on the back wall of the booth, labeled 1776, 1903, 1917 and 1926. The 1776 panel is blank, as there were, of course, no motor vehicles in those days. The year 1903, it is shown, was marked by the first motor vehicle registration; 1917 by the establishment of the Connecticut State Motor Vehicle department, and registration records of that year are reproduced, and 1926 by the demand for public safety efforts, and safety records that have been published are reproduced. In each of the last three panels is a Connecticut registration marker of the year represented, the colors of which add life to the exhibit.

On the third wall, to the right of the visitor facing the booth is a large framed map of Connecticut in which different colored pins have been fixed to represent accident areas, similar to maps used in the department at Hartford to show, at a glance, the relative dangers of street and highway locations of Connecticut.

ST. PATRICK'S SCOUTS T CAMP AT BEACH POND

The principle inculcated by the Roman Catholic church that "there is no vacation for the soul" is evidently being put into practice in St. Patrick's parish in a practical way, for summer absences appear to make little difference either with the size of the Sunday congregations or with the total of confessions at every week end. The four Sunday masses are on summer schedule—at the usual hours, 7:30 8:15, 9 an 10:30—but sermons, except the briefest instruction, are omitted there being the offering of the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, announcements reading of the day's gospel—which on Sunday, the eighth after Pentecost—was Luke 16, 1-9, the parable of the Unjust Steward—and the usual concluding prayers. Both choirs are having vacation till September.

At the 7.30 mass, read by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, it was announced that the parish Boy Scouts are to go into annual camp July 25th the camp site this year to be Tippecan, at Beach Pond. The boys are enrolling with John P. Corcoran, before Wednesday of this week.

At this mass, in giving holy communion Monsignor May was assisted by Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who returned Saturday after two weeks' vacation. The junior assistant pastor, Rev. John J. Reilly, left Sunday for his mother's home in New Haven, for his vacation of a fortnight.

Among those receiving communion at the first mass Sunday were members of the Rosary society. The Holy Name society will receive communion in a body next Sunday, at 7.30.

CRITICISM OF ATTITUDE OF U. S. ON INTER-ALLIED DEBTS

Debate in the House of Compons Brought Forth Assertion That the American Treatment of the Debts Was on Solely a Commercial Basis—Chancellor Churchill Challenges Statement Made by Secretary Mellon About American Loans to England.

LONDON, July 19—(AP)—The debate in the house of commons today on the Franco-British debt settlement opened the gates to strong criticism of the attitude of the United States with respect to inter-allied debts—to much talk about equality and sacrifice and to strictures upon the American treatment of debts on solely a commercial basis.

The settlement which Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, made with M. Caillaux, the French finance minister, received strong censure especially from Philip Snowden, who declared Mr. Churchill was a very poor hand at striking a bargain and had to trumple up every time he came into contact with representatives of European debtor countries.

No action was taken by the house on the settlement, but the debate was the most frank treatment this question has had in parliament. The most important speech from an American viewpoint was that of Mr. Churchill in winding up the debate, in which he replied to Secretary Mellon's latest statements about the debts.

Another striking contribution was a speech by the Rt. Hon. Edward Hilton Young a leading liberal, who recently joined the conservative party mentioned as a possible successor to the present speaker of the house, whose retirement is looked on as not far distant.

Chancellor Churchill, alluding to Secretary Mellon's statement, said he did not desire to indulge in recriminations with the people or newspapers of the United States over agreements Great Britain had made, but he must refer to Secretary Mellon's words published in this morning's papers, because it would be a great pity if misunderstandings should arise.

The American secretary of the treasury was reported to have said that England borrowed a large proportion of her debt for purely commercial, as distinct fro mwar purposes, to meet commercial obligations maturing in America, to furnish India with silver, to buy food to resell to the civilian population in order to maintain exchange. Americans loaths to England, according to Secretary Mellon, were not so much to provide war supplies as to furnish backing for home and foreign needs and to save England from borrowing from her own people.

This declared Mr. Churchill, was a real and complete misapprehension of the facts of the case. So serious was this misapprehension, that it made him almost doubt the authenticity of the words Mr. Mellon was quoted as using.

What were the facts? the chancellor asked. They were dealing only with the period when the United States entered the war, Great Britain, like all the other allies, spent vast sums inthe United States on food, as well as on shot and shell. But all the loans of the United States to the allies were, by act of congress, specifically limited to the purpose of prosecuting the war, and the United States treasury required and obtained full justification for every cent that was loaned.

"Every cent," continued the chancellor, "was spent under the supervision of the United States treasury in what was, according to their view, not ours, the furtherance and prosecution of the war, and every cent was spent in the United States and between 1917 and the end of the war. That is, during the period of American intervention the $7,000,000,000 was spent by Great Britain in the United States.

"Of that $7,000,000,000, we borrowed $4,000,000,000, and provided in addition $3 000,000,000 from our own independent resources. Out of the $4,000,000,000 we borrowed we spent over $1,500,000,000 on munitions and over $2,500,000,000 on cereals and other essential foodstuffs.

"Thus on those two items alone, munitions and foodstuffs for the armies and population, we spent a sum which equalized the whole sum we borrowed from the United States.

"Regarding commercial maturities, Secretary Mellon must either have been misreported or misled. We spent on commercial maturities during the same period only $354,000,000, out of the $7,-280,000,000 we borrowed, or rather less than one-twentieth of the total dollar expenditure for which we were responsible.

"As for the silver loan for India, that, as everyone knows, was treated quite separately from the war debt and fully reraid by this country in 1925.

"There has been a great deal of resentment and ill feeling regarding this debt, and it is very important that this resentment shall not be increased by any misunderstanding of the actual facts of the situation."

Mr. Churchill's remarks were punctuated by ministerial cheers. The remainder of his speech was in justification of his settlement with M. Caillaux against the criticism of Philip Snowden and others.

SEEKING SLAYER OF CANTON NEWSPAPER PUBLISHER

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 19.—(AP)—Governor Vic Donahey today added additional strength, to the official forces trying to find the slayer of Don R. Mellett, Canton newspaper publisher.

Although he had not received a petition of Canton church people asking him to make a separate, independent investigation of alleged vicious conditions in Canton, the governor announced he had instructed Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson and B. W. McDonald, state prohibition director, respectively, to detail operatives to Canton.

General Henderson, according to the governor, will send a member or members of the intelligence section of the Ohio national guard; state prohibition inspectors also will go to Canton.

Identity of none of the state operatives will be revealed, as officials feel their usefulness would be destroyed if they were known.

It was made plain by the chief executive that he has no power under state laws to conduct an investigation of his own, by calling in witnesses and making arrests. The only agencies at his disposal are the guard and the prohibition department.

PARTY WENT SWIMMING WHERE JONAH LANDED

SAIDA, Syria, July 19.—(AP)—Swimming near the place where Jonah is supposed to have landed after his adventure with the whale is frowned upon by Dwellers in the vicinity.

Only recently a party of Americans driving from Beirut to Saida found a particularly inviting stretch of sand on the Mediterranean near Saida.

"Let's have a swim here," proposed one of the party.

The Syrian guide looked horrified.

"No swimming is allowed here," he said. "This is Nebi Yunis," he added as an explanation, finally.

"What of it?"

"This is the spot where Jonah landed."

"We are not afraid of whales," came back the chorus and peeling off, the party went in. The water was fine.

AMERICAN TOURISTS ARE RETURNING FROM FRANCE

PARIS, July 19.—(AP)—The homeward flight of American tourists is starting early this year, with steamers sailing this week, booked to capacity. This is three weeks earlier than usual since the big rush rarely starts before the second week in August.

Whether American tourists, with the low rate of exchange, spent their money faster tha they had dreamed possible is a question, but bookings for the next two weeks are heavier than ever and there is a waiting list on all steamers sailing in August and September.

STATES ITALIAN DID NOT ACT AS NAVIGATOR

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—Lincoln Ellsworth, co-leader with Roald Amundsen in the Norge's flight over the north pole, denied in a statement today that General Umberto Nobile, Italian designer of the ship, acted as navigator on the polar expedition.

General Nobile, who has been the center of a number of public celebrations in this country recently played an important part in the expedition, Mr. Ellsworth said, adding "but the truth is the truth, and the credit should be given where it is due."

Mr. Ellsworth explained that General Nobile was captain of the Norge on the flight and as such was respected by the crew and officers, but he was not responsible for directing the vessel's course.

"In fact," Mr. Ellsworth said, "I doubt if he understands navigation."

INVESTIGATING MURDER BY REV. J. FRANK NORRIS

FORT WORTH, July 19. — (AP) — Grand jury investigation of the slaying here last Saturday of D. E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman, by the Rev. J. Frank Norris, Baptist minister and fundamentalist leader, will get under way tomorrow.

Dr. Norris remained silent tonight. He made a blanket denial of interviews and statements attributed to him by several news services. "I have made no statement since that to the district attorney and I have none to make," he said.

"UNDER COVER" MAN APPEARS IN DWYER LIQUOR TRIAL

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—The figure of A. Bruce Bielaski, prohibition "under cover" man, which has stalked like a phantom through the proceedings of the Dwyer liquor trial, suddenly materialized today.

Throughout the trial of William V. Dwyer and nine others indicted in connection with an alleged $40,000,000 rum syndicate, defense counsel have played on the mysterious Bielaski. "This man Bielaski" they called him. He has been pictured as a silent, almost a sinister, figure, directing from behind a screen of official secrecy the government's war on liquor.

It has been told how, in the rounding up of the members of the alleged Dwyer liquor ring, Bielaski's office was the center of activity for government agents and informers.

ISBELL FREED ON CHARGE OF RECKLESS DRIVING

NEW HAVEN, July 19.—Judge Milton C. Isbell of Ansonia was discharged today when arraigned in city court today on charges of reckless driving and failure to grant right of way. Fred W. Henninger of New Haven whose car was in collision with one operated by Judge Isbell at Norton and Goffe streets yesterday was fined $25 for reckless driving.

First police report of the accident which resulted in slight injuries to the judge's wife and his father-in-law said the Henninger machine had reached the center of the intersection of the two streets when it was struck with terrific impact by the Ansonian's car. Today it was shown that the Isbell car had been struck by the other.

CABLED PARAGAPHS

LONDON, July 19.—(AP)—The most reactionary men in the house of commons are those who seem to have the greatest knowledge about learning, Lady Astor told the Devon Association of Teachers in a speech today at Mamhead, near Exeter.

VIENNA, Austria, July 19.—(AP)—Reports from Cettinje, Jugoslavia, say the floods in that region have destroyed several villages with the loss of 60 lives. The latest dispatches from Belgrade place the flooded areas in Jugoslavia at 400,000 acres, several more dams having given way under pressure of the waters.

ATHENS, July 19—The post of hotel call boy at Naxos, the Eegean Island retreat of several former Greek premiers, is no place for a lisper. Among the involutary guests are M. Michalakopoulos, M. Papanastasian and M. Kafanaris. However, Gen. Paraskevopoulos has declined to attempt formation of a government.

LONDON, July 19.—(AP)—The British exchequer has mislaid $25,000,000 in gold metal somewhere. Chancellor Churchill told commons he "believed" it was in the vaults of the U. S. federal reserve system, but he wasn't sure; it might be somewhere else. The gold was transferred from France during the war to protect British advances.

BIG RECEPTION IS ACCORDED DELANEY BY THE HOME FOLKS

BRIDGEPORT, July 19. — (AP) — Likened by George E. Crawford, president of the chamber of commerce, to the return of Julius Caesar to Rome after a successful campaign in Gaul and said by police to have been the greatest demonstration since the signing of the armistice, the welcoming celebration in honor of Jack Delaney, world's light-heavyweight champion tonight was participated in by thousands.

A triumphant parade with the champion the cynosure of an army of staring eyes and smiling countenances testimonial exercises of brief duration in Seaside Park; cheer after cheer and spoken words of unstinted praise, all culminating in an elaborate fireworks display which had for its final a giant drawing of the now celebrated boxer; this was the manner in which Bridgeport showed its recognition of the attainments of Jack Delaney in his chosen field.

It was estimated by police that 15,000 people crowded arounds the bandstand in the park for the brief speeches and the presentation of a $450 watch, specially made, that cars choking the roadways numbered 2,000 and that about 20,000 people viewed the fireworks exhibition.

HARTFORD, July 19.—(AP)—Savings bank deposits in Connecticut increased $4,498,968.29 in the past quarter. It was shown by a statement of the condition of such banks at the close of business June 30 which was made public today by Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne.

The aggregate amount on deposit in all the savings banks in the state on that date was $282,188,418.48, as against $277,694,449.59 on deposit March 31, 1926 and $256,293,907.19 on deposit June 30, 1925. The deposits increased $26,794,506.29 in the year from that date.

It was an extraordinarily good second quarter, its increase over the first quarter of this year being approximately 30 per cent. greater than the increase of the second quarter of 1925 over the first quarter of that year.

MUST STRENGTHEN ROADS FOR TOURISTS IN VERMONT

ST. ALBANS, Vt., July 19 (AP)—The necessity for Vermont roads that can withstand the wear and tear they are subjected to by tourist to Canada alone is seen by Collector of Customs Harry C. Whitehill here in announcing today that 487,900 motor cars carrying 1,870,906 passengers were checked through the second customs district during the fiscal year ending June 30.

Of the number listed by Mr. Whitehill, 263,539 cars were listed as arriving from Canada, while the cars departing for the Dominion numbered 244,361. The difference in numbers might be due, Mr. Whitehill said, to the fact Canadian tourists arriving in the states were so "disappointed with our Vermont roads that they preferred to return by some other route."

YOUNG VANDERBILT HAS "SPLIT" WITH HIS FAMILY

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., has definitely "split" with his family, he disclosed today.

Although his father disapproves a newspaper career for him, he hopes to resume his newspaper operations shortly through a new scheme for earning a living, he said, upon his return from Europe.

"Yes, I've split with my family," he told fellow-reporters. "I split with them two years ago. My people promised me a lot of support of my newspapers but they didn't come through with it."

Mr. Vanderbilt, member of a famous New York family, recently became involved in financial difficulties with his ahibs in Miami, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

In Europe, he said, he had interviewed Pilsudski, Mussolini, Lloyd George, Briand, Caillaux and the former German kaiser. He hopes to syndicate these interviews to rebuild his shattered fortune. He was optimistic that some adjustment will be made which will place my papers where I want them to be."

"My father has old-fashioned ideas," he said, "and one of them is that the newspaper business is not one for me to be in. I'm returning to Los Angeles today. I don't expect to see either my father or my mother while I'm here."

Asked about reports that he and his wife, the former Rachel Littleton, are separated and contemplated court action, Mr. Vanderbilt replied, "I was reporter and I get stories and expect my men to get them. When it's the other way around, I shouldn't flinch, but I can't discuss a domestic matter like that."

PRESIDENT OCCUPIED BY GOVERNMENT BUSINESS

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., July 19.—(AP)—For the first time since his arrival in the Adirondacks nearly two weeks ago, President Coolidge had opportunity tonight to take up administration questions directly with a close official adviser when Secretary Dwight Davis of the war department arrived for a visit at the summer white house.

Mr. Davis is to be followed tomorrow by Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, one of the administration group in the senate and in the recent session of congress, a prominent campaign of its views on farm relief legislation.

While indications had been that Mr. Coolidge would leave for Plymouth, Vt., early this week, the visit of Senator Fess makes impossible a departure before Wednesday or later. Plans in this regard, it was intimated, might be more definitely known tomorrow.

With the government business occupying his attention most of the day, Mr. Coolidge spent his leisure hours quietly about the camp, in the early morning going for a few minutes only to the foot bridge in Lake Osgood to look over rods and lines and try casting.

Under an escort of state troopers Secretary Davis arrived by automobile at 6 o'clock and went to the camp without stopping. The marine detachment guarding the summer white house was drawn up at attention to give him full honors as he entered the camp gate.

70 YEAR OLD MESSENGER KILLED IN $13,250 HOLD-UP

NEWARK, N. J., July 19.—(AP)—A 70 year old messenger was killed, his youthful assistant wounded, and $13,-250 in cash and checks, the week end receipts of the Reid Ice Cream company was stolen by four robbers who today held up the pair as they were about to leave the plant.

The dead man was George M. Condit, of East Orange. He was armed, but received a bullet through the stomach before he could use his revolver. Joseph Duff, aged 18, of Orange, the wounded youth, was shot in the thigh.

Riding in a powerful machine which was driven by a liveried chauffeur, the bandits drew alongside the messengers' automobile shortly after 10 o'clock as they were starting to the bank.

Condit was shot down without a word as he turned with an exclamation of surprise toward one of the robbers, who, gun in hand, leaped from his machine. His body fell out of the machine to the street and the gunmas fired twice at Duff, only one bullet taking effect.

The aged man's body fell in the path of the robbers' car and several moments were lost in maneuvering it clear and getting under way.

Police commandeered automobiles and motorcycle policemen chased the bandit car in vain.

CHRISTIAN BURIAL IN NEW YORK CHINATOWN

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—The narrow streets of Chinatown witnessed the unusual sight today of a Chinese borne to a Christian burial at the head of a reverent procession of some 1,200 of his country men.

Sam Wing, on Leong gunman who was electrocuted last Thursday for the murder of another Chinese in a Tong war, embraced the Catholic faith a few moments before being led to the death chamber. And so today the body was carried in a coffin to the Catholic church of the transfiguration at Mott and Bayard streets. But Wing's countrymen still honored him, despite his conversation to a foreign faith, and his procession was one of the longest in Chinatown's history.

Three bands, one of them Chinese, took part in the procession, the eerie strains of the dragon country mingling incongrously with the measured harmony of chopin.

Modesty Inherent in Jeremiah Smith, Jr.

Characteristic Explanation Made by the Restorer of Fallen Currency of Hungary

BOSTON, July 19.—(AP)—Mister Jeremiah Smith, Jr., whose title the past two years while restoring the fallen currency of Hungary literally transacted was "high infallible one" sat back in his chair in his old Boston office this evening, modestly perturbed at the "exaggerated accounts" of his success abroad. He attempted to explain how he came to be known as "the man who refused $100,-000."

"As a matter of fact," he said, "I don't know exactly how much I did refuse and actually the refusal came two years ago. The league of nations from which came the appointment of commissioner general, and the Hungarian government, had agreed of $5,-000 a month to cover all the costs and I was there a little over two years. I stipulated at the start that I would take no salary, for when you are going to work blue-penciling other people's salaries you can't very well take a big one yourself. I suppose what I might have taken was about $25,000.

"I did accept my living expenses. That wasn't much, for the government provided my quarters. When this and the cost of maintaining my staff was deducted there might have remained $60,000. According to the European way of doing things they sent a messenger to my first assistant, Mr. Royal Tyler, who also comes from Boston, and suggested to him that he suggest to me that I take the $60,000 or whatever it was. In fact they suggested it twice. I had told them I wasn't going to take anything and I honestly believed it helped my work.

"Then they asked me what they should do with it and I told them it was their money, the first they had to spend, so they might as well do as they liked. They asked if there was any objection to using it as a scholarship fund to send students to the United States. I said there was not, so they did.

"I don't know how the $100,000 story started. The first I knew of it was in London when I bought an American paper. I was caught in a traffic jam so opened it and found myself all over the front page. I was somewhat embarrassed then and even more when I landed from the Laconia here today and found an accumulation of letters from everywhere praising me, condemning me and asking for a piece of the $100,000. I don't believe there was that much money and anyway I never saw a check for it.

"I had a great time over there. I am glad to get back and join the army of unemployed but of course I wouldn't have left if the work wasn't all done."

His one announced plan for the immediate future concerned wonderful sailboating off St. Andrews, N. B., where he will join his sitser, Miss Elizabeth Smith, for a vacation. Then Mr. Smith expects to resume his Boston law practice.

HEROISM MAY COST LIFE OF SPRINGFIELD MAN

HARTFORD, July 19.—(AP)—Heroism displayed in warning the occupants of a burning building of their peril before extinguishing the flames which were burning the clothes of his body, probably will cost the life of Emerson Davis, of Springfield, Mass., following the explosion here today of a gas from a refrigerating plant on the fourth floor of the Lafayette apartment at 26 Garden street.

A mass of flames enveloped Davis when a highly explosive ether-bearing gas escaped from a connection which he had opened and came in contact with flames in a gas range. He groped his way from the kitchenette of the apartment and with his clothes in flames rushed through the corridors of two floors informing people of their danger.

At the door of the apartment of Wilfred P. Weaver on the third floor he collapsed. Mrs. Weaver and other women took charge of him, pouring olive oil on the burns which covered nearly his entire body. The police emergency ambulance took him to St. Francis' hospital where it was reported this evening that due to the extent of his burns he could not survive more than a few hours.

The fire resulting from the explosion was confined to two rooms of the apartment of Mrs. Inez Benson and was quickly extinguished on the arrival of the fire department. About $200 damage was done to furniture and woodwork. The apartment is owned by Edmund A. Clune, of 184 South Beason street.

INVESTIGATING EXPLOSION AT CAMP DEVENS, MASS.

CAMP DEVENS, Mass., July 19.—(AP)—A military board of inquiry tonight had under investigation an explosion at the national guard camp here today in which Captain Lewis R. Edmonds of Somerville was killed and six private soldiers were injured. Adjutant General Jesse F. Stevens announced that he would have a report on the accident ready within 48 hours.

Captain Edmonds, a World war veteran, commanding Company A, of the 101st Engineers, Massachusetts National Guard, suffered fatal injuries when a cast of T N T charges exploded during war maneuvers. The officer had been using the explosive to stimulate actual war conditions while a bridge problem was being worked out on the Nashua river.

HERRIOT COMPLETES LIST OF NEW FRENCH MINISTRY

Anatole De Monzie, Who Had Been at Odds With M. Herriot, Becomes Minister of Finance—The New Cabinet Closely Resembles That of 1924, Which Faced the Same Problems Now Confronting the Government.

PARIS, July 9—(AP)—Edouard Herriot, who takes M. Briand's place as head of the government, succeeded late tonight in constituting his cabinet. The official list was given out as follows:

Premier and foreign affairs—Edouard Herriot.

Minister of finance—Anatole De Monzie.

Interior—Camille Chautemps.

Justice and Alsace-Lorraine—Maurice Colrat.

War—Paul Painleve.

Navy—Rene Renoult.

Colonies—Adrien Darica.

Commerce—Louis Loubheur.

Public works—Andre Hesse.

Education—Edouard Daladier.

Agriculture—Dr. Queuille.

Labor—Louis Pasquet.

Pensions—Georges Bonnet.

Under-Secretaries:

To the premiership—Albert Milhaud.

Finance—M Jacquier.

War—Jacquest Dumesnil.

Air—Barthelemy Robaglia.

Devastated regions—M. Maitre.

Technical education—Gaston Bazile.

Naturalization and immigration—Charles Lambert.

Merchant marine—M. Mallarme.

Budget—Paul Morel.

M. Lambert's office will be a high commissionership, and M. Lavasseur will be retained as high commissioner of housing problems.

The new ministry contains 11 radicals and radical-socialists—Herriot, Chatemps, Hesse, Daladier, Queuille, Bonnet, Milhaud, Jacquier, Dumesnil, Bazile and Lambert, all deputies.

Rene Renoult and M. De Monzie senators, are listed as members of the radical-democratic and radical's socialist left respectively.

The most interesting feature of the new cabinet is the return of Anatole De Monzie as minister of finance. He had previously been at odds with M. Herriot regarding theb est means of raising necessary funds for restoring the financial situation. M. Herriot wanted a capital levy, M. De Monzie, a capital loan.

Louis Locheur, the new minister of commerce and considered France's wealthiest industrialist, once deserted M. Herriot with his followers on the question of a capital levy.

The new Herriot ministry also marks the disappearance of M. Laurent-Eynac, under-secretary for the air, who had served in this post in every cabinet since 1921, and has to his credit the present high standing of the French air service.

The new government, in spite of some new blood, resembles so much that of 1924 that it may be said to be quite the same, only grown two years older.

The problems the Herriot government has to face are the same as in 1924, though aggravated by age. When Herriot first took power he found the dollar at 15; now he finds it at 46.42 francs. Then he confronts the chamber at the head of a new combination he will have to answer the charge of the opposition that the decline of the franc in the meantime was due to his programme of two years ago, which shook confidence, and to the opposition of his supporters to every measure proposed by the succeeding governments definitely to solve the financial question.

The life of the new cabinet is expected to be extremely short. This is the opinion in all political groups, including Herriot's own party, because the premier will again have to base his policy on the socialist programme, which the senate is not likely to accept, and which even in the chamber will probably have a narrow majority, if any.

The predictions of the experts are that the government will last until a financial programme is introduced; then will come a new cabinet crisis, which may be solved only by an appeal to M. Poincare, whose name was mentioned more frequently in today's discussions in the lobbies of the chamber than that of M. Herriot.

There is a good deal of talk of the necessity of voting another increase in the circulation because of the delay in getting action on measures to stabilize finances. Pessimistic reports were circulated through the chamber by Louis Malvy, former minister of the interior, and others to the effect that the people in the rural districts are reacting in a disquieting way to the ministerial crises and cashing their national defense bonds.

In the grave crisis, some consolation is found in the face that the circumstances now are such that the French people are waking up and are likely to force parliament to get down to business without regard for political ambitions.

FRENCH FEELING PINCH OF ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

PARIS, July 19.—(AP)—The man in the street in France is beginning to feel the pinch of economic complications resulting from the prolonged financial crisis.

For the first time since the franc began to fall, the general public has become aroused to the extent of the uneasiness which has been felt in official quarters for some time. The first manifestation of this public reaction has been in extravgant buying of anything that will keep.

For a time this tendency gave a greater impetus to business generally. As the franc continued to go down, however, merchants became alarmed at the intense buying movement and showed less anxiety to increase their business turnover. Some houses have taken advantage of the excuse of summer closing, which used to be general, and some traders have shut up shop.

Factories in some lines are faced with the problem of whether it is profitable or advisable to go on producing, since as fast as they sell raw materials, the increase in price deranges their schedules and makes profits only for those who already have bought goods.

The general public which has been quietly getting rid of paper francs and putting in stores of provisions for some time now finds it more difficult to buy. This object lesson in finances has done more to open the eyes of the average citizen to the seriousness of the situation than anything that has happened in the past two years.

Evidences of ill humor on the part of Parisians is now cropping out in different ways. The crowds that gathered around the chamber of deputies and the Elysee Palace during every ministerial crisis, instead of being good humored and inoffensive as usual, are now showing some temper, necessitating the reinforcement of guards and more stringent regulations.

While the growing impatience of the people is causing anxiety in official quarters, it is hailed by many followers of the situation as a welcome development since it is regarded as the thing best calculated to spur parliament to effective action.

Although the public is putting in winter supplies as fast as possible, the most serious hinderances comes from retail dealers who are now limiting the quantity of goods which they are willing to sell for the rapidly fluctuating paper franc. Coal dealers are limiting their deliveries to about 200 pounds while the larger companies have increased their prices 100 francs a ton and expect a further rise shortly.

Dress makers are having difficulty in getting trimmings and embroidery while furniture dealers are refusing to accept further orders at present prices. Even the wine dealers are becoming wary and are refusing to deliver old vintages at more than one bottle at a time.

Restaurant keepers say that never before have they done such good business, attributing this to the fact that their customers no longer regard paper money as worth saving.

SUN DANCE BY BANNOCK AND SHOSHONE INDIANS

POCATELLO, Idaho, July 19.—(AP)—With aged braves dropping from exhaustion, three score Bannock and Shoshone tribesmen early today continued the dance about a grotesque totem pole in their gruelling effort to win the favor of the sun God for another year.

Starting at sunset Saturday 70 selected tribesmen began slowly to weave about the Totem pole on the dance grounds at the Big Bend of the Portneuf rivers. The Dancers represent more than a thousand Indians from the Fort Hall reservation and are assembled for the dance for the first time in four years. The present pow wow was permitted by reservation officials on condition that the Indians would refrain from former barbaric practices.

Wearing only a small blanket held about the waist by a beaded belt, and a weasel pelt suspended from the neck the dancers have been painted by their medicine men with fantastic designs supposed to please the Great Spirit. Thus lightly attired, they shout to the low roar of tom-toms, the shrill blasts of birch whistles and the chanting of their squaws.

CUNNINGHAM HOUSE FIRE MYSTIFIES COLUMBIA

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 19—The story and a half home of Edward Cunningham, on the Columbia state highway, a quarter of a mile east of the junction of Columbia road with the Hartford-Willimantic highway, was completely destroyed, with its contents, by a fire of mysterious origin, shortly before 11 o'clock last night. Other than the supposition that the building may have been struck by lightning the cause of the fire cannot be explained and it cannot be determined whether the occupant Hattie Cunningham was at home when the fire started. The building was located on a side hill some 75 feet from the highway and was of unpretentious appearance. Neighbors knew nothing about the fire until passing motorists called their attention to it. Edward Willis, a relative, of Manchester habitually spent his week-ends at the house, but was not seen this week. First Selectman Joseph N. Clarke of Columbia, upon being informed of the destruction of the house announced that he would conduct an investigation into the cause of the fire. He had been informed that a short time ago the Cunninghams had taken out insurance to the amount of $3,500 on the house and contents.

DEATH OF MRS. S. R. RUSS WHO WAS 94 YEARS OF AGE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 19—Mrs. Julia G. Russ, 94, widow of amuel R. Russ, died at her home in Chaplin early Monday morning. She was born in Seekonk, Mass., May 16, 1832, the daughter of Kent and Lydia Allen Grant. Surviving her is one son, Justice of the Peace Charles B. Russ and a daughter, Miss Fannie E. Russ, both of Chaplin.

The wet road surface following the rain storm was blamed, about 11 o'clock Sunday night, for the overturning at Hampton, of an automobile operated by William Shea of Milford, Mass., and the injuring of five persons. The car skidded in rounding the bend of the Clark's road to Hampton street, in Hampton, and ran down a small embankment, turning over on its right side. The occupants were pulled up in the wreckage. They were, William Shea and Fred Keian of Milford, Mass., injured about the body. Mr. and Mrs. William McCarthy and the latter's sister, Miss Ruth Hennegan of Boston, cut on the head and having painful bruises. Mr. McCarthy has three fractured ribs. The three last named are confined to beds at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Twomey on Turner street this city. The party had been week-end guests at the Twomey cottage at Columbia lake and were returning home when the accident happened. The car has been towed to this city for repairs. Shea and Nolan were able to return to Milford Monday forenoon.

Authorities stated Monday that there was a possibility that the $5,000 damage suit brought by Leo Biondino of this city, a state highway employe, against Frank B. Atkinson of Pittsburgh, Pa., whose car injured him last Friday, may be settled out of court. At noon Monday Atkinson furnished a bond and the attachment placed on his car by Constable Peck was released. The case is returnable before the September term of the Windham county superior court. Biondino sustained a broken leg when struck by Atkinson's car in Chaplin. Atkinson was fined $25 and cost for reckless driving, in the Chaplin town court Saturday afternoon.

The state police and Superintendent Willard N. Bowen, of the pumping station of the city water supply, agreed Monday that the mystery of a disappearing row-boat along with the unknown man who had rented it was only a dead-beat's strategy to avoid paying rent on the boat. With the finding of the craft and the two oars drifting on the pond and hearing no reports of any man being missing, the conclusion reached Sunday afternoon was practically confirmed Monday.

Shortly before noon Sunday, many people were attracted to a low-flying airplane which hovered over the Willimantic Country club grounds and then landed in a field just southwest of the Phelps' Crossing bridge. The machine was a U. S. army scout plane with pilot and mechanician and had been forced to land due to a shortage of fuel. C. C. Willimas, of North Windham road, brought gasoline to the plane and they soon hopped off again. They were on their way from Boston to Fort Terry, N. Y. The plane is believed to be the same one which stirred the sleepy borrough of Danielson a short time before landing here by skimming the roofs of dwellings it is believed that the aviators were looking for a landing place in that place, in order to refuel.

Mrs. Frank McLean, wife of Captain of Police Frank McLean, entertained a children's party Monday afternoon for the seventh birthday of her daughter Frances. Present were, Avis French, Phyllis Angell, Evelyn Rood, Elaine Connell, Doris Phillips and Medora DePathy. Mrs. Henry D. Martin, aged 84, entertained with childhood stories. Lunch was served.

Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink started out to investigate the collision of three automobiles at the east railroad underpass in Andover, late Saturday night, but before he arrived at the site the machines had all been driven off. He learned that the damage done was not serious.

The name of Mrs. William H. Smith of 22 South Park street, appeared as a winner of a ten dollar prize for the highest award in this city in a history contest in the Sunday edition of a Boston newspaper.

Slight damage by falling tree limbs and inconveniences when electric light and telephone service disrupted in some cases, were reported as a result of the electrical storms which came in a series between six and nine o'clock Sunday night. An elm tree limb, 14 inches in diameter fell and slightly damaged the roof of the home of former Postmaster Walter R. King on Pleasant street. Two large limbs from an elm fell across the electric light wires leading into the home of Dr. George E. Wilcox on West Main street and affected the service there. South Coventry experienced darkness described as pitch-black, with an accompaniment of a mixture of hail and rain to the electrical display. The blowing of two fuses on the high tension lines at Stafford Springs put the electrical service in Coventry out of commission for some minutes. Forty-one lines, totalling three hundred stations mostly in Storrs and other parts of Mansfield were affected. It was reported at the local telephone office. The trolley waiting station at Willimantic Camp Ground, a familiar landmark, was blown to the ground. A large maple in front of the home of Leslie Nichols on upper Jackson street was uprooted while the wind storm was at its height.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Stories from California and Europe afforded reading for the Norwich people in 1851. Articles from the Norwich Courier of that year are taken in part as follows:

Tuesday, July 15, 1851—The Courier of this date takes the pleasure of printing in full The American Hero, a sapphic ode, written by Rev. Nathaniel Niles, formerly a resident of this city. This ode was sung by the soldiers of the Revolution as they marched to battle and was also known as the favorite war-song of Pilgrim soldiery. The words of the ode were learned by students at Yale college and sung there, in fact, it was so generally accepted that it was hardly published before it was set to music and sung in practically all the churches of the land. When in Norwich Rev. Niles preached at the "meeting house," which stood on the spot now occupied by Mansfield's building on Main street.

It is stated that when Jenny Lind sang at Albany this week rowdies made so much noise that she fainted away during one of her numbers. After being revived she continued with the concert, the rowdies having been dispersed.

Thursday, July 17, 1851—On Sunday evening while Mr. Green was proceeding to Woonsocket in a wagon, a man suddenly jumped out from behind a bush and seized his horse. Mr. Green sprang from the wagon and struck the man a violent blow with his fist, killing him instantly. The affair is being investigated.

Fitz Green Halleck, the poet, is now residing in his native town of Guilford, Conn., and it is stated that he now engaged upon a record of his life and times.

The steamer Asia has arrived from Europe having made the trip in 10 days and 20 hours from Liverpool.

England is now planning to transport women to Colonies to even up the average for there is a large surplus of women in England over the men. In the Colonies it is the other way and thus the transporting of women to the Colonies would work to the benefit of England.

The village of Woodstock is all aroused since Sheriff Whitney captured the bandit wanted for robbing of the Dorchester and Milton bank at Dorchester, Mass. A reward of $1,500 is to come to Sheriff Whitney and he is a lucky man to be alive to claim it. When he seized the bandit he was forced to knock aside a pistol, and, while bringing the man in, was forced to take a dirk knife away from him. The sheriff bore marks of stabs from the dirk and was covered with blood when he landed his man at the Woodstock lockup.

Saturday, July 19, 1851—The Vigilance committee of San Francisco began their work on June 10th when they detected a man robbing a store. Eighty members of the committee sat behind locked doors and decided on his fate. He was taken to the public square and hung, the regular police being unable to stop the mob from carrying out their work. In the man's pockets was $283, which only tended to show that the Vigilance committee comprises men of high type and good character. This committee intends to put a stop to thieving and murders that have held the city in a reign of fear for many weeks.

H. B. Wildman of this city was one of the passengers injured, but not seriously, in the wreck on the New York and New Haven Railroad. Three passenger cars filled with passengers were thrown from the track and reduced to wreckage. The injured number over two score but so far no deaths have been reported.

The Irish census is going to show a deficiency of about 2,000,000 according to latest advices. In 1841 the population was given as over 8,000,000 and this year it will be about 6,000,000.

HOW THE PILGRIM MOTHER

Kept Her Family in Good Health

A statue to the Pilgrim Mother was recently unveiled at Plymouth Rock, Mass. Through her we honor every pioneer woman who endured privation and hardships that a nation might live. Shoulder to shoulder with her husband she built a home in the wilderness and reared her sturdy sons and daughters. She cooked and sewed. She spun and wove for her family. When they were ill, she brewed remedies from roots and herbs—such roots and herbs as are now used in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A Massachusetts woman writes: "I was all run-down, with no ambition. I was tired all the time. Sometimes I would be in bed two or three days at a time, and the doctor would have to give me something to quiet me. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have had wonderful results from it. I felt better after taking the second bottle, and I am never without it in the house now. I have told lots of people about it, and they say it helps them, too.' —Mrs. J. W. Critchett, 2 Hammond Street, Cambridge, Mass.

ASST. TREAS. I. A. M'DANIEL ADVANCED TO GEORGIA MILL

(Special to the Bulletin).

DANIELSON, July 19—Assistant Treasurer Ira A. McDaniel, ranking official in this town of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, operating the Goodyear Mills, Inc., is to leave here in August for a vacation at his home in Ohio. Later he will be transferred to be assistant treasurer at the textile plant which the big corporation is developing at Cedartown, Ga. Who Mr. McDaniel's successor here will be has not been announced.

Mr. McDaniel came here in 1926. He was made assistant treasurer this year, succeeding Herman M. Coulter, who was transferred to be assistant treasurer of the Dwyer mills, operated by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company at New Bedford. Mr. McDaniel, an overseas veteran of the World war, claims Athens, Ohio, as his home city. He has been very successful in the positions he has filled for the Goodyear company and his transfer to Cedartown is in the nature of a promotion.

It is understood that the Goodyear company has purchased a small mill in Cedartown and will build additions to it, as well as construct a large number of homes in the working out of a big textile development.

During his residence here Mr. McDaniel married Miss Edna Ayer, daughter of Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. Charles E. Ayer of Dayville. Their many frinds in Danielson will regret the departure of Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel, yet are mindful of their interests, calling them to a field of greater opportunity.

TRUCK DRIVER FINED, FAILED TO HAVE LICENSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 19—After figuring in an automobile accident in which his companion was hurt badly enough to require hospital attention, Frank Goyette, 109 Friendship street, Providence, driver of a Ward Baking company truck, was brought into the town court this afternoon and fined $5 and costs, a total of $10.44, for operating a motor vehicle in this state without having a license to do so.

Goyette was driving the truck on the state highway between Dayville and Goodyear when it apparently went out of control near a curve just beyond Pine hill, ran up an embankment, sideswiped a telephone pole and then rolled over on its side. Goyette escaped with minor scratches and bruises, but James P. Lyons of 223 Rochambeau avenue, Providence, who was riding with him sustained a gash that opened an artery in his wrist, broke his nose and quite badly jammed his right leg at a point below th knee. He was hurried to the hospital at Putnam for treatment.

The truck fared badly in the crash. It was jammed on the side where it went against the pole and damaged on the left side when it slid down the embankment and rolled over. The machine was one that regularly comes into this territory making deliveries of bread to retail merchants handling the line.

Officer Carmody of the Danielson barracks checked up the accident and upon learning that Goyette was operating without a Connecticut license ordered his appearance in court. The case was disposed of at a session held in the afternoon.

There has been little interruption of the work on the additions the past two months on account of the weather.

A sign erected by the selectmen in the areaway at the north side of the town hall building marks the end of another favorite parking place for automobiles. It became particularly popular after the present hour limit parking went into force in the business section. As a result, the driveway leading to the police station on that side of the building was blockaded much of the time and this led to the necessity of putting up the no-parking sign Meanwhile, those who were in the habit of keeping their machines there have found other places to leave them.

CENTER GROTON

Twenty-five hundred dollars was voted by taxpayers of the Third district, Center Groton, to enlarge the schoolhouse and provide a heating plant and equipment needed to make improvements which will take care of the overcrowded conditions of the school. Fifteen hundred dollars of the total amount will be used toward the addition to be erected to the rear of the present school building, and $1,000 will be used for two Heatrola stoves and other equipment necessary to outfit the additional space to conduct classes.

A large crowd turned out to attend the meeting. The special school committee, Fletcher S. Daboll, Nelson Rosseau and J. R. Haley, was discharged after its plans and recommendations were adopted and, preparatory to being put into execution, a new committee composed of R. F. Allen, Ackerman Lawrence and E. Warren was then elected to consider bids and estimates made by contractors to make the proposed addition to the school building and to supervise the work.

The new addition will be 28 by 20, with four windows each on the north and west sides. The present building is 20 by 30, so the proposed addition will almost double the floor space of the original building. The new addition will seat the children so that they will face east, will have blackboards on three sides, and will be divided into two rooms. A storm entrance to each of the two new rooms will be a feature of the new arrangement.

It was recommended by the outgoing committee to install two Heatrolas, and save expense, instead of excavating a cellar and installing a furnace. One Heatrola will be placed in each room.

"What to Wear" is the title of a new book. A companion volume entitled "How to Procure It" would fill a long-felt want.

RADIO CHAOS

Just as soon as the restrictions were disregarded concerning radio control it was predicted that there would be a chaotic situation. During the summer time raido has less hold upon the people, but as soon as cold weather comes the real effect of this prediction will be felt.

Already complaints are being made that stations are disregarding their wave lengths and doing just as they please regardless of their encroachment upon others. They may be having a good time and may be basking under the impression that their activity is pleasing those who are affected by it, but there isn't anything that disgusts a radio fan much more than the interruptions which are caused by the effects of others tuning in or by the refusal of broadcasters to operate under fixed restrictions.

From the big cities reports are coming to the effect that stations are using wavelengths that belong to others, making it impossible for the listener in to get anything but a jumble and creating that very confusion that was predicted. Stations which are responsible for such actions are not making friends. They are not only hurting themselves but they are hurting radio in general, and certainly if there was no hope that there would be a straightening out of the tangle there would be a wholesale throwing up of hands on the part of the radio fans.

Evidence of what Secretary Hoover meant when he said that chaos would be the result of failure to enact radio legislation on the part of congress is being furnished and there are several months to go before there can be any relief through legislation. The broadcasters may get together and come to some agreement but that only upholds the claim that they should abide by the regulations which have been established for their own good. Departure therefrom because there is nothing to restraint them sets the worst kind of an example. Those who start it simply invite others to follow but worse than that they are causing the great army of radio listeners to become disgruntled and disgusted. They are killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

LABELING OUR GOODS

In connection with foreign business it is an interesting observation on the part of Secretary Hoover when he expresses the belief that attaching the label "Made in America" or something similar to goods intended for other countries is not a help to business. It is to be supposed that he offers this view as the result of experience and study regarding it. It would be a bit surprising if he couldn't point to instances which support his contention. His position is that such labels create resentment. The fact that our goods carry such marks causes some in other countries to turn against them.

If we give consideration to the placing of such a label upon goods for domestic consumption there is no evidence that the fact that it was stated that certain goods were made in any one of the 48 states or in any of the cities of the country would not create a prejudice against them. That would be regarded only as a good means of advertising state or community industries, and it is resorted to in many instances. It in fact encourages others to do likewise. Possibly there is a difference when it comes to placing our goods in competition with those of other countries, although it is a well known fact that a similar label is used by other countries extensively. Frequently it is a case that such labels cause surprise to think that it is necessary to go to other countries for such articles, but without there is some other reason than more business competition there is not likely to be resentment.

But because we may not be disposed to resent the offering of foreign made goods in this country does not necessarily mean that our goods are welcomed with such a label elsewhere. The desirability of letting it be known that goods are American made has its appeal. It is often an excellent idea as a matter of protection to the purchaser, and while it is not always that American made goods meet foreign requirements, the chance to test out the difference and to permit of comparisons is thereby furnished. Perhaps it would be well to know where labels of the kind mentioned are a handicap rather than an aid to trade.

PENNSYLVANIA CAVE-INS

There are parts of the country where residents live in fear of earthquakes and cyclones. They build their homes in anticipation of the possibilities and set up as much as they can in the way of safeguards but they know that they cannot stop the quakes or the severe wind storms. It is a case of making the best of the situation and taking the consequences. The situation seems to be about the same with many householders in certain coal mining sections of Pennsylvania, where from time to time the ground drops from 50 to 100 feet carrying everything with it. This is due to the fact that the coal mining operations have been carried on under the cities, the supporting columns and shoring being supposed to be sufficient to sustained the crust of earth and what is thereon. That it does for a while or until there is a cutting down of this support or the shoring weakens. Then the inevitable happens and homes are swallowed up and there is sometimes loss of life to say nothing of the wailing and gnashing of teeth, but there's little to be obtained in the way of redress. The coal companies have proceeded under their right and the maintenance of cities over such danger spots has resulted in disaster.

The difference between the Pennsylvania communities which disappear and those in the earthquake and cyclone zones is that there is a chance for the prevention of the property losses in Pennsylvania by the construction or reconstruction of the communities elsewhere than directly over old mines which are gradually being worked for new yields or where new mining operations are underway. Cave-ins have come with too great frequency even where it is known that the risk rests entirely upon the surface dwellers, but the repetitions show that little advance has been made in the way of providing protection or for compensating those who sustain losses. The surprise is that the coal consumer is not required to pay a tax to meet just such conditions.

CANTON, O., REVELATIONS

Much interest has been created by the case of the newspaper publisher in Canton, O., who was shot down and killed by gunmen while entering his garage because of the part which he had played in trying to clean up conditions in that city. He was opposed to the lawless conditions which were tolerated. He fought corruption which appeared among the political office holders, he was outspoken against the activities of bootleggers and the illegal dispensing of narcotics, and through his efforts he had been responsible for bringing to justice a number who were responsible for such conditions. His revelations were such that he was regarded as a serious menace by the lawless element and his murder was the result.

In view of the fact that there was little or no effort made on the part of Canton authorities or people to bring his murderer or murderers to justice, the wonder is whether he represented public sentiment in that community or whether Canton wanted just those conditions which he fought.

Certainly the disinterestedness in Canton which makes it necessary for the state to take hold of the situation creates a strange impression. The situation is one which the Canton public may well consider for public opinion there is responsible for the city government and when a city government fails to display much interest in bringing such murderers to justice the question arises as to whether public opinion there favors the upholding of the law and the methods adopted to bring it about or whether it sanctions lawlessness and the acts of those who used cold lead in assuring its continuance. The murder is one which should arouse public indignation unless the Canton public favors the conditions against which such troublesome opposition was created.

UNDER ANOTHER FLAG

The expression by Mrs. Lemuel H. Doty of Mississippi, mother of Bennett Doty whose son enlisted with the French forces in the near east and faced the death penalty for desertion, that "they might just as well hang him or shoot him" as to give him the sentence of eight years which he received, will probably not represent her sentiment after deliberation.

There was really no ground for this government interceding in his behalf beyond the fact that he was a son of American parents, for he has enlisted under another flag and in doing so was bound to take the consequences of his acts. Our government did offer a protest to the extreme penalty and it seemingly had its effect, even though it must realize that desertion is a serious matter and foreign countries are not disposed to establish precedents of leniency regarding it. His record previous to his desertion was, however, greatly in his favor.

The idea of having him spend eight years in a foreign prison cannot be particularly pleasing to his mother, but it must be remembered that that gives him an opportunity to show through his conduct that he is worthy of a pardon or a substantial reduction of his sentence. It cannot be anticipated as a vacation period exactly and yet it is by no means to be compared to the equivalent of a sentence of death. Young Doty will not look at it in that light, unless we are greatly mistaken, and yet he has probably had a bit of experience in service with foreign armies which will probably serve to effectively demonstrate before he gets through with it what enlistment under other flags really means.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

"It's just a piece of extravagance," said mother when I told her yesterday morning that I was going downtown to buy a ready-made frock to the Wayfarers' Midwinter ball. "You have plenty of pretty things. How about that lovely rainbow georgette that you had Marguerite Doulton bring you from Paris last fall? You haven't worn it at all."

"It's never been shortened," I replied. "I thought it foolish to get in Miss Barker just to do that, and Cousin Fannie keeps forgetting to do it, and besides she's gone out for the whole day and I have to have something to wear tonight. You know I'm going with George Requier, and I don't wish to wear the same old things that I've worn every time I've been out with him this winter, so I must hie me down to the mart and buy a—"

"No, Lucile, I can shorten that Paris frock for you, and you could have nothing lovelier to wear. It will be a simple task."

Of course there was no use in confessing to mother that I had seen a perfectly ravishing gown at Blink's which I wished to buy, so I accepted with as much grace as I could her offer to shorten the rainbow georgette.

When I got it out and tried it on for mother to get the right length it really looked prettier than I expected, for I had felt that Marguerite had not made a very fortunate choice.

Just after mother had begun working on the dress the telephone rang. It was Mrs. McDermine speaking.

"Oh, Lucile," she said, "I do hope that your mother has no engagement for this afternoon, for I—"

"But she has, dear Mrs. McDermine," I interrupted. "This is her busy day."

"What a pity! I'm getting up a very small bridge party for Ida Reeves. Your mother used to be so fond of her and it's the first time she's been back here since she moved away. She's here only for a day or two, so this is a very hasty, informal affair."

"It was darling of you to think of mother, and she will be very sorry, I know, to miss your party. Your parties are always so delightful," I said graciously, and then I went upstairs where mother was hemming the yards and yards of the three-ply skirt. I realized that I had done wisely to decline Mrs. McDermine's invitation for I just had to have the dress for evening, as long as she had forbidden my buying a new one.

I must say that mother did the job beautifully. Any one who sews so well really ought to sew more than she does. Indeed, I felt so much pleased with my appearance when I was dressed ready for the ball that I kissed mother and thanked her warmly for having made it possible for me to wear the Paris frock.

She appeared quite touched at my expression of appreciation and was so very pleasant and affectionate in her wishes that I should have a happy evening that I was entirely unprepared for her air of injury this morning at breakfast.

"Lucile," she said, "Ida Reeves telephoned me last evening.

"How nice! How is she?" I inquired, politely.

"She said she was very well indeed, but awfully disappointed not to see me yesterday at Mrs. McDermine's bridge. I must admit that I should like to have the privilege of accepting or declining my own invitations, Lucile. I certainly should have gone to that party if I had known about it."

"And left my dress, that you had promised... to do, unfinished? Why mother darling, that isn't like you!"

"You could have worn one of your other frocks, Lucile, and I could have seen a dear old friend. Ida left this morning for her California home," she said reproachfully. "Yesterday was my only chance to see her."

"I didn't know that her visit was to be so ridiculously short. As you have often said that you considered bridge in the afternoon a waste of time I thought I was really doing you a favor when I said you were engaged, as you certainly were. But nothing I do ever seems to please you." I said with a choking voice, and mother, giving me an odd look, remarked that further discussion was useless. Sometimes she is strangely unsympathetic toward me. — Chicago News.

CHILD TRAINING

THE RIGHT TO BE BEAUTIFUL

Jessie E. Baker

"Mary Jane is getting so spoiled I can hardly live with her," remarked Mrs. Ray to her friend, Mrs. Brown. "People are always saying how pretty she is and whenever she receives a compliment or hears a remark about her beauty she acts so haughty and affected. She is simply losing her sweet ways.

"Just the other day she was with Mrs. Maborn and the baby. Some one stopped them and began talking about the baby's wonderful eyes. Mary Jane, having received no special attention, broke into the conversation with, 'But her eyes are blue. Just look at mine; they're brown.' Mrs. Maborn and her friend thought it funny, but I was mortified."

"Have you ever tried telling her yourself that she is pretty?" asked the friend. "I had the same trouble with Betty May. She was older than Mary Jane. I didn't know what to do. I couldn't tell her she wasn't pretty for she was and could see it for herself. Besides, if I had she would have thought my judgment at fault or else considered me unfair, and her friends would have seemed more dependable than her mother. I studied the problem carefully and decided I would be frank with her.

"One evening Betty May came in unusually happy. 'O, Mother!' she exclaimed, 'I've had more compliments today. I'm just crazy over this dress. Make me another one just like it in the new red shade, won't you, Mother dear?'

"I will do anything I can for my lovely daughter,' I replied.

She looked at me surprised.

"'Yes, you are beautiful,' I assured her, 'and it is nice of your friends to tell you.'

"In the conversation that followed I spoke of several of her girl friends and remarked how pretty and sweet they were.

"After a while she said, 'Why Mother, do you think they are all pretty?'

"'Yes,' I replied, 'they all have the beauty of youth. One girl may have wonderful eyes, another beautiful hair, another the sweetest of smiles, but they are all pretty. I've been wanting to tell May Sue how sweet and pretty she looked the other day.'

"'Mother! you don't mean to say that May Sue is pretty,' exclaimed Betty May.

"'Yes, she is pretty,' I answered. 'I heard Mrs. Handon and Mrs. Way telling her the other day how wonderful she was. She really has the sweetest smile I ever saw. Then there is Mable Lee. Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Gray were raving to her about her pretty eyes—said they had a faun-like look and would melt a heart of stone.

"'Oh, Mother!' and the tears came into Betty May's eyes, 'that is just what they told me. Do you suppose people compliment all the girls that way?'

"'Yes, my dear, they are nice to all the girls,' I said. 'Every girl should look and act her best so that her friends will be proud of her.'

"So Betty May awakened to the fact that it wasn't unusual to be pretty and became her sweet self again, appreciating her many compliments but no longer spoiled by them."

"Thank you for telling me this," said Mrs. Ray. "Betty May is one of the most charming girls I know. I shall try your plan."

Little Talks on Thrift

SAVE ON ALL INCOMES

Are you saving money on your present income?

A great many persons seem to be under the impression that the saving of money is largely a matter of income. The fact is it is a matter of will-power and determination.

Most of the great American fortunes of today were started with the savings of an individual whose income was extremely limited. Had these individuals waited until their incomes had increased before they began to save, they probably never would have progressed beyond mediocre advancement in the business world.

The man who is earning $5,000 a year may feel that it is out of the question for him to save anything. He undoubtedly is of the opinion that if he were earning $10,000 a year he could save a very substantial sum.

But the man who is earning $10,000 a year lives on a more expensive scale than the $5,000 a year man, is surrounded by more demands and, therefore, finds it correspondingly harder to save.

It is not an easy matter for many to save. But it should ever be borne in mind that the mere matter of income has little to do with it. Many times has it been shown that those who are unwilling to make the sacrifice necessary to save on limited incomes are just as unwilling to make sacrifices when their incomes are increased.

Most men who have succeeded had to do so at great odds.

Saving money on a limited income does require pluck. But because of this the savings take on additional value. It is not the amount of money that counts in the long run; it is the amount of character necessary to produce the saving.—American Society for Thrift.

A Funny Crab Town

The thing which funny seems to thee
May be quite commonplace to me.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny Meadow Mouse went back to his home over on the edge of the salt marsh after spending the night exploring with Jimmy Skunk. Jimmy returned to his home underneath the bathhouse on the beach. It was only a short distance from the bathhouse over to where Danny had made a nest in an old log just at the edge of the marsh.

"Come again, Danny," said Jimmy, "and I'll show you some more things."

"Thank you," replied Danny. "If you ask me, everything is queer around here."

It was with a little sigh of thankfulness that he finally curled up in his own snug bed to sleep. Then he dreamed of crabs. He dreamed of crabs with great big pinching claws, and they were always reaching for him. He still couldn't get over the idea that they were spiders wearing shells, great big armored spiders. It didn't seem to him that he ever would get used to them.

The next morning Danny once more went exploring out on the salt marsh. He couldn't help but feel more comfortable over there in the grass, even though it were not the kind of grass he was used to. By and by he came to the bank of a creek, which you know is a stream of water. It was a salt water creek. Danny didn't know it, but it was really a branch of the mouth of the Big River, which came down from the Green Meadows, where he had lived all his life. But Danny wasn't thinking of things of this kind. You see, without any warning he came to a place which was really a town. He didn't know it. All he saw at first was a great number of holes in the mud of the bank and back from the bank a little way. Of course, he noticed these holes right away.

"I wonder who made them and if anybody lives in them," said Danny to himself.

As if in answer, out of one of those holes popped a little crab, but the funniest crab Danny had yet seen. It had only one big pinching claw and that was carried up and in front of it in the funniest way. The other pinching claw was small. The crab did not see Danny when he first came out of his hole. Almost at once another one appeared from another hole. This one did not have the big pinching claw but the two pinching claws were small. In a minute crabs were popping out of the hole all around Danny. Some had the single claw and some did not; and how they did scuttle about! Every once in a while there would be a fight. Something unseen by Danny frightened them, and the way they all scuttled for their holes was a sight to see. Each one scuttled for the nearest hole, whether it belonged to him or not. The result was that when the owner of the hole arrived and found somebody else in there he tried to put the latter out. Like all the rest of the crabs Danny had seen, these ran sidewise. As soon as all was quiet out they all came once more.

As if in answer, out of one of those holes hopped a little crab

Their eyes were on little stalks and those stalks were moveable. They seemed to be very suspicious and they were forever moving their eyes about. It was funny enough.

There was no one there to tell Danny what kind of crabs these were. They were Fiddler Crabs. A Fiddler Crab with the big claw is Mr. Fiddler. The one with the two pinching claws small is Mrs. Fiddler. Danny was in the middle of a Fiddler Crab town. Such a night as it was when all the crabs were out! And it was an even greater sight when he appeared in their midst and suddenly sent them scuttling to their holes. Danny was too much taken with watching the crabs to notice their holes. Had he noticed them, he would have discovered that many of them were arched over. The arches were built by the crabs of mud.

"Well," said Danny on his way home, "I don't believe I'll ever see as funny crabs as those fellows with the single big claw." But in this Danny was mistaken.

MIDNIGHT BURGLAR ATTACKS ELDERLY WOMAN IN HOUSE NEAR GOLF CLUB

Screams by Mrs. James DeWolfe, 50, who lives alone in a house set back from the state highway at Thamesville, just north of the entrance to the Norwich Gold club, probably saved her from serious personal injury about 12.30 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning, when she was awakened by a burglar who had gained entrance to the Norwich Golf club, probably ransacked her room before being discovered.

According to her story she was awakened by the jarring of her bed and saw a light dart through the darkness of the room. Suddenly a hand closed about her throat but before pressure could shut off her breath she screamed and the thief ran from the bedroom into the kitchen and made his escape out the back door.

Continuing to scream Mrs. DeWolfe awakened neighbors in houses some distance away. She remained in her room until help reached her and then went to the front door to admit them. She was taken to the home of Richard Sanders, located across the road some distance down the highway and remained there for the night.

Neighbors immediately notified the police of the break and attack on Mrs. DeWolfe and Sergeant John T. Casey and Constable Lucius Fenton went to Thamesville to investigate the break.

When neighbors gained admittance to the house they found the clothes presses in the bedrooms had been ransacked and the back door of the house opened, and the key, which had been pushed from the lock, was on the floor in a small entryway. The door leading into a large pantry was also open but nothing had been touched there.

The thief evidently approached the house from the state highway and made his escape in the same direction. Foot-prints were plainly visible in the garden just beyond the house and continued along a wire fence to the ledge which runs alongside the trolley tracks at this point.

Mrs. DeWolfe has been in the habit of living alone in her home during the summer months and is quite deaf, this giving rise to the belief that the thief may have known this when making the break. It has been the custom of Mrs. DeWolfe to lock the screen door at the rear of the house but she had neglected to do so Monday night.

Indications of haste on the part of the burglar were noticeable in the entryway leading to the kitchen for a chair had been pushed to one side and stood facing the bedroom.

Mrs. DeWolfe could give no description of the burglar except that his hands were large. Her throat bore no marks to indicate pressure as she states that the man let go immediately upon hearing her scream. In making his search of the house he used a flashlight owned by Mrs. DeWolfe and this was taken with him when he made his escape.

At a late hour the police were still working on the case and had searched several nearby shacks where it was believed the man might be hiding.

The new stamp design was prepared primarily for use on the stock manufactured in the envelope machine which has been installed as a part of the department's exhibit at the exposition. In order that it may be circulated generally throughout the country, the department has arranged for the production at the envelope factory at Dayton, Ohio, with distribution wherever there is a demand for them.

These stamped envelopes will all be issued in extra quality, 2 cents denomination, in sizes, No. 5, 8 and 13

"SHAVING TO MEET BEST GIRL" CAUSES A FAMILY ROW
(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 19.—Judge Cornelius C. Costello in Groton town court this morning found Sidney Eccleston, Mystic, guilty of assaulting his wife with a dangerous weapon and imposed a fine of $5 and costs. Eccleston, through his counsel, filed notice of an appeal and furnished a bond of $50 for his appearance at the next criminal session of the court of common pleas. Mrs. Eccleston testified that the assault upon her came about when Eccleston was shaving last Wednesday night. One of his children inquired of the father as to what the latter was doing and in the hearing of Mrs. Eccleston, the father said that he was "shaving to meet my best girl." A row started over the remark and Mrs. Eccleston was cut twice on the left arm. Neighbors summoned the state police and Eccleston was arrested.

Early Monday evening a Willys Knight sedan driven by William M. Dougherty of No. 35 Ward street and owned by Helen K. Dougherty, struck and knocked down an unidentified girl on Summit street. The girl ran from the sidewalk directly in the path of the machine but escaped injury.

FLAMES REDUCE BALTIC HOUSE TO ASHES

A house near Armstrong's crossing, above Baltic, and owned by Charles Rostelin, was burned to the ground about 9:15 o'clock Monday night. It is alleged that a colored family resided in the house but that they had left home about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Something of a mystery continued to surround the blaze however, for the occupants of the house had not returned home at a late hour Monday night. Soon after the fire wild rumors were afloat and groups of people went to the scene of the fire, all led there by the stories told in connection with the blaze.

According to the story as related by Officer John McGuire, two young men had claimed to have seen two bodies in the ruins.

People visiting the scene of the fire failed to see the bodies said to be in the cellar, but, owing to the heat of the ruins, the story could not be verified Monday night. It was said that the occupants of the house were not at home at the time the fire broke out, having left home about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

EXPECT ARREST SOON IN DONNELLY CASE

Sheriff John Dolan of Jewett City and Constable Aubrey Potter of Lisbon are running down all clues relative to the attack made a week ago Monday on Anna Donnelly, 14 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Donnelly of Sundy Hill road, by some assailant, as yet unknown.

Grand Juror George F. Heimbold stated Monday night that several important clues had been obtained and that the officers believed that their search for the assailant would prove successful within a day or two. What the newest clues were he would not divulge, but he implied that they were important.

The Donnelly girl remains a patient at the Backus hospital where she was taken the night of the cowardly assault. Her condition has continued to improve and it is believed that she may be able to return to her home by the latter part of the week.

DOGS CAUSE DAMAGE TO GARDEN CROPS

First Selectman William S. Murray of the town of Norwich has received numerous complaints, mostly from the section around Ward street, of damage being done at night by dogs which are allowed to roam. A number of families have reported loss of poultry while others complain of damage to garden crops.

The complaints have been turned over to Dog Warden Chester J. Bushnell for investigation. According to the law dogs causing damage may be killed and owners are warned to keep their dogs under restriction at night.

Following a short court trial Charles Townsell, 32, colored, of 218 Broad street, obtained a discharge on a complaint of breach of the peace in regard to use of abusive language to his wife, Ruth Townsell.

LISBON TOWN MEETING TO VOTE ON NEW SCHOOLHOUSE

The town of Lisbon is finding itself face to face with the problem of providing room for school children, the same problem that has troubled scores of towns in recent years. According to information obtainable the increase in the number of children who will attend the Lisbon schools in the fall is about 30, this repreesenting a large increase for that town.

Voters of the town will hold a meeting on Saturday of this week, at which time the problem will be threshed out. Two solutions have been brought forward to date; one, that the town house be remodelled in order to take care of the overflow; two, that a new school house be constructed to handle the increase. According to information the new school could not be completed in time for the opening of the school year in September, but, whether some temporary arrangement may be made until the school can be constructed, remains for the voters to decide.

It is stated that the proposed new school, if voted, would be of four rooms and would be used partly as a community house or center, as well as the school house.

The town also faces another proposition in that a request has been made for a portion of the town land near the town building, be used for the location of a building, as a waiting room and a general store. This request comes about because of the operating of busses through the town, as at present there is no waiting station at the center for the comfort of patrons of the bus line.

A third matter to be discussed and voted upon is whether or not the town is to subscribe for electric light power, and, if so, where the lights would be located. This action on the part of Lisbon is seemingly in line with action by many of the smaller towns since lighting companies have been pushing their lines into the smaller communities.

It is alleged that another cause which may have prompted the action in favor of lighting is the recent attack on the Donnelly girl, which, although taking place in daylight, might easily have taken place at night when the thoroughfares in the town are without light.

OBITUARY
William McConnell

As the result of a heart attack the death of William McConnell, widely known machinist for 31 years at the Ponemah company mill, and for 16 years a resident of Bliss place, occurred early Monday morning at his home.

Mr. McConnell had been in his usual good health throughout the day Sunday but shortly after midnight became ill and called his sisters, with whom he resided since the death of his wife eight years ago. Every effort was made to save his life but to no avail.

Mr. McConnell was born in Glasgow, Scotland, September 24, 1847, the son of Duncan and Margaret McLetsh McConnell. He came to the United States when but 18 years of age and soon mastered the trade of a machinist. For 31 years he was employed at the Taftville mill of the Ponemah company, retiring from active business about 16 years ago. He then took up his residence at No. 25 Bliss place and had endeared himself to a wide circle of friends.

In Southbridge, Mass., about 50 years ago, he was united in marriage with Ellen Haggerty, whose death occurred eight years ago. He was a man of high ideals and easily made friends wherever he resided. He was a devoted husband and brother and was highly respected by all who knew him. Mr. McConnell was not affiliated with any fraternity but since residing on Bliss place had been an active member of the First Congregational church at Norwich Town. His many friends learned of his death with sincere sorrow.

Mr. McConnell is survived by two sisters: Miss Mary and Miss Annie McConnell, with whom he lived; a brother, Duncan McConnell of West Peterborough, N. H., and several nieces and nephews.

Daniel Belmont Sweezey

Following a nervous illness of about three years duration the death of Daniel Belmont Sweezey of No. 105 Oakridge street, occurred Sunday. Mr. Sweezey was born in England in 1875, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sweezey and came to this country about 32 years ago.

He was united in marriage in this city on October 19, 1904 with Signe Elizabeth Carlstrom, who resides at No. 105 Oakridge street. Practically all his life was spent in railroading and he had been employed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, mostly as yardmaster. During the last few years of his illness he was tenderly cared for by the doctors and attendants at the Norwich State hospital. The greater part of his life was spent in Norwich but for a number of years he was employed in Groton. He was an attendant of Trinity Episcopal church and had many friends in this city.

Eat Food that Supplies "Balanced" Ration After Night's Fast

IF you feel tired, hungry, "fidgety" hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. Thousands have unenergetic mornings because they start days with breakfasts lacking in certain food elements.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats, containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 58% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

FRED BARRETT IS GIVEN BOTH JAIL TERM AND FINE
(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 19. — Fred Barrett, who was ousted from his position as manager of the Rotisserie, Waterford road house, of which his wife, Mrs. Harriet Sheele Barrett, is the owner and proprietress, and who was arrested twice Saturday on charges of breach of the peace and intoxication, was presented before Judge Frederick Dimmock in the Waterford town court this evening. Barrett was found guilty of both charges and was given 30 days in jail on the former charge and on the latter a fine of $10 and costs was imposed.

Barrett was first arrested early Saturday morning when Mrs. Barrett it is understood, relieved him from further management of the place. Barrett became enraged and created such a disturbance that the state police were summoned, resulting in Barrett's arrest. He was released upon bail and although Mrs. Barrett had delivered to her husband a bill of sale for an automobile owned by her and Barrett and promised to remain away from the inn, he returned there during the early morning hours and caused such a demonstration, including the smashing of two doors and a threat to kill Mrs. Barrett, that the state police were again summoned. This time Barrett was held a prisoner at the New London police station, until Sunday when he was arraigned in court and the case continued until tonight. He then obtained a surety on his bail of $5,000.

SUSIE DISCUSSES THINGS IN GENERAL IN HER LAST LETTER TO SPORTS EDITOR

Susie had what might be termed a very uneventful week and in her last letter to the sports editor comments on various things not seen in the print which she has picked up. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed:—

There wasn't much doing during the last week in the sporting line outside of a couple baseball games and the Delaney-Berlenbach fight, but I know a lotta things what ain't appeared in print yet so's maybe you'll be interested to learn about them. Say, speaking of that big bout in Brooklyn ain't it grand that another Irish boy has won a title. Them Delaney boys was always great scrappers. Whatda you know, the boy friend just told me, that that feller Delaney ain't no Irishman, but is a French man. Can you beat that the way them fellers always takes a real good Irish name to fight under.

I see where one of them police sargents has got a new auto and that Risley feller is teaching him to drive. Gosh, I bet that raises them cops got awhile ago comes in handy. I seen that sargent driving up Park street the other day when all of a sudden he comes piling back down the street like the Old Harry. Well, I knows how that feels cause that's just what I did once when I was learning to drive only I kept hollering whoa to the darned thing. Speaking of driving autos I ain't so good myself. I went to New Haven the other day and I darned near wrecked four of the silent cops at one corner.

Here's how it happened. I was driving along nice and easy like I was enjoying it when I comes to a corner. I was watching the other cars and waiting for a chance to turn into the other street and wasn't paying no attention where I was going when all of a sudden the boy friend says "Hey, where in heck do you think you're going?" Well, about that time I looks out in front and there's four of them silent cops right in front of me. I puts on them breaks quick but it ain't quick enough and before I can stop I has plowed into them tin cops and there is an awful clash and clang and them copd is rolling around under the cars.

Well, I guess I feels pretty cheap, but me and the boy starts pulling them darned things out from under the car while a crowd on the sidewalk gives me the razz and makes funny jokes what ain't funny only to themselves. Lucky for me there ain't no traffic cops around so we puts them tin cops back where they belongs, much the worse for wear, and we drives on. I notices them cops ain't there when we comes back, so I guess they has been laid up for repairs.

I saw a game the other day between them Bon Tons and the Saints Joe and believe me there was one feller what almost made me sick. He's that Nap Liberty feller what plays for the Saints. He must think he's a Nick Altrock but he ain't and never will be. As a comedian he's a dub. When folks go to see a ball game they expect to see a ball game and if they want to see clowns they go to the circus. He's a good ball player cause I saw him last year when he was awarded the prize for being the most valuable player. I don't think he'd get the booby prize this year. When a feller gets such a swelled dome that he thinks he's the whole cheese then's the time when he gets sent back to the bushes. If he wants to play ball let him play but if he wants to be a clown let him join the circus.

Well, I see Jimmy Pedace the feller what's known as Mr. Duwell has become a scribe for a Norwich evening paper. That kid oughta make good cause he sure hands out a mean line and is a popular young feller and a hustler. I suppose his first article will be "How I became a Editor after being a Tinsmith," or "From Tinsmith to Editor." Well, I'm glad to see them young fellers get along. I wish him the best of luck.

The boy friend was telling me a good one about a feller what goes into a bank in town and goes up to the window and says "I wanta borrow five bucks." The feller at the window says "Well, that's a small sum but I'll see what I can do," so he calls Charlie outa the room. Charlie comes out and asks him what he wants and the feller tells him saying he's got good security so Charlie lets him have the five bucks and the feller pays the 35 cents interest in advance. "What's your security," asks Charlie and the feller pulls out $10,000 in Liberty bonds and throws 'em on the desk. "Wow," says Charlie "what you borrowing five bucks for when you got all this kale?" "Well," says the feller, "It's this way. Up the street to another bank they charges four bucks for a safety deposit box and now if I borrows five bucks on them you gotta keep 'em safe for 35 cents." Gosh, that feller ought be a riot in business.

Well, Ed, I don't know nothing more of interest this week, so I guess I better call it off and say good-bye.

Yours as ever,

SUSIE.

FUGAZY PLANNING MORE BOUTS FOR THIS SUMMER

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—Promoter Humbert J. Fugazy announced today the opening of negotiations for 15-round matches between Paul Berlenbach and Mike McTigue, and Tommy Loughran and Young Stribling, to be held at Ebbets Field during the second week in August. He plans to bring the victors together to untimately produce a challenger for Jack Delaney, newly crowned light-heavyweight champion.

Fugazy already has reached tentative terms with the managers of Berlenbach, McTigue and Loughran and he is awaiting a report from a representative in Miami, Fla., on the result of a conference with "Pa" Stribling.

Berlenbach will supplant Jack Delaney as an opponent for Francis Charles, light-heavyweight champion of Europe, in a 15-round match at Ebbets Field the first week in August, Fugazy announced.

"Delaney's sprained thumb necessitates a postponement of this match," Fugazy said, "but Berlenbach has consented to fulfill the engagement.

"Pete Reilly has assured me he will have Delaney in shape some time in September and ready for a contest with the survivor of the elimination matches I am planning," Fugazy asserted.

YANTIC A. A. AND TOWN TEAM PLAY TIE GAME

With the score tied at two and two rain interfered and stopped a pretty battle that was being staged between the Yantic A. A. and Taftville Town Team at Yantic on Sunday afternoon. Lamory of the Towners scored in the first half of the ninth inning what might have proved to have been the winning run had not rain interfered and the run not counted.

J. Lamphere of Yantic allowed but five hits and sent eleven men back to the bench via the strikeout route. P. Finn was in excellent form, the Yantic batters being able to gather but seven hits, three of which were made by J. Wheeler. The fielding feature of the game was contributed by S. Finn when he ran from left field into center and caught R. Wheeler's high fly which should have been caught by Lamory who was daydreaming at the time. The score:

The Eastern Conn. Power Co. team, leaders of the Norwich Twilight league, will play the second game of the series with Taftville A. A. on Wednesday evening at the Duwell field. Taftville is out to take Wednesday night's game and Manager Troland will probably use either Rabbitt Gauthier, no-hit pitcher, or Lefty Jarvis in the box. Simcox or Lefty Dugas will pitch for the E. C. P.

CUBS SLUG OUT 9 TO 5 VICTORY OVER GIANTS

CHICAGO, July 19.—(AP)—Chicago drove Scott off the mound in the fourth inning today and defeated the New York Giants 9-5 in a slugging match. He held the Giants safe until the eighth inning when he weakened, the Giants bunching hits for one run.

Stephenson with four hits and Wilson and Grimm led the attack for the locals while Young showed best for the Giants. Freigau was ordered out of the game by Umpire McLaughlin for protesting too strenuously when called out on strikes. Score:

The East Ends won an exciting game from St. Joseph's in the Twilight league Monday evening by the score of 5 to 4. As a result of their victory the East Siders went into second place in the league with 4 victories and 2 defeats. It was a game replete with fielding thrills, with Moore's sensational catch of L. Gilbert's short fly in the final inning heading the list.

Files twirled a fine game for the winners. He allowed but seven hits and struck out ten. In the last two innings, the Saints made five of their seven hits, but could do little with Files' offerings with men in a scoring position.

Eddie Koslowski started for the Saints but his wildness caused him to give way to Nap Liberty in the second inning and Nap finished the game. Nap although touched for six hits in the last five innings, kept them well scattered and succeeded in holding the East Ends to one run.

The East Ends drew first blood in the contest, scoring five runs in the first inning. Gaudette walked as a starter and was forced by Leo Morin. Moore walked. Allard hit to Benjamin, and when the latter threw wild to second in an attempt to catch Leffingwell, running for Moore, Morin scored, and Leffingwell went to third. Allard stole second, and both he and Leffingwell tallied on Tim Coughlin's double to center. E. Papineau singled over second scoring Coughlin, and took second on the throw-in to the plate. J. NOANK

A small crowd of fans turned out to see the Hammer nine lose its first game of the season to the fast going Shamrock tea mof New London, at Rosele field, 11 to 4. It was a fine game until the fifth inning and then the boys with green clover leaf found the curves of the big righthander Barry, when hits meant runs. The Hammer nine did not play its usual game and was weak with the stick, the bases were full two and three times but they could not bring the rum. Walsh led his team with the at ick, getting 3 hits, 2 two-base hits; Wolverston got 2 hits and C. Patterson 2 hits. Two double plays were pulled off by the Hammer team, C. Patterson to Bennett and Wolverton to Bennett. Morris Brown pitcher for New London kept the Hammer nine well checked with men on bases; his slow ball sent many men back to the bench with strike-outs. In the eighth inning with two men out for New London and the inning looked good for a goose egg, and Mgr. Charles Chester told Ryan to start the fireworks, and he did. When the smoke of the battle was over there were five runs across the pan. Patty Sullivan was covering first base for New London and never made a error and made some great catches. He used to play in the Old Corner league some years ago. Charles Ellis was bat boy. He had a suit with a black Hammer on the shirt.

inseparable companions—

P. A. and jimmy-pipe joy

YES, indeed. Prince Albert and pipe-pleasure go together like "fair and colder," "Romeo and Juliet," "song and dance." Inseparable companions . . . in fair weather and foul. Wherever you see one, you see the other. Prince Albert means jimmy-pipe joy . . . precisely that!

P. A. is cool as picnic lemonade. Cool and consoling when problems press. Sweet and fragrant as wind-blown blossoms. Mild with a mildness that lets you smoke all you want, morning to midnight. Yet with sufficient body to let you know you are smoking. Nicely balanced!

You'll like the taste of this fine old pipe tobacco. More men have liked it than any other brand. This is a matter of record. Quality through and through. Real tobacco for real men. That's Prince Albert. Kind to your tongue and throat. Friendly in spirit and friendly in fact.

If you haven't smoked P. A., you can't possibly know how much deep-down satisfaction that old jimmy-pipe can give you. No matter how set you think you are, buy a tidy red tin of Prince Albert today. Tamp a load into your pipe and take a deep drag. Good? You said it!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

Latex-treated Web Cord

An invention of the United States Rubber Company technicians. The cords are laid parallel without tie-threads, and soaked in virgin rubber Latex, which forms an elastic web through and through and between the cords. Important because it gives the cord structure maximum strength and maximum flexibility

Answering Some Further Questions about Latex-treated Web Cord

NOTE—So great an interest has been shown in this new construction because of the service given by United States Royal Cord Tires on passenger cars and busses that a further explanation of this patented process has been suggested.

Q—Is treating cords with Latex entirely new in tire building?
A—Yes. Until this process was developed by the United States Rubber Company, the use of Latex before it had been coagulated into crude rubber had never been used in tire building.

Q—Is the process patented?
A—Yes. The process is patented and owned by this Company.

Q—What are its advantages?
A—The tire engineer's ideal is a tire thin and flexible as a soap bubble and strong as steel. The more you can add to a tire's strength without increasing its weight the better.

Latex-treated Web Cord provides the strength and flexibility without adding unnecessary weight.

Q—Is it possible to make the cord structure of a tire too heavy?
A—Yes. Just as a cable made of many strands of fine and highly tempered wire can be stronger than a heavier iron bar, so the cord structure of a tire can be made strong, yet light and flexible, through this process.

Q—How does treating cords in Latex give additional strength?
A—Latex is virgin rubber just as it comes from the tree.

There are no chemicals in Latex to destroy the natural oils in the cotton or to weaken the cord fibre.

Each cord in a United States Tire is run through a tank of Latex by means of the machine shown in the illustration above.

The cords are then laid side by side and drawn up over heated rollers which evaporate the water in the Latex, producing a rubberized fabric of cotton cords and pure rubber.

Each cord is impregnated and surrounded by rubber, and attached to its neighboring cord with an elastic rubber web.

Q—Are there any other advantages?
A—Yes. In the old cord fabric, the main strands in the cord structure were tied to each other with fine threads.

Latex-treated Web Cord has none of these cross-tie threads and this source of internal friction is therefore eliminated.

By looking inside of a Royal Cord Tire and comparing it with tires made of the old cord fabric you will see that the Royal Cord has a much smoother and evener appearance.

THIN CHILDREN ARE SICK

O'Brien Boy Gains 11 Pounds With New Form of Natural Flesh Builder.

It is not natural for children to be thin and scrawny. If they are well and healthy, they should be gaining weight right up to their twentieth year.

Many children, however, with their young delicate digestive organs do not get from their daily food the vital elements of life itself—the important vitamins and the organic salts of lime, iron and phosphorous.

The son of George G. O'Brien of Mahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months he gained eleven and one-half pounds and feels and looks one hundred per cent better. And what brought him back to sturdy strength was the new concentrated form of Cod Liver Extract known as McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Every physician and mother, too, knows that as a body builder and appetite creator that nothing can compare with Cod Liver Extract. But its nasty, fishy taste and odor have prevented many children from enjoying its benefits. Now Science has removed all the disadvantages for in McCoy's Tablets you can give them all the vital food factors of Cod Livers and at the same time other valuable and well-known body builders.

The results from the use of McCoy's Tablets have been so remarkable in literally thousands of cases that they are now sold by Lee & Osgood Co. or your favorite druggist anywhere with a specific guarantee that if you do not add at least 5 pounds of healthy flesh after 30 days' use your money will be instantly refunded.

Don't let the lack of the vital elements of strength and health spoil your child's future life. Remember as his health is built in youth depends his health in old age. Assure him of a sound foundation, for a strong virile body, by giving him McCoy's Tablets today. 60 tablets 60 cents.

Walter Dietz announces his purchase of a large bakery . . . to bake the famous DIETZ BREAD

MR. WALTER DIETZ has bought the Dolly Madison bakery.

He wishes to announce that this bakery is now under his own personal control and management.

For some months he has been reorganizing the plant and equipping it to supply the homes of Springfield and the neighboring towns with the fine bread which has so long been associated with the Dietz name. He believes that only the independent, locally owned and locally managed bakery can supply the housewives of New England with the fine quality bread their particular tastes demand.

This new loaf is better than ever

THEREFORE he takes pleasure in announcing that the new Dietz Bread is ready—the best bread he has ever baked. He used to consider his old loaf perfect—with the perfection only years of experience, the finest ingredients and a wonderful recipe could bring.

But new experience has brought him even further skill, taught him the secret of new improvements. These Mr. Dietz has used in making the new Dietz Bread. He is glad to assure the women of New England that he believes this bread is even better than the bread which, a few years ago, seemed perfect.

He has installed in the Dolly Madison bakery a wonderful new type of oven. It insures a new uniformity and dependability in baking which gives added tenderness to the firm loaves, greater crispness to the evenly browned crust. With this new oven two bakings a day are possible, so that the delicious loaves reach your grocer twice a day—fresher than ever before!

Your own choice of ingredients

DIETZ BREAD is made of the same fine ingredients you would use in your own kitchen. But the flavor has a richer wheatiness because instead of just the one kind of flour you use at home, several fine flours are blended to give unvarying gluten strength and richness.

The ingredients are constantly tested—they must measure up to an inflexible standard of quality and purity. They are so skilfully mixed the bread has a new finer texture—firm, yet so soft and fresh it melts deliciously in the mouth.

Ask today for Dietz Bread. Your grocer has it. Its red and green wrapper with the homey farmhouse and New England maples is an invitation to enjoy Mr. Walter Dietz's marvelous baking skill in the best bread he ever made. Dolly Madison Baking Corporation, Springfield, Mass.

A delicately browned, crisp crusted loaf that slices smooth and even—is softer, fresher, tastes better.

COMMISSIONER RESTORES LICENSE TO JACOB LINICUS, AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 19—Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the return of the driver's license of Jacob Linicus, Glenwood park. The license was suspended two months ago, following Linicus being prosecuted in the police court on a charge of reckless driving in running his automobile by a motionless trolley car on Montauk avenue. The trolley car was discharging passengers and one of them, a young woman, was struck and seriously injured.

Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the driver's license of Peter Smith, Thames shipyard, suspended.

BUZZ CARS AND BOOZE GET OFFENDERS INTO COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 19—Frank L. Lovell, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, was fined $100 when in the police court this morning, for operating an automobile while he was under the influence of liquor. Lovell did not deny that he was guilty. Perhaps he could not deny the fact for a bottle of whiskey and bottles of beer were found in the car when Sergeant Samuel Hick held up the sailor. So Lovell loses his license and his money also. That makes his drunk pretty expensive—so costly that he will remember it for a considerable time.

Felice Nitolo, a Brooklyn chauffeur, met a sailor friend in New York Sunday. The sailor had bought a second hand car, but he was in a dilemma to get it to New London. Felice was equal to the occasion and volunteered to operate the car here. He succeeded in doing that and he would have been all right had he controlled his speed and waited his opportunity to get where he was going. Instead of doing that he cut in ahead of a car in which Waldo Miner, Mrs. Miner and their infant were riding. He went so close to the Miner car that all in it were frightened. Mr. Miner complained of the recklessness of the Brooklyn chauffeur and asked for his arrest. Then it became known to Mr. Miner that Nitolo was without funds and that a penalty would take him to jail, so the prosecutor was asked to show the accused man any leniency that was consistent with an enforcement of the laws for the safety of autoists. Nitolo was allowed to go back to Brooklyn after he arranged for the payment of the costs of his trial.

Joseph Zelesky invited friends from Colchester to his home on North Bank street Sunday. When they arrived they had such a good time that Joseph became intoxicated. Then, he said, he fell asleep. His wife sought to arouse him that he might entertain his guests, but she was so strenuous that Joe lost his composure and grabbing her he squeezed her so that she yelled with vigor, enough to arouse the police. Policeman Philopena brought Joseph to the station and locked him up. He explained to the court what occurred and was released on a suspended judgment of $10.

Herbert Vaux Thomas, a youth from Niantic got into court by turning his car on State street directly into traffic. He had driven a car across the continent, going from Niantic to San Francisco, without a mishap. He said he had, as a schoolboy at Bulkeley, observed other drivers turn on State street, so he decided he would do the same thing as he did not consider there was any traffic there that was of consequence. Judge Prince let him off with a reprimand.

These cases out of the way, the drunks had their turn to take their medicine. Harold Smith, of Mystic, was fined $10 because while he was in this city drunk he abused an autoist without any cause whatever.

Patrick Murphy was found drunk and down on North Bank street. The fact that he has a large family saved him from the payment of a fine or the serving of a term in jail.

Maurice Connell was also charged with intoxication, but leniency was shown him because of his previous good character.

Joe Lessolt was drunk on a train that came from Stamford. He would not give up his transportation ticket when it was demanded by the conductor. The story he told was found to be true, so he was allowed to keep on and get to his destination, in Providence.

Samuel Green, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Manna Gorra and infant daughter, 116 Williams street; Mrs. John Anderson and infant son, 250 Coleman street; Mrs. George Foote, Stonington; Victor Montes, Nelseco hotel, Groton; Mrs. William Arnone and infant daughter, 205 Shaw street; Mrs. John Cook and infant daughter, 816 Main street; Miss Grace Estey, 76 Golden street, and Allen H. Harris, Millstone, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

The funeral of Luizi Ciampi, former well known Waterford granite worker, whose death occurred there Friday, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by a large assemblange of mourners. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons, with Rev Luke Fitzsimons deacon and Rev. Raymond O'Callahan sub-deacon. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Norten Olsen and Nissena G. Olsen have sold a house and lot on Crescent street to John E. Carney and Margaret M. Carney.

Letitia C. Maxson has sold a building lot on Ocean avenue to Charles M. and Lillian A. Dunn.

New London Home Owners' association has sold a house and lot on Broad street to Frances Barnes.

Lloyd Hancock, sailor, stationed at the submarine base, today requested the New London police to notify him in the event that his Ford coupe is observed about the city. The car is supposed to be carrying registration, 98-770, Maine issue.

Patrolman William Manice found a horse straying about Water street at 4 o'clock this morning and caused the animal to be given shelter at the barn of the Perry ice company, North Bank street, where it awaits being claimed by its owner.

One of the large busses of the Groton & Stonington Traction company driven by George E. Robinson, Mystic, and a commercial truck owned by the National Economy stores and driven by John Christiank, 78 Burnside avenue, Hartford, collided on Main street, near Shapley street, this morning. The bus sustained the greater damage, for three windows and their sashes were ripped away. Luckily there was but few passengers on the bus, which was enroute to the State street terminal.

George J. Keenan, 141 Winthrop street, made complaint to the police last night, stating that his automobile had been damaged as the result of the driver of another automobile being drunk and being responsible for the crash. Keenan stated that the colliding car carried Connecticut registration, N-6205, and at the state police barracks it was stated that the car was registered in the name of Antelma Severini, 95 Bayonet street. Severini's automobile was also damaged.

William H. Harrison, 71, of 22 Chappell street, died Sunday at Lawrence hospital, where he had been a patient several weeks suffering from a complication of diseases. He was a member of Niagara Engine company and for many years was fireman of the company's steamer. Mr. Harrison was a locksmith and a very skilled one. On many occasions Mr. Harrison had been called upon by merchants to open their safes when the mechanism became disabled.

CITY COUNCIL REBUKED BY CHEST AND CHAMBER

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 19.—The chamber of commerce, by Walter S. Garde and the community chest by the same head, took the city council to task this evening in rather tart communications sent to the council, for allowing the selling of flowers on the streets of this city recently to aid the children of strikers who were without employment at Passaic, N. J. The communications in brief told the council that it would be to its credit in the future to exercise more caution in granting permission to solicit funds for any purpose that had not received the sanction or endorsement of the bodies addressing the council through Walter S. Garde. When the communications had been read by the clerk, Councilor Scott resented the assumption of authority on the part of the community chest and the chamber of commerce to address the council as had been done. He pointed out that the council was wholly within its rights in doing what it had done. He considered that the council had been unduly criticised for its actions in permitting the sale of flowers for a single day in order that the hungry and needy children of the idle mill hands of Passaic might be benefitted. He said that while the chest had some 19 different sources of charity, there were other charities which the chest did not recognize, and said there might be, and undoubtedly were, other directions in which charity might be extended that were deserving, absolutely. He referred to the near east relief, and the Jewish welfare charity, and said there were others not mentioned.

Mayor Scott told the members of the council they were not to be guided by the community chest nor the chamber of commerce, but it was well, in his opinion, to cooperate with those bodies. He said that many things might arise wherein the council should act and added that the chest was not the sole arbiter. "The poor and needy are looked after in great degree by other organizations in the city. Each case would be considered on its merits," he believed.

Councilor Whiton believed the chest was unduly exercised and said that the vote giving the permission to sell flowers was that the sales might be made for a single day. Still he had no objection to the receipt of the communications by the council for filing. So the communications did not apparently impress the council to the extent that they irritated any member.

The Connecticut Motor Transportation company asked for the privilege of placing a sign that would direct attention to the fact that patrons are carried by the busses to Springfield via Hartford. The application went to the city manager with power to grant or refuse to grant the request.

DIRECTOR OF LAW TROLAND IS TO GO ABROAD

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 19.—The city's director of law, Thomas T. Troland, was this evening granted a leave of absence from the city during the period of July 27 to Sept. 12, and he was given authority to designate an assistant who shall serve for him without expense to the city, or at least without compensation by the city. Mr. Troland and his wife are to go to Europe for a few weeks. Councilor Scott introduced the resolution and it was adopted unanimously.

CITY MANAGER PLEASED WITH CITY GOVERNMENT WORK

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 19.—The city council this evening took a long step toward clearing up the matter of the encroachment of the Pequot Bath and Beach club upon land claimed by the city. The council voted to refund to the estate of James D. Lynch and to Lucius E. Whiton taxes which were unlawfully collected upon the land in question during the year 1923, 1924 and 1925. The share which Mr. Whiton will receive is $57.75.

Fifteen applications for permission to construct or alter property were submitted to the city council. There are to be constructed three or more cottages and a bungalow, but the majority of the applications were for permits to alter or add to buildings.

The council voted to name the section at Ocean Beach from Mott avenue to Bentley avenue and across what was formerly the duck pond, so-called. This was in response to a request from the police department to aid in the parking of autos in that section.

City Manager Holt reviewed the work of the city government during the year to Sept. 30 last and found much to praise in it. He said that 2300 feet of sewers had been laid, the efficiency of the fire department apparatus had been increased by the purchase of an extension ladder, that additional sidewalk had been laid, that Ocean Beach had been well taken care of and its popularity increased, the flume and wheel at the old town mill had been renewed and adapted to the work to be done at the mill, that the piggery had shown an increased profit, that some $31,000 of unexpended money had been turned back into the treasury and that the anticipated revenue of the city was increased some $23,000. He also said that an increase made in the water rates would enable the water department to take care of its obligations and to establish a sinking fund for the redemption of its bonds.

Catherine E. O'Keefe gave notice that she would claim damages for injuries sustained by falling on a defective sidewalk in front of the property of Richard Johns.

Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin this afternoon placed an attachment on the markets of Manuel Silva, at Mystic and Pawcatuck, the series of attachments being for merchandise supplied Silva for the conduct of his business and for which he has failed to make payment. It is understood that Silva's liabilities greatly exceed his assets.

An unidentified boy cyclist was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Frank L. Maynard, Old Lyme, this afternoon on Bank street. The boy was taken to the office of a physician where it was found that he had sustained only bruises.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Colorful Monte Carlo, the "playground of the world," is the setting for Robert Kane's latest production for First National, "The Reckless Lady," which is booked for showing at the Breed theatre Wednesday and Thursday as the main feature of a double attraction.

An all-star cast has been gathered for the film. It is headed by Belle Bennett, Lois Moran, Ben Lyon, James Kirkwood, Lowell Sherman, Marcia Harris and Charlie Murray.

Miss Bennett and Miss Moran both scored a tremendous success in "Stella Dallas." Ben Lyon has appeared in two other Kane productions shown here recently, "The New Commandment" and "Bluebeard's Seven Wives." Kirkwood Sherman and Murray have enriched many pictures by their worthwhile characterizations.

"The Reckless Lady" is an adaptation by Sada Cowan of the novel of the same name by Sir Philip Gibbs, noted English author. It was produced under the direction of Howard Higgin.

One of the most thrilling motion pictures produced this season is "The People vs. Nancy Preston," an all star production featuring Marguerite de la Motte and John Bowers. It will be displayed at the Breed theatre as the second feature. The scenes are laid in the underworld of New York and many of the situations are said to be exciting and appealing. Frankie Darro has a good juvenile part.

Broadway Theatre

Harold Lloyd's latest Pathe comedy, "Girl Shy" was shown yesterday to a highly appreciative audience. In fact their laughter at his efforts seemed to have no let-up whatsoever. Harold is seen as a small town youth who is bashful to a painful extreme, and he certainly makes the part one of continuous laughs.

There is a really dramatic story to "Girl Shy" as well as the laugh element. The performance given by Lloyd as the hero wins the hearts of the audience at the start by its naturalness, and laughs follow one after another as a result.

Pretty Jobyna Ralston is seen opposite Lloyd once more in "Girl Shy", which will be at the Broadway theatre thru Wednesday. Others in the cast include Richard Daniels and Carlton Griffin, while the direction was in the capable hands of Fred Newmeyer and Sam Taylor, from the story by Taylor, Ted Wilde, Tim Whelan and Tommy Gray.

"The Miracle of Life," which is that greatest of all emotions, mother-love, is the theme of the much heralded film drama of that title, which is the second feature at the Broadway theatre next week. This S. E. V. Taylor production boasts three great stars as its central characters, the same being Mae Busch, Percy Marmont and Nita Naldi. "The Miracle of Life" first appeared as a novel by Olga Printzlau, and was adapted to the screen by Elisabeth L. Musgrave.

A new Kinograms closes this big double feature program.

In order to make your money last it is necessary to make it first.

Fisher's engineering experts—skilled beyond their calling by virtue of years of continuous research and experimentation with all types of body construction—unhesitatingly aver that none but Body by Fisher—exclusively used by General Motors for Cadillac, Buick, Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile and Pontiac cars—affords the essential virtues of safety, beauty and comfort which characterize every Fisher product. Quite logically the public knows that when any improvement which really gives an enhanced measure of safety, comfort and luxury is perfected, Fisher will be the first to present it just as Fisher has created and been the first to present every important improvement in body design and construction of the past decade.

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—Speculators for the advance continued in control of the price movement in today's stock market but they were rallied upon to absorb a large volume of profit-taking and short selling. The average of 20 leading industrial shares showed a moderate net gain with General Motors crossing 179 to a new record price, but the average of 20 standard rails lost ground.

Outside the stock market, chief financial interest centered in the sensational collapse of French francs to a new low record for all time around 2 1-8 cents. With the exception of causing some liquidation of French bonds this was without influence on the securities markets. Domestic trade news was largely favorable, although a reported softening of scrap steel prices in some districts and the discovery of a new oil field in Texas developed some uneasiness.

Hudson Motors jumped nearly 6 points to 62 7-8 on buying said to be for the account of the same interests which have sponsored the rise in General Motors from a low of 113 1-4 this year to the record top of 179 3-8 established today. Dodge Brothers A moved up over a point to 35 1-2 and Chrysler common and preferred and White advanced a point or so. An announcement was made that Chrysler preferred stock had been listed on the Amsterdam stock exchange. Jordan Motors broke nearly five points to a new low for the year at 21.

The recent denial of an increase in northwestern freight rates has dampened speculative enthusiasm for some of the railroad shares. Lackawanna, however, was bid up over two points on predictions that the June earnings statement would be a recordbreaker for that month. Van Sweringen rails were quiet pending the outcome of the meeting of Pere Marquette directors late today to consider the revised "Nickel Plate" merger terms.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat prices held firm on reports of continued high temperatures in the northwestern, but cotton closed 7 to 13 points lower. Raw sugar advanced 1-32 of a cent a point and coffee prices rallied 26 to 34 points on increased foreign buying. Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent, but heavy offerings forced the rate down to 4 per cent., around noon. The New York Stock Exchange reported that the volume of business was moderate with an ample supply of funds on hand at the close. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Acute weakness of French francs brought about sympathetic selling of other continental currencies in the foreign exchange market, but demand sterling held firm around $4.86. Belgian francs broke over 15 points, being quoted under 3.30 cents, and Italian lire sold down over 7 points around 3 1-8 cents. Other recessions were slight.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drug store.

FATHER SUES SON CLAIMING LATTER DROVE HIM FROM HOME

Martin Harvad, also known as Martin Howard of Lebanon has brought suit in the superior court for this county, against his son, Adolph Harvad (Howard) and his son's wife, Natalie Harvad (Howard) of Lebanon to recover damages of $4,500 for an alleged breach of contract. According to the papers in the suit, filed Monday with the clerk of the court in this city, the plaintiff in 1924, then residing at Beaver's Falls, Penn., turned into the hands of his son $4,500 to be held by the son and returned to the plaintiff or to be otherwise disposed of by order of the plaintiff.

The complaint alleges that the son paid out for hospital and medical services for the plaintiff's benefit, $450 The plaintiff has many times asked the defendant to return the balance of the money, which the defendant refused to do but put same to his own use, the complaint charges, except as hereinafter set forth.

July 11, 1924, the plaintiff and defendant entered into an agreement by which, for consideration of $2,000 theretofore received by the son, being part of the $4,500, the defendant agreed to support the plaintiff upon a farm in Lebanon owned by the son, as long as the plaintiff lived. Natalie Howard had full knowledge of these facts.

The plaintiff lived with them until about June, 1926, when he was ordered and driven from the farm by the defendant. May 10, 1926, the defendant, Adolph, conveyed the farm to his wife, and likewise conveyed to his wife all other property then owned by him. The conveyance was made, it is charged, to prevent the plaintiff from having his support as aforesaid, and to prevent the plaintiff from recovering his money. The plaintiff now brings suit for damages of $4,500 and also asks that the conveyance of the real estate be declared null and void as to the plaintiff, and be set aside and cancelled.

Archeveche, De Malines.

July 1, 1926.

Dear Madam: Kindly forgive me for having been so long in acknowledging the very kind letter of sympathy you sent to our beloved cardinal, and which was delivered here a few days before his death.

It was a great comfort to him to know that so many were praying for him and he told me more than once that he blessed all those who did so. So you and all your members had your share in those last benedictions.

I send you herewith a memorial card and a picture. The latter touched his eminence's face before his burial.

Thanking you again for your sympathy.

Yours sincerely,

On their arrival at the beach, ice cream cones, pop corn, etc., were in order and every child enjoyed a trip on the merry-go-round. After a delightful afternoon the return trip was made over the Raymond hill road and home by the Norwich-Middletown highway.

STATE CAMPAIGN TO ERADICATE POULTRY DISEASES

The state board of control has authorized James M. Whittlesey, commissioner of domestic animals, to proceed with a campaign to eradicate certain poultry diseases which are doing considerable damage in Connecticut flocks.

The legislature appropriated $12,000 to fight these diseases and Commissioner Whittlesey notified the board of control that it was doubtful that this amount would be sufficient for the work. He requested a transfer of $5,000 from another appropriation for the purpose, but the board advised him to go ahead with his present resources with the idea of securing a deficiency appropriation from the next session of the legislature.

POETRY

All These I Own

I own the memory of whispering trees
Which gossip in the wind at early dawn;
A roving cloud's swift shadow on the lawn,
And petals like soft snow adrift the lawn.

And mine the spectral cry of wild sky loon,
The gulls like silver foam upon the bar;
And scented purple dusks beneath a moon
Shining and crescent like a scimitar.

I own these mine; the rocks firm-set and cool
Where barnacles and shaggy seaweeds are,
Token of vagrant tides; this shadowy pool
Which mirrors back the radiance of a star.

Mine is the clamor in the thunder's roll
Tossed as by might of Titans from on high,
Mine is the splendor as the lightning scrolls
Cleaves a swift pathway in the riven sky.

I own the dreaming haze on distant hills,
The long pale pathway of a winding lane,
The nodding cowslips, fern and daffodils,
The magic curtain of a summer rain.

Mine is the smell of freshly-furrowed earth,
The gleam of sunlight on a running brook;
Mine is the wonder of each spring's new birth,
The autumn fields and grain within the stook.

And mine the mystery of a velvet night
Across whose sky a far-flung jeweled
Arches the heavens, scintillant with light;
These memories are mine—all these I own.

—Mary Chase Witherbee in Christian Science Monitor.

Light of dim mornings; shield from heat and cold;
Balm for all ailments; substitute for praise;
Comrade of those who plod in lonely ways
(Ways that grow lonelier as the years wax old);
Tonic for fears; check to the over-bold;

Kind, but relentless, on our wayward days;

The thorns endure; surgeon, who humas hearts
Seachest with probes, though the death touch be given;

Tyrant relentless o'er our blisses all;—
Oh, can it be, thine other name is Heaven?

PARISIANS ARE FURIOUS OVER SLUMP OF THE FRANC

Crowds in the Streets Are Seeking for Those to Hold Responsible—Populace is Venting Its Spleen on Foreigners, Especially Americans—M. Herriot, the New Premier, —Extra Police Guards Are Curbing the Great Rush to Was Hooted When He Called on President Doumergue Buy Foreign Issues—Because of the Gravity of the Situation the Herriot Ministry Will Appear Before Parliament This Afternoon, 24 Hours Earlier Than at First Planned.

(By The Associated Press)

The French franc crashed to new low records Tuesday. It was close to 50 to the dollar in Paris and fell to its lowest level in history—1.95 1-2 cents for one franc—in Wall street. The par value of the franc is 19.30 cents.

Impatience among the French people and growing anxiety in business quarters lest the present economic crisis develop into a national calamity accompanied this unprecedented collapse in the value of French currency.

The Paris produce exchange sought to prevent speculation in sugar by forbidding all deals at prices higher than last Friday's closing.

The silk industry in Lyons, of which City Premier Herriot is mayor, openly assailed parliament in an outspoken address to the presidents of the chamber of deputies and senate. The industry is faced with disaster because of inability to buy the necessary raw silk abroad at the present value of the franc.

The sharp break of the French franc in New York carried with it also the Belgian franc and the Italian lira, but not to the same extent.

In Brussels the Belgian franc was quoted at 43.95 to the dollar, Monday it stood at 43 to the dollar. A few days ago the Belgian franc was lower than the French franc, and it was predicted in financial circles that by reason of the new measure promulgated—the power granted to King Albert to act as financial dictator and the creation of the National Railroads company—the Belgian franc would soon pass the French franc in value on the exchange market.

The fascist government, too, has taken vigorous measures to stop the slump of the lira. Almost all luxuries have been banned and economies within the government effected.

At Buenos Aires the French franc fell to a new low, cable rates on Paris being 46.66 for one gold peso.

ANXIETY IN BUSINESS CIRCLES IN FRANCE

PARIS, July 20.—(AP)—The franc's drop to sensational low levels is marked by a corresponding rise in the temper of the Paris population. It went to 49.38 to the dollar today, and after the close of the bourse the dollar flirted with 50 francs, but the franc never quite got down to two American cents.

Deep anxiety prevails in business and financial circles, made evident by numerous manifestations of crowds in the streets. Parisians are still seeking for those to hold responsible; they booted the deputies in front of the chamber after the fall of the Briand cabinet, and they jeered M. Herriot, the new premier, when he called on President Doumergue. But foreigners, especially Americans, appear fair for the populace to vent its spleen.

Thus far no foreigners have been injured, the manifestations consisting largely of boots, catcalls and insults. Numerous individual clashes have occurred in the cafes and restaurants, culminating last night in an attack upon a caravan filled with Americans visiting the heights of Montmartre. The sightseers' loud talk was resented by the citizens of Montmartre, who surrounded the car in a threatening manner.

Numbering about 100 they tried to drag the passengers from the car, but the Americans fought back and there was a lively mixup for a few minutes, until police reserves appeared and dispersed the rioters.

There have also been instances of foreign visitors inviting trouble. This afternoon three youths said to be from Connecticut, stood in St. Sulpice square, insulting passersby, tripping and striking them. They were eventually surrounded by an ugly crowd who belabored the Americans. The youths were taken to a police station, but released after a warning.

The police are taking extraordinary precautions to prevent such efferescence developing into regular rioting. The forces have been doubled around the stock exchange and the Elysee Palace, and uniformed men stand guard near the broker's offices. The government has forbidden the announcement of the rate for the dollar and sterling by radio and is considering the possibility of preventing the posting of the rate in places visible from the streets in Paris. Already this has been done at Marseilles.

The franc fell steadily and rapidly during most of the day, with only a few fluctuations upward, and that for short periods. At the opening of the bourse the rate was 47.25 to the dollar and 220 for sterling, well below the closing prices of yesterday—46.43 and 214.50.

The quotation at one o'clock was 48.65 and 232.50, and the closing rate 49.25 and 233.50. After the bourse closed the franc was quoted at 49.38, and even lower than that, but it failed to reach 50 to the dollar.

Exciting scenes were witnessed during the closing hours of the bourse. Extra police guards were busy curbing the great rush to buy foreign issues with dividends payable in stable currency and to sell domestic securities, on which a capital levy was feared.

MINISTERIAL DECLARATION BEFORE PARLIAMENT TODAY

PARIS, July 20.—(AP)—Because of the gravity of the situation in France, the Herriot ministry will appear before parliament 24 hours earlier than at first planned. The ministerial declaration will be presented Wednesday afternoon instead of Thursday.

After the cabinet council broke up this morning, M. De Monzie, minister of finance, returned to his headquarters, where with his technical advisers he worked far into the night putting the finishing touches on his financial plan, which he will set forth in the chamber of deputies tomorrow.

Premier Herriot's second cabinet is being greeted with a rapidly spreading cry for a "committee of public safety." Two hundred and forty deputies have signed a demand for a species of dictatorship, which, though not expressly intended to be modelled on the revolutionary body dominated by Danton and Robespierre, ought, in the opinion of the prime movers to have sufficient power to act with energy and without parliamentary obstruction.

Among the signers are many members of the radical group presided over by M. Herriot as well as many members of the other groups of the old coalition of the left. The republican socialists are the moving spirits; heretofore they have been staunch supporters of Herriot, but they declare now the situation requires something stronger than the ministry just formed.

Deputy Morinaud, who began the movement, is still circulating the manifesto and obtaining new signatures. Soon as he has a majority of the chamber the manifesto will be handed to President Doumergue.

The manifesto will, it is declared, call upon the president to form a national union cabinet that will cast all party considerations aside.

Those who are supporting the demand point to the fact that M. Herriot's cabinet is already talking of asking parliament for 'special liberti s' to deal with the financial question which they regard as only camouflage for the "full powers" which M. Caillaux asked for. They declare that if M. Herriot regarded the Brian-Caillaux ministry unworthy the confidence implied by a grant of full powers, the Herriot ministry offers no better guarantee, and they contend that President Doumergue ought to be given an opportunity to chose a man to form a ministry to which the necessary powers can be given.

When the ministerial declaration is submitted to the chamber Wednesday, it is expected the Washington debt agreement will be passed over without mention.

As the policy of the ministry is to borrow no more money abroad and ask for no more credits, one of the reasons for ratifying the Franco-American accord disappears, and since the supporters of the new government are in large majority opposed to the settlement there will be no surprise if it is side tracked.

There was much speculation in the lobbies of the chamber this afternoon as to Ambassador Berenger's position in this eventuality, and the belief was expressed that he would not return to Washington.

The lease of life accorded the new government in the lobby talk varied from three days to three months. A good many deputies expect the government to fall immediately after presenting itself in the chamber; others are inclined to think that a majority of the deputies will allow the government toms to bring in its financial measures.

HOW BANKERS VIEW THE DEPRECIATION OF FRANC

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—The tumble of the franc to its lowest value in history today caused general speculative uneasiness in Wall street, and was considered responsible for heavy stock sales and centered on French political problems the eyes of bankers, but created no demand for bargain price franc buying.

The unprecedented fall of the franc lowered its value to 1.95 1-2 cents, a drop of 16 1-2 cents in the last 24 hours. Par is 19.3 cents.

Wall street reacted to wild rumors of rioting in Paris streets, a panic at the Bourse, although they lacked confirmation.

Foreign exchange experts said that 95 per cent of the selling of French money in Wall street came from Europe and that Americans, still nursing the wounds of their experiences with the debacle of the Germany mark, are standing on the sidelines watching the sliding franc today's quotation represented a loss of 13 1-4 points from yesterday.

An average of 25,000,000 francs are sold in Wall street daily while the totals for a day's operations since the flight from the franc began has reached over 100,000,000. Foreign exchange experts who are in cable touch with the European capitals declare that the descent of the franc shows an insistent effort on the part of many Frenchment to acquire gold currencies of other countries and that speculation on the bear side is aiding in depressing the French currency.

Foreign exchangemen say unhesitatingly that until inflation ceases there can be no stabilization of the franc, and that this will probably not be accomplished until the several political parties sink their differences and jealousies and meet on a common ground of action.

"Europe sets the figure for the franc each day and we follow it," said a foreign exchange operator for a Wall street bank this afternoon. "The reports from Paris that America is responsible for the decline of the franc is not to be credited. There is little or no speculation in the franc going on in the United States. In fact the bulk of our selling comes for foreign account, and represents a clear effort to obtain gold currencies.

"This is the time of year when the balance of trade runs against Great Britain with cotton bills running heavy and yet sterling is strong at a little over $4.86; when it really should be about $4.86. Swiss francs and Holland florins are strong, all of which shows evidence of the flight of the franc."

VALENTINO ANGERED BY INTIMATIONS OF FEMINITY

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Pink powder puffs, or those of any other color are most repulsive to Rudolph Valentino.

He used several varieties of language today in making this clear as he admitted challenging to a duel the anonymous writer of an editorial in the Sunday Chicago Tribune who linked him with this mark of feminity.

His challenge was contained in a letter mailed after he had read the editorial and its authentility was doubted until Valentino verified the authorship.

"Ever since 'the sheik' came out," he said today, "some of the people have started making fun of it. The result was that every young effeminate man or every juvenile criminal has been called a sheik. Although the sheik was a very manly character, the opposite impression became prevailant and these persons sought to give the impression that I was the original of a low type of character.

"This is beneath contempt, but such a public statement demands a public answer."

Valentino became very heated while expressing his feelings, and flushed beneath his coat of tan. His expression, belief, the immaculate dress slave bracelet and other characteristics by which he is known.

"Whether my challenge is answered or not," he continued, "I'll find the writer of that editorial or anyone else who follows his steps. I will have three weeks to spend in Chicago if necessary."

Valentino in his challenge recognized that dueling is illegal in Illinois so offered to settle the affair in a boxing or wrestling match.

His challenge was signed, 'in utter contempt," and the concluding paragraph follows:

"Hoping I will have an opportunity to demonstrate to you that the wrist under a slave bracelet may snap a real fist into your sagging jaw and that I may teach you respect of a man even though he happens to prefer to keep his face clean."

TWO MEN ACQUITTED IN NEW YORK LIQUOR CASE

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Trial of members of the so-called Dwyer $40,000,000 rum ring was marked today by dismissal of indictments against two of the ten defendants on trial and removal of the veil of mystery from the figure of A. Bruce Bielaski, government "under cover" man.

The dismissal action came toward the close of the day's session, when Judge Mack ruled that there was insufficient evidence on which to hold Louis Mann and Harry E. Rainforden for trial. This left as defendants in the present trial William V. Dwyer, alleged leader of the ring, and seven others. Six more men indicted with those now on trial will be tried later.

Bielaski was questioned by defense counsel today concerning money he had paid to several government witnesses. Counsel chiefly sought to find out just who he was and what position he held.

The witness testified he was personal representative in New York of General Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement. He said he received a government salary of $1,100 a month and that his office rent was also partly paid by the government. He told of paying varying sums of money for the government to confessed rum runners appearing as prosecution witnesses in the present trial.

Throughout the trial the name of Bielaski has been inserted in mysterious references to him as "this man Bielaski." Not until today was his connection with the government brought into the light. He answered all questions put to him without protest.

SIX DROWNING ACCIDENTS IN NEW ENGLAND YESTERDAY

BOSTON, July 20.—(AP)—Six drowning accidents were reported in New England today, the hottest day of the year, and the hottest July 20, but three, on record at the local weather bureau. All the drowned were children or young people who were seeking relief from the heat by bathing or boating.

The temperature in Boston, which was 65 at 10 a. m., rose steadily until it reached 90 at 3 p. m. Only one prostration in Boston, however, had been reported up to mid-afternoon. Thunderstorms, forecast for tonight, held some promise of relief.

At Marshfield, Mass., the body of Ellen C. Murray, 10, was recovered from South River, where she was drowned when she stepped from a sand bar into deep water while bathing.

At Leominster, Mass., Philip Santonocito, 16 years old, was drowned when he fell from a raft at the Addison dam in the Monoosnock river.

Bryant Stuart, 16, of Colebrook, N. H., and Leonard Ruggles, 17, of Everett, Mass., were drowned when their boat capsized on Lake Abanoki at Colebrook.

FOUR MORE SCHOONERS JOIN BOSTON'S RUM ROW

BOSTON, July 20.—(AP)—Four more liquor laden schooners showed up on Boston's Rum Row today bringing the total to seven. They were idling along about 30 miles to the east. Standing guard over them were three cruising Coast Guard cutters, three destroyers, and a dozen 75 foot patrol boats. The bright moonlight last night brought the smugglers into such relief that all communication with the shore was cut off. While the Coast Guard officials continue their policy of not announcing the names of the ships on the row, it was learned that two or three of them had left Nova Scotian ports within a few days.

Soviet Leader Died Suddenly in Moscow

F. E. Dzerzhinsky, Long One of the Trusted Lieutenants of Lenin.

MOSCOW, July 20.—(AP)—F. E. Dzerzhinsky, chairman of the supreme council of national economy in the Soviet government and one of the most powerful figures in Soviet Russia, died suddenly today of heart disease at the age of 49.

Felix E. Dzerzhinsky, who long was one of the trusted lieutenants of Lenin, probably was best known while at the head of the Checka or Russia secret service police. Although personally of a dreamy temperament and mild manner, he was inflexible in his pursuit of those whom he considered enemies of the Soviet republic.

Dzerzhinsky originally was a member of the social democratic party of Poland but entered the Russia party, together with the Polish social democratic group in 1906. During his life he spent 11 years in prison because of his revolutionary activities, including three years of penal servitude. He was exile dthree times, escaping each time.

At the time of the Russian revolution in 1917, Dzerzhinsky was still serving a term of imprisonment, but was freed after a general amnesty had been declared. He went to Petrograd in August 1917 and supported the bolshevists, being elected to the central executive committee. He was a member of the war revolutionary committee with whom all power vested in the days of the October, 1917 coup d'etat.

Later he became known as one of chief heads of the government. In time he became chairman of the state political bureau, which corresponds to the department of justice in the United States and chairman of the supreme council of national economy.

LYNCH NO LONGER UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER

NEW HAVEN, July 20.—(AP)—A statement by Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas tonight that Bernard E. Lynch was no longer a United States Commissioner settled a question that has been bothering government officials since July 1.

"Mr. Lynch's term as United States Commissioner expired on July 1," said Judge Thomas when called at his home in Norwalk by the Journal-Courier, "and there will be no reappointment as but one United States commissioner is needed. I have already appointed Robert H. Alcorn to that office."

The former commissioner received his first appointment in 1918 and since that time he has been regularly re-appointed at the end of each term by Judge Thomas. The last appointment filed at the United States court clerk's office named him as commissioner until the first of this month.

When Mr. Alcorn was appointed a short time ago, it was thought he was to become an assistant to Mr. Lynch. Nothing definite on the status of the two men had been learned until tonight.

NEW HAVEN, July 20.—(AP)—Four sergeants in the New Haven police department who were demoted last May and subsequently ordered reinstated by a superior court judge, were today voted restored to the full rank of sergeant by the board of police commissioners. Four of the five members voted in favor of the reinstatements.

The date of restoration of the sergeants concerned, Thomas Reynolds, Michael Quinn, James T. McTiernan and William Doherty, was set as July 16, the date of Judge Arthur F. Ells' reinstatement order.

The unfavorable vote was cast by Commissioner James A. Murray, member of the efficiency committee which recommended the demotion of the men. He accepted the decision of the court, but believed that his committee had been right in its action in the matter.

The corporation counsel is to be asked for a decision on whether the police department was liable for the pay of the men as seargeants while they acted as Grade A policemen.

Coolidge in Advocacy of Coal Legislation

Would Provide Protection for the Consumer in Any Coal Emergency.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 20.—(AP)—President Coolidge adheres to his views of providing protection through legislation for the consumer in any coal emergency while he believes that the government is being administered with every possible attention to sound fiscal policies.

The views of the chief executive on these two questions became known today after a call at the executive offices when he received the newspaper correspondents.

The president spent most of the morning at the offices between visits at White Pine camp of Secretary Dwight Davis of the war department and Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, two close official advisers, whose presence was said to be unrelated and the occasion for only incidental discussions of public questions.

Still another caller was William P. Jackson, republican national committeeman for Maryland, who is spending the summer near here and who stopped to pay his respects.

President Coolidge had no information, it was said, on reported plans of members of the house commerce committee to approach operators and miners in the coal industry this summer with a proposal that their labor disputes be disposed of by conference among themselves.

The president was said to understand the committee had a bill on coal legislation to take up when congress reconvenes in December but to know nothing of the reported move. It was reiterated, however, that Mr. Coolidge as he had made clear before he left Washington, hoped the basic principle of the Watson-Parker railway labor act enacted in June, would be found applicable not only to the coal but to other industries.

Provisions for the calling of a temporary board to adjust differences in event of a coal emergency, and for the appointment of a coal administrator were said to be regarded as fundamental by the president in any contemplated legislation.

"I am absolutely innocent of this charge," Dr. Hanson said. "I am at a loss to understand why I have been arrested. I hav wracked my b i to pl ce the blame for this unfounded charge against me."

Dr. Hanson offered to raise $5,000 bail and return to Boston with his attorney, but Magistrate Morris refused. A physician and a young man are under arrest in Boston in connection with the death of Miss Green, a state ward.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Jessie M. Budlong today filed in superior court her brief in the divorce suit brought by her husband, Milton J. Budlong, of New York and Newport, on grounds of extreme cruelty. When the case was on trial recently here, Judge Blodgett gave the respondent until today to prepare the brief. The petitioner will have three days in which to file a reply, and on the two brief the judge will base his decision.

At the trial Budlong testified that much of the trouble between Mrs. Budlong and himself was due to her social ambitions. He said he had a great deal of affection for his wife but that her conduct made it impossible for them to live together. Last year, Mrs. Budlong attracted considerable notoriety when she tood siege in her husband's New York apartment and three into the street, messages attached to his shirts.

TO RENEW FIGHT FOR FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION

DES MOINES, July 20.—(AP)—The corn belt committee, meeting here to plan a renewed fight for farm relief legislation, today fixed $1.41 as the cost of producing a bushel of corn and adopted that figure as the basis upon which a far return to the farmer should be computed through addition of a "reasonable profit."

In arriving at the $1.41 a bushel cost price figure the value of the land, interest on that value, depreciation and insurance upon buildings, maintenance, the cost and depreciation of machinery, $1,500 a year wages for the farmer and $600 a year for an automobile as a business vehicle, were among the items considered. The figures were represented as for the average American farm of approximately 160 acres.

TREASURY GIVES FIGURES TO SUPPORT SEC'Y MELLON

Report Shows That Great Britain Negotiated a Large Proportion of Its loan "for Purely Commercial as Distinguished From War Purposes"—Acting Secretary Winston Has Itemized the $7,200,000,000 Expended by Great Britain in the United States During the War.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—The treasury today gave figures to support the contention of Secretary Mellon that Great Britain negotiated a large proportion of its loan from the United States "for purely commercial as distinguished from war purposes."

Mr. Mellon's recent discussion of war debt in which he said that all of America's debtors except Great Britain had received actual cancellation of their pre-armistice obligations to this country drew an attack yesterday in the house of commons by Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, who insisted Great Britain's loans were used for war purposes also.

In reply today, acting Secretary Winston of the treasury itemized the $7,200,000,000 expanded by Great Britain in the United States during the war, after America's entry, to show for what purposes the money was used. He made no comment on the declaration of Mr. Churchill that Secretary Mellon had a misapprehension of the facts or had been misquoted. Mr. Mellon is now en route to Europe for a vacation.

Mr. Winston asserted that of the $7,200,000,000 expenditure $760,128,000 was met by Great Britain's "own independent resources," not $3,000,000,000 as stated by Mr. Churchill, and he continued:

"From England's total reported expenditures in America from April 6, 1917, to November 1, 1920, there should be deducted the $1,852,000,000 expenditures for which Great Britain was the purchasing agent for the other allies and for which Great Britain was paid by the other allies from money loaned to them by the United States. This amount was not provided from England's 'own independent resources'.

"This leaves $5,346,000,000. Of this amount, $1,682,000,000 represents exchange and cotton purchases. The greater part of this expenditure was for the maintenance of sterling exchange not necessary for purchases in America, but which enabled England to make purchases in other countries at an undepreciated exchange rate.

"For food and tobacco $2,672,000,000 was spent. A part of this item is probably included in the account out of which England was reimbursed by the other allies and a part was resold by England to its own civil population. To the extent of this resale England avoided the necessity of floating loans in its own country.

"Of the other expenditures $567,877,000 was for interest and principal of England's commercial obligations maturing in America and $261,000,000 was for silver. The total principal advances to England after the armistice were $581,000,000."

CERTIFICATE OF ILLNESS OF CHARLES W. MORSE

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Charles W. Morse, 70 year old financier and shipping man, was described in a physician's certificate today as a paralytic, a victim of hardening of the arteries and heart disease, and as in such a mental state that he is unable to answer ordinary questions coherently.

The document was signed by Dr. B. F. Barker of Bath, Me., who has been attending Mr. Morse and his wife for several years. Mrs. Morse died last week of apoplexy at Bath. Mr. Rockwood asserted he did not see how the aged financier could possibly be placed on trial in his present condition.

ZIEGFELD'S SPECIFICATIONS FOR FEMININE BEAUTY

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Florence Ziegfeld, producer of "girl shows," has issued a 1926 list of specifications for feminine beauty on the stage in which blondes and thin girls are pushed into the back row.

The 1926 girl of the stage, according to Ziegfeld, will be as follows:

She will not be a blonde.

She'll have a curve or two and more dimples than the 1925 girl.

She may be a little taller.

She'll come from refined surroundings and often she'll be a college girl.

He says that men prefer Titian-haired girls and brunettes in general, and that the reputed popularity of blondes arises from their scarcity in a country deprived of a blonde population because of geographical reasons.

The case was appealed from the Meriden city court where they were fined $25 each.

A third woman in the case, a Mrs. Davis, did not appear and her bond was called at the opening of the case today. Mrs. Parsons' $100 bond was signed by Mrs. Rosine. The judge decided that the smaller bonds were insignificant in view of developments in the case today and ordered them increased.

REV MORRIS DEMANDS INDICTMENT FOR MURDER

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 20.—(AP)—A demand the grand jury indict him for the killing of D. E. Chipps, Fort Worth lumberman, so that he can have "a fair and open chance to be cleared," was made here today by Rev. J. Frank Norris.

Dr. Norris is charged by complaint with the murder Saturday of Chipps, who was killed in the office of the First Baptist church when he called to protest against an attack by the pastor on Mayor H. C. Meacham and others.

The fear that the jury, which began its investigation today, would "no bill" him and thus prevent his acquittal of the charge of murder was expressed by Dr. Norris to the Associated Press. The pastor said it was the wish of himself and his congregation that he be indicted.

After examining six witnesses, the jury recessed until tomorrow, with a list of 11 additional witnesses summoned to appear.

REV. NORRIS DEMANDS GUILTY OF IMMORALITY

STATESVILLE, N. C., July 20.—(AP)—The Rev. Ashley Chappell, Asheville minister, was adjudged not guilty of immorality tonight by a trial board of the Southern Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Tonight's verdict means that the minister who was suspended as pastor of the Central Methodist church of Asheville, pending outcome of the trial will be reinstated to the pastorate.

Dr. Chappell's defense was that while passing the rooming house, he became suddenly ill and went in to seek relief. While in the house, police raided it and he was arrested.

The trial court of 13 ministers, sitting in executive session as in the church practice, received from Rev. C. M. Pickens, church prosecutor, documentary evidence regarding the arrest.

STEEL WATCH TOWERS FOR ALABAMA FOREST AREAS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 20.—(AP)—An innovation in Alabama fire control is a group of steel observation towers to be erected in the various timbered areas of the state. The cost will be borne by the government.

"While the ranger seeks the highest points for his observations, his view is often obstructed by timber and ridges. In such cases great additional range of vision is obtained from towers which afford the added elevation necessary to quick fire detection."

CO. C. 100 PER CENT STRONG AT CAMP TRUMBULL, NIANTIC

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, July 20—Company C, 169th infantry, is represented 100 per cent strong at Camp Trumbull, Niantic, according to "specials" sent to this city by Charles F. Curran, who is with the company at camp during this week. There are 92 enlisted men and three officers and "C" is one of the few companies having perfect attendance. The arrival of Private Armand Vertefeuille Sunday made the roll call complete. Following inspection Saturday, Colonel Hunter posted a report of "very good" in appearance, layout of equipment and kitchen cleanliness. Private Alfred Gill, injured during a drill last week, is the only member of the company confined to his quarters. Mess Sergeant Paul C. Webb is being signalled as a great cook. His chow seems to hit the right spot. The unofficial promotion of blanket-sergeant has been conferred on Private Ted Martin and he seems to enjoy the new duties. Private Daniel Wack is now with the 169th Infantry band and the home town boys all cheer for him. George J. Pilhcik is the new mounted orderly for Major Byrd. A forged signature to a telegram caused First Sergeant Arthur J. Caisse unending pain to slick-up and meet his sweet heart-balm from Windham, but the trickery was finally uncovered and Private Bill Donovan seems to wear a guilty look. Private John Shea has been selected as one of the automatic riflemen for the program on Governor's day. Captain (Dr.) W. P. S. Keating shook hands about the camp Monday afternoon. He is returning to this city from Camp Carlysle, Pa.

SPEAKER FROM NEW YORK FOR COUNTY FIELD DAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, July 20.—County Agent Frank L. Davis of Putnam said while in Danielson today that Rush Lewis of New York is to be the principal speaker at the annual field day meeting of the Windham County Farmers' association in August. Mr. Lewis is a speaker of remarkable earnestness and is certain to have much to say that the farmers will have great interest in. Mr. Davis is to issue within a few days some statements relatives to the details of the field day plans.

TOURISTS FOR CANADA NOT LOOKING FOR AN OASIS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, July 20.—There is no great exodus from Danielson to Canada of thirty souls this summer. That was quite a fad three or four years ago, but it has gone the way of many other fads. The great majority going out of this section to Canada this season are not concerned except very mildly with what Canada can do for a thirst for exciting drinks. They are going for visits with relatives and hundreds of families here have relatives across the border.

There was a bicycle at the police station Tuesday and a little mystery as to the ownership of it. The bike apparently had been abandoned in the vicinity of Davis park and remained there a day or two before residents notified the police and Officer John Gebert went to bring it in. Chief John McFarland is of the opinion that the bicycle was stolen and later abandoned.

A crew of linemen of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company was engaged during Tuesday in placing new cross-arms on poles in the business section between Academy and Center streets and doing other work, having in mind the betterment of overhead equipment. Similar work has been underway in School and Academy streets the past fortnight.

Members of the Service battery are near the end of their long grind of field training at Tobyhanna, Pa. They have now entered upon the third week since they left Danielson. The present week end will find them thinking of getting back home. Letters indicate that the camp routine has gone along smoothly and that the men have gained much experience in field artillery work.

A hay crop no greater than 50 to 60 per cent of that in a normal summer seems about all Windham county as a whole can hope for this year. Some farmers say their cutting will be barely a third of the crop of last year. On the whole, the estimate is for about half a normal crop, a circumstance that is not at all pleasing to the farmer, faced with a hay shortage during the late winter and spring months.

Ten machines carrying rooters to support the St. James' baseball team made the trip to Arctic Center and contributed largely by their support to the 6 to 3 victory won by the local boys. It is of interest that seven members of the team hit for extra bases. Tonight the St. James' team goes to Wauregan for a twilight game with the Pee Wee team of that place.

Joseph Choquette, 73, is dead at his home in North Sterling, Mr. Choquette was a native of Canada. He had lived for many years in various parts of the town of Sterling and was a resident at Moosup for a time. Mr. Choquette is survived by his wife.

There are a number of alfalfa fields in Windham county towns this year. Growing of this crop has passed the experimental and demonstration stage in this county, County Agent Davis said Tuesday, and while there is no widespread growing of it a number of farmers find it a valuable thing to include in their year's growing program. It is regarded as very probable that there will be an increased acreage of the crop next year. In ordinary seasons alfalfa does well in eastern Connecticut, the tonnage per acre comparing favorably with states where a specialty is made of this crop.

Here is the result of a casual check-up of motor traffic passing over the Main street crossing of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. in Danielson in a period of an hour and a half that included midnight: Gurdon E. Withey in the space of time mentioned, counted 47 machines moving over the crossing, which is on a double trunk line highway. Of all this number, just one solitary driver took the precaution to stop his machine to see if it would be safe to cross over. In the meantime three fast trains, making no stop here, whizzed over the crossing, unprotected at that hour excepting by an automatic signal gong, no flagman being on duty between 10 p. m. and 5 a. m., the period when the Bar Harbor and State of Maine expresses are whizzing up and down the line, not to mention freights that occasionally come along. With drivers of cars as careless as they are and with no flagman on duty, Danielson cannot forever escape some horrible accident at this crossing. It is bound to come.

Thursday of this week is being anticipated with pleasure by members of the Woman's Relief corps, McGregor post, G. A. R., and Colonel Anderson camp, Sons of Veterans, for the W. R. C. will entertain at the annual outing to be held this year on the grounds and the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kennedy, in Dayville. There is to be a dinner, followed by an afternoon program of diversions. Not even rain can spoil this outing, for there is ample space under cover at the Kennedy property.

Danielson radio fans have been doing some cussing over the interfering broadcasts that are the result of unauthorized use and misuse of wave lengths. The situation, nevertheless, illustrates the need of rigid control of broadcasting stations.

Two machines—one bearing an Oklahoma registration, the other a North Dakota set of markers—were parked near each other in the business section, by chance. The incident suggests the popularity that New England has achieved as a summer resort with the people of the majority of states of the Union.

There is a probability that Danielson will not hurry development of its emergency landing field in view of the fact that the Boston-New York mail planes are not routed over this community, but on a more northerly route.

Summer heat like that of Tuesday sent numbers who had the time and opportunity to seek comfort and cooling breezes at such places as Wildwood park, where there is a free playground for children.

It is understood that it will be considerably later in the summer before work on the newly authorized bridge over the Quinebaug river in Wauregan will be undertaken. This work will block the Wauregan-Brooklyn state highway for through traffic for a number of weeks. The optional bridge getting into and out of Brooklyn will be the one over the Quinebaug river in Danielson.

As the week wears on no new official move in the Agnes Pytka-Raymond Wetherbee case has been made known. It is understood the investigation continues, to establish, if possible, more fully, all details pertaining to the death of the Pytka girl's new-born child, which was found with a crushed skull and weighted with a rock in the river near Wilsonville. On order of Coroner A. G. Bill, Wetherbee continues to be held without bail in the county jail in Brooklyn and the girl remains at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

Danielson is to have another chain store, making the fourth handling various lines of merchandise in this community. The success of the other chain stores is given as the reason of the latest addition, from a well known chain not heretofore represented in this community.

INTER-MARRIAGE BLOTTING OUT ISLAND RACIAL LINEAGE

HONOLULU, July 20 (AP)—Is interracial marriages in Hawaii continue at the present rate, it will be a wise child after a few generations who even knows to what race his ancestors belonged, in the belief of Dr. Romanso Adams, head of the department of sociology at the University of Hawaii.

Thirty-five per cent of the marriages of white men in the islands are with women of other races, Dr. Adams said. More white men than women contract inter-social marriage because there are more white men here owing to the presence of large numbers of soldiers.

The pure blooded Hawaiians and Portuguese are disapearing, he said, while the part-Hawaiian and the part-Portuguese groups are growing.

The result of this biological amalgamation is still in doubt, says the scientist.

SEEK TO RENAME HISTORIC YORKTOWN SPOT "THE HOOK"

YORKTOWN, Va., July 20 (AP)—years, if hte movement sponsored by whereon was fought the last skirmish of the Revolutionary war will be known as "The Hook" its name for many years, if the movement sponsored by the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities is successful. The association hopes to discard the name "Hayes' Store," which it has had for several years.

Marking the spot where Cornwallis, penned in at Yorktown, sought to get his troops across the York river and escape northward only to have the one company across meet the American and French forces at "The Hook." Hayes' Store has attracted considerable attention from thousands of tourists visiting Yorktown. The scene of the fight is marked with a tablet.

TICONDEROGA SCENE OF HISTORIC RESTORATION

TICONDEROGA, N. Y., July 20 (AP)—Upper New York state is to have its "American Wing," where, as in this famous new branch of the Metropolitan museum, the ghosts of young America will walk in surroundings familiar to them a century and a half ago.

A shadowy John Hancock returning would find at the junction of four roads in Ticonderoga, once the battleground of five nations, the reproduction of the beautiful home his uncle built on Boston common in 1737, his home until his death in 1793.

A ghostly Washington, entering the imposing Chippendale living room, would recognize the exact replica of the sofa he used as president and the duplication of his Martha's arrangement of the yellow damask curtains and the red and green brocatelle chair coverings.

Sir Jeffrey Amherst, Montcalm, and Sir Guy Carleton floating through the fine Palladian window of the hall, would find themselves mirrored in the old portraits on the wall.

Ticonderoga becomes, by the $250,000 gift of Horace A. Moses, wealthy manufacturer and public benefactor, the site of the permanent home of the New York State Historical association, and the future research center of the state for early American history.

The famous John Hancock house, built of enduring stone was chosen for reproduction, because of its permanance. The original, torn down in 1863, has been reserved in a set of drawings by the contemporary architect, John Skarzis, and faithfully rebuilt by the architect M. T. Westhoff, of Springfield, Mass.

It is estimated that China produces about a billion bushels of rice annually.

BORAH AND NULLIFICATION

In his swing around the country Senator Borah has opened up in Georgia. His talk centers around the Constitution and the 18th amendment thereto. He is particularly strong for the enforcement of the dry law and therefore makes a hit with many in Georgia. But he is very strongly opposed to the idea of a referendum for the purpose of getting the sentiment of the people concerning the dry law or modification. As he has said before he regards it as an effort to nullify the Constitution and is particularly bitter against the referendum which has been authorized in New York state.

When the Empire state holds its referendum the outcome will have no direct bearing upon the dry law. That referendum, the same as is proposed in other similar efforts, is for the purpose of getting the sentiment of the people in regard to the wet and dry question. The voters will have a chance to say whether in teir opinion congress should modify the Volstead act. Many profess to know how the majority of the people in that state feel today. The fact is that they do not actually know but that information could be obtained in the most practical manner through such a referendum. For the people of that state to favor modification, if that should be the outcome, would not nullify the Constitutional amendment. Any change in that must come through congress and the action of the states. Any change in the Volstead act must come through congress and it is possible for a referendum in each state to indicate to the congressmen what they want, whether that be the enforcement of the present law or its modification, but the referendum in itself is only an expression.

But when Senator Borah got started on the question of nullification, it may have been noted in Georgia and some of the other states that he had nothing to say concerning the nullification of the 14th and 15th amendments, which has prevailed for so long in the south. There was nullification that was deliberate and without a referendum in state or country, but the senator from Idaho probably considers those amendments too old and concentrates his efforts only on the new. He is far afield nevertheless.

ICE CREAM AND CONES

Some few years ago one would no more think of getting back of an ice cream cone, after reaching the age where the term child could no longer be applied, than he would of toting a lolly pop. It isn't so now. The cone has been growing in popularity for years and it is commonly accepted. It is not only a hand container and a pleasing confection with the cream but it is possible to have your cream while on your way. Because of the cone you are no longer required to sit down and wait until the portion of ice cream has been consumed.

Is the cone popular? Perhaps opinions will differ. All ice cream is by no means dispensed in cones. What the proportion is is not known, but when the department of agriculture reports that 13,000,000,000 ice cream cones were consumed last year it shows what some people think of them. And if we can judge by ocular evidence the consumption cannot all be attributed to children.

The cone has been given a hearty reception and it can be expected to stay until something better appears. To the cone cannot be attributed the large increase in the amount of ice cream consumed in the country, but it would be interesting to know for what proportion of the increase it is responsible.

The grip which ice cream has gotten upon the people is shown from the fact that during the past year there were 322,759,000 gallons consumed in this country according to department of agriculture figures. That doesn't include the millions of gallons that were made in the homes, but what a gain there has been is shown by the department figures of ten years ago when the annual consumption was only 175,224,000 gallons. That is almost a doubling of the amount and it would not be proper to ignore the part which the cone has layed in developing that growth.

The cones make possible the sale of such quantities of ice cream as they carry, when larger amounts are not desired and would not be purchased. Tastes have also been turned in that direction because of the availability of the dainty and the price. Ice cream has grown into public favor in a manner which it will be difficult to change and the many sales of small quantities have helped swell the yearly volume in trade.

After he reads about the business failures in Italy perhaps Ponzi will not be so anxious to return there.

MORE PROTECTION?

In connection with the investigation concerning the disaster at Lake Denmark in New Jersey there is to be a survey of all arsenals for the purpose of determining just what the conditions are and whether some steps ought to be taken to create greater safety.

It is realized of course that the firing of the explosives in New Jersey was due to lightning and that there are not many instances where such a state of affairs has been caused in that manner. It doesn't necessarily condemn the location of ammunition dumps unless they are so located as to be a menace to communities. On the other hand it does call for the insulation of ammunition buildings as thoroughly as possible and the separation of the buildings.

Whether the conditions which surround the various arsenals and ammunition dumps are up to requirements, or whether there ought to be changes in the protection or in location, should be disclosed by the surveys that are being made, and by the investigations in connection with the army and navy ammunition stations in New Jersey.

It is pointed out in this connection that safety measures have by no means been ignored and from statements by department authorities there appears to be little prospect that there will be any shifting of locations. It is realized that ammunition must be kept at convenient points and the wisdom of avoiding long distance transportation can be appreciated when it is realized what might happen under such conditions quite as easily as in an ammunition dump, with the public menace probably many times greater.

The desirability of having the best possible protection is fully apparent. The bolt of lightning that fired the explosives at Lake Denmark directed attention anew to the danger from the clouds. While it may have been figured that protection was provided for in the past, the importance of going even farther in this direction has been emphasized. Just what that should be the investigations and surveys will show.

THE CRISIS IN FRANCE

The people of France are not what might be called enthusiastic over the Herriot cabinet. They looked upon it as the return of policies which it was supposed had been turned down two years ago and the demonstrations which have taken place indicate that the Herriot cabinet will either accomplish the adjustment of the financial problems quickly or its existence will be even shorter than the last Briand cabinet.

Just what the reaction of the politicians is going to be to the demonstrations of the people remains to be seen. The need has long been for the casting aside of the political squabbles and jealousies and agreeing upon a sound solution of the financial troubles. Carrying on a political fight indefinitely while France and the people are the ones which are suffering the effects of it is bound to create resentment among the people.

Long ago parliament should have risen to the necessity of getting together for the good of the country. The fact that it was impossible to get confidence in the Caillaux plan may not have occasioned so much surprise as the failure to advance and put through a substitute. Many of the politicians have seemingly stood on the sidelines and derived pleasure from placing handicaps in the way of those who have been striving for a solution instead of contributing their efforts to proposing a common ground upon which there could be agreement.

The decision of the cabinet to put forth its plan a day earlier than expected indicates a recognition of the uneasiness displayed throughout the country and a seeming desire to relieve it. Whether the French congress is of the same mind will be awaited with interest.

STATE ADVERTISING

New Hampshire has been advertising. It has been entertaining a party of newspaper representatives on a tour through that state, and of course it has selected the time of the year when its charms can be set forth to the best advantage, and New Hampshire certainly has charms.

In many respects other states have excellent opportunities to do just what New Hampshire has been doing. Connecticut hasn't the mountains that New Hampshires has but there are many delightful attractions and in puting before others its attractions and advantages it can display with pride its industrial opportunities twelve months in the year, even as it did not so many months ago to a delegation of interested visitors from Virginia.

Such an exchange of views, such demonstrations of actual conditions, such displays of beauties, such advertising of vacation grounds and such pointing out of manufacturing, transportation and power facilities must be looked upon as of the greatest value. There's no telling how long it will take to get results therefrom but the facts and pictures personally obtained cannot fail to make a lasting impression that will be constantly working. New Hampshire knows for instance that it is what that party if has been entertaining is going to say about the Granite state that is going to return compensating dividends in the months and years to come. It is good reasoning and unless New Hampshire is greatly mistaken it will have no cause for regrets over the time, efforts and money that it has put forth for this purpose.

DOING HER BEST

"What have you there?" began the cautious man who never knew when to let well enough alone, approaching the charming young woman deeply engrossed in some publication. "You seem terribly interested!"

"Oh, Mr. Onslip!" gurgled the charming young woman in great surprise just as though she had not seen him coming, "do look at these darling plans! Why, it's a book of houses, the cutest things, just big enough for two, you know! Think of spending one's life in an apartment hotel instead of having a two-for-a-cent Italian cottage like this one with roses over the front door and grass and—and everything! It's arranged so prettily, too!"

"Y' hafta cut grass," gloomily objected the cautious man, seeing that he was in for it and sitting down gingerly. "And you shovel coal!"

"Pooh! What's a little coal!" laughed the charming young woman, airily turning the pages. "When it's your own place it's different and you take an interest and don't mind work! Look at this cute kitchen! It makes me just want to get into an apron and cook, really."

"Do you cook?" asked the cautious man with some interest. "I didn't know girls went in for that these days."

"Why, Mr. Onslip!" she reproached him earnestly. "You mustn't judge all women by a frivolous few! To be sure, I can't think of any other girl in our crowd but myself who likes to stir up a cake or make bread or pie or biscuits, but then I guess I am just a plain freak! Oh, I love to dance and race around, but where I am happiest is in the kitchen and since father and mother moved us to the hotel I have missed it so you can't imagine! Why, actually there are times when I get out the electric stove and try to bake things on that! I wish I'd known you before we broke up housekeeping because I was making the most delicious lemon pies right then—"

"I like lemon pie," stated the cautious man with some eagerness. "With thick white stuff on top—"

"My meringues always are thick," the pretty young woman informed him. "It's just a shame I can't bake you on? Here's a plan of a house where the kitchen is in front—that would be nice, because one would be able to watch out for him coming home—I've always thought a man shouldn't be obliged to unlock his front doors when he returns after a hard day's work—his wife should be there to open it and greet him. Some women are so careless about such little things, but I feel that they mean so much! Look at the garden space in the rear that one could look out on from the dining-room windows!"

"Awful hot in July, weeding onions," the cautious man said firmly. "Got sunburned till it peeled when I was a kid weeding the garden and I've had a prejudice against it ever since. I think somebody over there is looking for me—"

"Did you ever stop to think, Mr. Onslip," the charming young woman said dreamily, quite as though he had not spoken, "how few real homes there are nowadays and what people lose who never have one? The women all mad over society and excitement, the men devoted to their clubs, where they are waited on hand and foot?

Nobody taking up the—the burdens of life, so to say, making real homes of the old fashioned kind? Why, we never even think about them any more, and that is why I have so enjoyed this book of plans I just happened to pick up—it touched a responsive chord—showed me what I was missing—"

"I'd think over starting a tearoom," said the cautious man very earnestly, getting to his feet with extreme determination. "It's too bad not to cook when you want to so much—er—excuse me, I must speak to Harold a moment—"

The charming young woman watched him walk away and then she shut up the book of plans of houses for two with quite a bang and got out her vanity case.

"Prune!" she said to her lipstick.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Carl Gustaf Ekman, the new prime minister of Sweden, began his working career in the humble role of a stonecutter, in which trade members of his family had engaged for several generations. His rise in public life is due largely to his ardent support of prohibition, which of late years has figured as a dominant issue in Swedish politics. He has served as Grand Master of the Order of Good Templars and has been editor of a prominent newspaper in Stockholm which came under the control of the prohibitionists. He possesses considerable force as an orator and is particularly well versed in finance. His ability was recognized in his appointment as financial expert on the National Debt Commission. Ekman was born in the Province of Vastmanland and obtained his education wholly through his own efforts.

TRAFFIC

By the Albert Russel Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research University of California, Los Angeles

Troubles Just Starting.
40,000,000 Cars.
Every City Must Provide Regulations Now.

The street traffic problem which has caused so much trouble in American cities is only beginning. As yet cities have scarcely begun to feel its ultimate burden.

Ten years ago the more optimistic were prophesying that some time in the distant future there would be one automobile for every five persons in the country, or in other words approximately 20,000,000 motor cars. Few actually believed that the time was near at hand, and yet this year we find that condition approximated.

Not only has the American public been able to absorb these 20,000,000 motor cars with ease and with much greater rapidity than had been anticipated, but the demand for a further increase appears to be undiminished.

Now prophecies of even 40,000,000 registrations are frequently being made.

It is not at all improbable that another quarter of a century will find twice the present number of motors operating over our streets and highways.

This presents a serious problem to the cities which now find their streets filled to capacity. It is a situation which demands energetic, intelligent and forceful action.

There was some excuse in the early days of automobile development for procrastination in dealing with the traffic problem. It was impossible to see the character or the magnitude of the development. The situation is now clear. The streets of all our greater cities, and of many of the smaller, are so congested as to make business difficult. Unless proper steps are taken to meet the doubled requirements of the next quarter of a century, conditions may result in a substantial retardation of city growth and prosperity.

There is little doubt that a large per cent of future increases in automobile registration will take place in urban areas. There is more opportunity for the development of sales in the city districts because of the comparative high per capita wealth.

Moreover, there is every reason to believe that the drift of population from the country regions to the cities, which has been a characteristic of the past half century, will continue. Thus cities may anticipate not only the normal increase of automobiles, but an additional one because of rapidly increasing population.

The urban traffic problem will in all cities be further complication by the greater and greater concentration of business activity. The business of the typical city tends to go upward instead of outward, thus bringing to a small area increasing numbers of people, and thus adding to the traffic of the already congested streets.

It behooves the public officials of American cities to face the traffic problem squarely and to take steps to meet the inevitable increase in automobile use.

The tulip is believed by many flower lovers to be a native of Holland. Actually, it is of eastern origin, its name being a corruption of the Persian word for turban.

A Door Is Shut in Danny's Face

It is not always a disgrace
To have a door shut in your face.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

It all depends on who shuts the door and why. Yes, sir, it does so. While it isn't considered polite to shut a door in another's face, in times of danger it is sometimes the wisest possible thing to do. Danny Meadow Mouse never will forget the first time he had a certain door shut in his face. It was so surprising that he rubbed his eyes to see if it had really happened.

You see, it was this way: Danny had discovered a very small crab carrying a shell on his back. It looked to him much like the shell of a snail, just such a shell as he had found more than once up on the Green Meadows. It was about the same size and a good deal the same shape. The little crab was running away with it.

"Now, I wonder what that crab is doing with that shell," muttered Danny to himself. "My, he must be strong to carry that shell around on his back. I wonder what he does it for. It covers him up so that all I can see is his legs. He can run pretty fast, considering the load he's carrying. I'd like to see just what he looks like without that shell on his back. I believe I'll knock it off."

So Danny scampered after the funny little crab with the shell on his back. Like all the rest of the crabs he had seen, this one went sidewise. Danny was just about to pounce on it when that crab disappeared as if he had been swallowed alive. Yes, sir, that was just the way it was. One instant Danny saw those scuttling little legs beneath the shell, and the next instant that shell was lying on its side without a sign of any crab.

This was too much for Danny. Where under the sun had that crab gone too? "He must have a hole in the sand," thought Danny, "and has gone down in that."

Danny poked the shell aside. There wasn't any hole. You would have laughed if you could see Danny's face. He looked everywhere but at the shell. Finally he looked at the shell. It was then he discovered that that shell wasn't empty. At least, he couldn't see into it. He looked more closely. There was a claw right across that opening. That claw was just like a door. Even then Danny didn't understand. He sat down and stared. Perhaps it was because he sat still so long that that crab thought he had gone away. Anyway, suddenly those legs appeared once more and away raced the shell.

"Oh!" exclaimed Danny, and started after it. Once more the legs disappeared. Once more the shell lay apparently deserted. But as before, there was one claw which was like a door across the opening of that shell. This time Danny kept his eyes fixed on that door. After a while it moved. Then it was pushed out. Then followed the legs; and after a moment away scuttled that crab with the shell on his back.

But Danny had seen enough now to know that the shell wasn't carried on the crab's back the way he thought it had been. He knew now that that crab had simply backed into that shell and had shut the door in his face with one of his big claws. And he suspected that that crab was still partly in that shell. Is this he was right, for he was watching Hermit the Hermit Crab. But Danny couldn't understand it yet. He couldn't for the life of him see how a crab with a hard shell could back into that small shell and carry it around with him. "I've got to get acquainted with that fellow," said Danny. "I certainly have got to get acquainted with him. That is the queerest performance I ever have seen."

WHITE CROSS COUNCIL OPENS ANNUAL LAWN PARTY AT K. OF C. HOME

Members of White Cross council, Knights of Columbus, opened their annual lawn party on their spacious grounds on Broadway Tuesday evening and the various booths were well patronized throughout the evening. The grounds had been prettily decorated for the party, electric lights of many colors having been strung about the grounds over the booths, making a most attractive setting for the affair.

The booths contained the usual blankets, candies, cakes, umbrellas and other things which always attract the attention of those who wish to chance their luck against the whirling wheel.

The party was opened with a street parade by the Italian-American band, which marched from the Steiner building on Main street, through Main to Broadway and thence to the Knights of Columbus home. Throughout the evening the band, under the direction of Prof. Pasquale Puca, leader, rendered a delightful program, the numbers being executed in a manner which won much applause from those attending the party. The program was as follows:

Equinox-March ..... Sousa
Fest-Overture ..... A. Filipp
Gaity-Fox Trot ..... F. Rapisarda
Mary-Waltz ..... L. Rausa
Nanetta-Masurka ..... L. Sala
If You Were the Only Girl-Fox Trot .. N. Ayer
Waltz ..... R. Manente
Vittoria-March ..... R. Orlando
Star Spangled Banner

In addition to the usual booth attractions a special program of singing and dancing afforded entertainment for the audience, this section of the party being under the supervision of William Ward and Edward Connelly, the latter being announcer. Mr. Connelly also favored with two delightful tenor solos. Heaven at the End of the Road, by H. O. Osgood and When, by Earl Benham, both numbers being heartily applauded. Other feature numbers were two exhibitions of the Charleston, one by a local young woman and the other by Frank Petrowski, both of whom gave fine exhibition of this difficult dance.

During the evening announcement was made that many prominent boxers from this state would be present at the party on Wednesday evening and give exhibitions of their skill with the gloves; also that Jack Delaney, world's champion light-heavyweight fighter would be present.

Those serving at the various booths during the evening were as follows:

EGG YIELDS ON GAIN IN STORRS CONTEST

For the third successive week egg yields in the Storrs contest have moved upward, whereas the production on practically all poultry plants is expected to move the other way at this season of the year. The peak of production at Storrs was reached in the middle of May when the hens laid 633 eggs out of every 1000 that were possible. They eased off week by week until the last of June when the batting average for the entire lot had fallen to 517, and now it has crawled back to 545. Which is not considered a bit bad for midsummer months. The fact is that last week these birds laid 53 eggs more than they did in the previous week and 191 eggs more than for the corresponding week a year ago.

The total production for all pens in the thirty-seventh week of the contest was a total of 5345 eggs or a yield of over 54 per cent. R. W. Colman's pen of White Leghorns from Medina, N. Y., outlaid all other pens with a score of 58 eggs. For four straight weeks this New York pen has either won outright or tied for first place. As a result of this spirited sprint Colman's birds have regained second place in the Leghorn class. Ten weeks ago this New York pen pulled up alongside Dudley Poultry Farm's pullets from Webster, Mass., and stayed right on their tail for three weeks. For the next four weeks the New York pen set the pace. But they dared to ease up a mite and the Massachusetts pen forged ahead for the next three weeks. Now New York is in the lead again. This see-sawing back and forth makes a mighty interesting race for the on-lookers but it must be a little wearing on the owners. These two pens are now only three eggs apart and for more than two months they have been separated by scarcely more than a dozen eggs either one way or the other. All of which means that if any one hen in either group lets up a little her team is likely to lose.

There was a little keener competition for second, third and fourth places last week. Barred Rocks entered by R. W. Davis & Sons from Rockland, Maine, and White Leghorns owned by Adam Glass of Mobile, Ala. tied for second place with 53 eggs each. Strangely enough Barred Rocks and White Leghorns tied for third place. Hewlet Smith's pen of Rocks from Newburyport, Mass. and Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Oregon each came across with 54 eggs. Competition becomes keener as we go down the line. Thus a pen of Reds owned by Naacook Farm, Tyngsboro, Mass., tied with two pens of Leghorns entered by Toivonen Leghorn Farm from Girard, Penn., and Wilgerodt Bros. from Red Bank, N. J. These three pens tallied 53 eggs each. As a class the Leghorns did best, with a yield or better than 60 per cent. Barred Rocks were in second place with a lay of 54 per cent. and White Wyandottes a close third with 53 per cent.

"NEW HAVEN" SECOND LARGEST BUS OPERATOR

The New Haven railroad, a pioneer in motor operation, has rapidly extended the scope of bus lines within a year and through its subsidiary, the New England Transportation company, has become the largest railroad operator and owner of motor vehicles in the country, with the possible exception of the Great Northen railway, which has recently acquired a large number of independent lines and has been expanding bus operation on a large scale. Great Northern has organized two subsidiary bus companies, each with $1,000,000 capitalization.

New Haven's bus subsidiary, the New England Transportation company, was organized last July and started operation with a line from Ridgefield to Branchville, Conn., a distance of 4.3 miles. In less than a year the Transportation company has grown surprisingly and not very many people probably now realize the present scope of its operation.

The Wall Street Journal gives the following analysis:

It now has 160 motor coaches in operation over 1,170 miles of highway, including Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. This covers lines directly operated and those closely affiliated.

The makes of the 160 coaches now Whites, 45 Yellow Coaches, 7 Internationals, 20 Pierce-Arrows, 30 Fageols and two Reos. The aim of the company is to maintain a highway service co-ordinated with and supplementary to rail lines.

Originally capitalized at $1,000,000, the New England Transportation company, or which the New Haven owns all the stock, recently issued $450,000 additional capital stock, bringing capitalization to $1,450,000. The cost of motor coaches is $9,000 to $10,000 each. Assuming the lower figure the New England Transportation company has in 160 coaches now on hand an investment of about $1,500,000. There is, of course, some additional investment, as for instance in a rather substantial bus terminal in Fall River. Elsewhere, however, the company for the most part is leasing its bus terminal facilities or using the railway stations of the parent railroad. Maintenance of motor coaches is handled at New Haven and Hartford in the garages of the Connecticut company, which is the trolley subsidiary of the New Haven and which also operates a fleet of buses of its own. At Providence a garage and shop are being built to care for that part of the New England Transportation company. By and large, however, the greater part of the investment of the Transportation company is in the motor coaches themselves, and probably $2,000,000 would cover its entire investment in all facilities.

Passenger train revenue is a more important source of earnings to the New Haven than to the average road. In fact the Long Island is the only other steam road deriving a larger proportion of total revenues from passenger business. It therefore, became doubly important for the New Haven to protect its passenger income to supply a more flexible service and reduce losses on some lines where steam operation did not pay. Primarily buses were put on to meet rapidly increasing highway competition. In the case of a few branch lines bus service has permitted the elimination of all passenger trains and a considerable saving in expense. In still other cases buses have been placed in routes which do not parallel rail lines closely and which serve to open up new territory not previously served by rail but included within that portion of New England dependent upon the New Haven for service.

The motor coach lines of the New England Transportation company, are now operating about 14,000 coach miles a day, carrying on the average about 7,500 passengers a day, or 250,000 per month. The Transportation company having been in operation less than a year, it is rather too early to determine accurately its financial results, whether it will be able to run at a good profit and to what extent it may cut losses on branch lines.

As to cost of operation the company adopted for use in its preliminary studies a rather high figure, comparatively speaking, of cost per bus mile run, i. e., 40 cents. It was felt that the figure used by many operators, namely, from 20 to 30 cents a mile, did not include proper depreciation, was probably too low, and it wished to be conservative, it is now figuring depreciation of bus equipment on the basis of a five year life. Actual operation by the company is understood to have developed a per mile cost figure, as much as 10 or 13 cents, below the 40 cents per mile figure arbitrarily adopted. The bus probably costs less than one-third as much to operate as a steam train on a unit-mileage basis, i. e., measuring the cost per bus mile against the cost per passenger train mile.

The fares charged on the buses closely approximate the standard railroad charge of 3.6 cents per mile.

With rail lines, trolley lines, steamboat lines and bus lines, the New Haven railroad and its affiliated companies, are in position to serve southern New England with virtually every kind of transportation required in a well-ordinated service.

A PRETTY THROAT IS MOST DESIRABLE

Old-time Recipe of Buttermilk and Cream Best; Preserves Whiteness Youthfulness and Beauty

One of the woes of the middle aged woman nowadays is that her throat looks lined and old when she puts on a waist with a comfortable and fashionably open neck.

The old-time recipe and still the best to keep youthful looks and ensure a clear, creamy complexion is common everyday buttermilk and cream. And every woman will be glad to know that she can now obtain the ready-to-use product called "Howard's" Buttermilk Cream in both tubes and jars at any good drug store.

Few women realize that the throat is one of the greatest telltale marks of age since it very readily shows advancing years or the marks of neglect. If they would only accept these toilet hints in their heinful true light they would not hesitate to cut this out and remember to give Buttermilk Cream a trial. Lee & Osgood Co. guarantees it to give complete satisfaction or money back.

IMPORTANT. Even the finest face creams fail if the soap you use is harsh. Howard's Buttermilk Cream Soap keeps skin smooth, soft and pliable.

URGE MORE SMALL WAYSIDE PARKS IN STATE

The Connecticut Forestry association has recently issued a booklet dealing with the preservation and development of scenic beauty or the highways of Connecticut. This publication is the result of a shad tree conference, held jointly by the State Forestry association and the Yale School of Forestry on February 6, 1926, and is based on extensive investigation by the officers of the association and actual facts relating to existing conditions, brought forward at that time by delegates from various state commissions and departments such as Public Utilities commission, State Highway department, Department of State Police, Department of Motor Vehicles, Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station and various other bodies.

It is stated that, in many cases, natural scenic beauty could be preserved without great expense for planting of new trees if

JACK DELANEY TO BE GUEST OF LOCAL KACEYS THIS EVENING

Jack Delaney, recently crowned lightheavyweight king of the world, is to be the guest of White Cross Council, Knights of Columbus, this evening at their lawn party and boxing carnival to be held at the K. of C. grounds. Delaney was to have given an exhibition but owing to injuries to his thumb received when he tore the crown from Paul Berlenbach's head he will be unable to do so but will meet and receive the congratulations of his Norwich admirers who are expected to turn out in force. Delaney has ever been popular with Norwich followers of the squared arena and his popularity since he won the title has increased a thousand fold. The public loves a champion.

Besides the attraction of Delaney there will be a number of three-round boxing exhibitions between some of the top-notch boys of the state. These boxing bouts will be refereed by Mike Kelly, prominent in state sporting circles for many years. Eddie Connelly will be the announcer and Jack Carney will be the time-keeper.

Leading the list of bouts will be Kid Kaplan, featherweight champion of the world, who only a few days ago gave up the crown and is now scheduled to seek lightweight honors, who will box Eddie Lord of New Haven, a comer in pugilistic circles.

Then there will be Babe Slattery and Young Connelly. Young Connelly is Pacific Coast lightweight champion and is now in the east on government business. These boys will box three rounds.

Sheik Leonard, local boy, will trade punches with Mickey Travers of New Haven in another three-rounder. Neither Mickey nor Sheik are strangers to local fans and real action is expected in this bout.

Georgia Day of New Haven and Tony Travers, brother of Mickey, will have a three-round setto.

There is two other bouts which have not been announced but Tony Paolillo, matchmaker for the Nutmeg A. C. of New Haven guaranteed that they will be the goods and furnish plenty of action for the customers. The bouts will go on about 9 o'clock and everything promises a large evening if the weather man smiles favorably upon the affair tonight.

BEARCATS NOSE OUT BRASSCOS IN LAST INNING

The league leading Bearcats administered a 5 to 4 defeat to the Brassco in a Jr. Twi league game played at the Duwell field on Tuesday evening. The game was exceptionally close and exciting throughout and the result was in doubt almost all the way.

Ellie Segal, on the mound for the losers pitched a good game and deserved a better fate, sloppy fielding being responsible for his downfall. He sent 10 of the league leaders back to the bench via the strikeout route.

Carlin of the losers and Lemieux and Phalen of the winners led in the hitting. The score:

KILOWATTS BEAT PACO IN TWILIGHT GAME

DANIELSON, July 20—The Kilowatts hammered two Paco pitchers to win, 10 to 2, in tonight's game. After yielding four hits and five runs in the first inning, Lis of the Kilowatts settled down and kept his hits scattered to hold the Paces to three runs in the last four innings while his teammates hammered the Paco twirlers for 10 hits. The Kilowatts hit hard and eight of the 10 hits were for extra bases.

SAINTS HAND TAFTVILLE A. A. SOUND TRIMMING

The St. Joseph's baseball team, representing some of the cleanest and fastest men that ever donned a uniform, trimmed the Taftville A. A. in an exhibition game staged last evening on the Providence St. grounds by the score 8 to 1. Although defeated by a narrow margin on Monday evening by the fast East End team, the St. Joseph boys showed no signs of discouragement, but rather went into this evening's fray with their usual pep, fully determined to bring home the bacon.

The feature performance of the day was the masterful pitching of Stanley, who allowed but one hit. The big right-hander had everything on the ball, and the opposing stickers poped up and knocked easy rollers throughout the contest. Stanley's brilliant exhibition in the box was so air-tight that only one of the Taftville players was able to cross home-plate. He walked but two men and only 22 men faced him in 7 innings.

There was plenty of punch in the St. Joseph's attack, which found Pitcher Gauthier for 5 runs. Lefty Dugas, playing for the St. Joseph nine, had a perfect day at bat, getting a double and a single in two trips to the plate.

In the near future, these two teams will stage a second exhibition game at Duwell field, and it surely will prove a hummer, as the Taftville boys mean revenge. The score:

NO GAMES AT STATE HOSPITAL THIS WEEK

There will be no games at the State Hospital diamond this week end as the Riverview club is playing away from home both Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday Riverview plays the first game of the annual series with the Sub Base club at Morgan field in New London. On Sunday the second game of the series with the J. B. Martin team will be played at the J. B. Martin diamond. Both games are expected to attract wide interest in the eastern part of the state for the Riverview club is well on the road toward state semi-pro baseball honors.

The next home game for Riverview will be on July 31st when Riverview meets the fast New Process Gear Co. club of Syracuse, N. Y. The Syracuse club won the pennant in the Central New York league last year and has a strong claim for the same honors this year.

NO STAGE OR SCREEN FOR NEW CHAMPION

NEW YORK, July 20.—(AP)—Stage and screen hold no appeal for Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., newly crowned light heavyweight champion.

Although besieged with vaudeville and moving picture offers, Delaney has declined them all since winning the title from Paul Berlentach.

"I belong in the ring, not on the stage or screen," explains the new titleholder. "Anyway, I think I have earned a short rest."

HAGEN WINS EASTERN OPEN GOLF CROWN WITH RECORD CARD FOR COURSE

DELAWARE WATER GAP, Pa., July 20.—(AP)—Walter Hagen, Pasadena, [illegible] the eastern open golf championship over the Wolf Hollow course today with a score of 275 for the 72 holes, nine strokes ahead of Johnny Farrell, New York, who was second.

Hagen finished the tournament with a 69. He needed a 67 to beat the low medal play record of 274 made by Emmett French in the Ohio state open at Youngstown in 1922. The former national open champion left himself too hard a task when he took 74 for his third round this morning. His four rounds were 67-65-74-69—275. This was said to be the second lowest 72 hole medal play score ever returned, the third lowest being a 276 by the late Douglas Edger in a Canadian open championship.

HOLLYROOD WALTER WINS RICH AMERICAN DERBY

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 20—(AP)—A little brown gelding named Hollyrood Walter, seven years old, owned by Roger V. Whiteside of Duluth, Minn., won the $25,000 American Pacing Derby, richest of all harness events, in the Grand Circuit meeting here today after a race that went four killing heats.

Louis Direct, owned by Walter T. Candler, of Atlanta, Ga., son of the millionaire Coca Cola king, was second with Hollyrood Volo, the entry of Getty and Thomas of St. Paul, Minn., third. Louis Direct went lame after winning the third heat and after a gallant struggle in the fourth heat, finished half a length behind Hollyrood Walter, with Hollyrood Volo third.

The race, the Kentucky Derby of the harness world, drew a record breaking entry of 18 starters, the largest field that has appeared on the Grand Circuit in 20 years, with an attendance of ten thousand. The event was staged under wretched racing condition due to a high wind which swept the stretch, blowing clouds of dust into the faces of the horses.

Hollyrood Walter, stepped the fastest heat of the race when he won the first mile in 2:02 1-4, tying the record for the event established two years ago. Hollyrood Volo, after losing first heat by a head, captured the second in 2:02 1-2, while Louis Direct won the third in 2:03 1-2. The killing pace and the blistering heat began to show its effect by the time the trio of heat winners were called to the post for the fourth which Hollyrood Walter reeled off in 2:05 1-4, the slowest mile of the race.

Jean Gratton and Admiral Gratton, coupled as the entry of Robert French, veteran reinsman of Teeswater, Ont., were favorites. Jean Gratton made a desperate effort to reward her admirers but her best effort was third in the first heat, second in the second and seventh in the third.

ATHLETICS RECEIVE BAD SETBACK BY TIGERS

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—(AP)—The pennant hopes of the Philadelphia Athletics received a hard jolt today when the Detroit Tigers took both games of a double-header, 5 to 0 and 8 to 2. It was a clean sweep for Detroit of the four-game series.

Rip Collins was never in trouble in the first game, allowing but five hits. Gibson was effective in the second until he had a spell of wildness and was relieved in the sixth. Manush hit a home run in the fourth inning of the second contest.

The Athletics' "most valuable player" last year, Al Simmons, was taken out in the ninth inning of the first game because of light hitting and indifferent fielding. He did not participate in the second contest. It was the first game he had missed since joining the Athletics in 1924, having played 393 consecutive games.

REDS WIN CLOSE GAME FROM DODGERS IN NINTH

CINCINNATI, July 20.—(AP)—Cincinnati won out in the ninth inning today by 5 to 4, and made it an even break on the four game series with Brooklyn. Luque started the game but was forced to leave in the third after he had doubled and scored on two sacrifices, the heat and running around the bases proving too strenuous for him. KENNETH RIDGE CLUB AT WATCH HILL CLOSES

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., July 20. — The Kenneth Ridge club, opened but a short time ago at Watch Hill, has been closed, according to announcement made in Westerly today. The reason given for the closing of the new club is that it would be detrimental to the Watch Hill colony.

As opinion has been forming among the colonists that the organization would develop into a night club with objectionable features. The Rhode Island state police gave out yesterday that several complaints about the club had been made to the south county patrol, but on visits to the establishment, nothing objectionable has been found.

The club was opened at the former palatial residence of Dan J. Sully, once cotton king, under a lease to New York parties. It has been under the management of George L. Brophee of New York. It is understood that lack of support from residents of the colony made continued operation of the club unprofitable.

The following matters of business were transacted at regular session of the probate court of Westerly Tuesday, Judge Edward M. Burke, presiding:

Estate of Peter S. Berardinelli: Stephen D. Berardinelli appointed administrator; bond, $3,500; surety, Perina Keller; appraiser, Andrew S. Keller.

Estate of Jennie S. Nichols: Inventory of estate received and recorded.

Estate of John Dodds: First and final account of estate received and ordered recorded.

Estate of Julia Bailey: Inventory of estate received and recorded.

Estate of John DeRocco: Affidavit of no personal estate received and recorded.

Estate of William Clark: Petition to sell shares of Industrial Trust company at $440 a share; granted.

Estate of May Toscano: Petition to sell real estate, received and continued to August 3 with order of notice.

Three of four boys ranging in age from 12 to 16, who were taken into custody Sunday for stealing a sum of money from a parked automobile at Atlantic Beach, were sent to the state reformatory at Sockanossett Tuesday afternoon. The fourth boy was put on probation for a period of three months. According to the police the three boys are the same ones who were involved in the theft of lead flashings from the state armory building, several weeks ago. The other lad had not been ordered into court before.

The board of trustees of the Westerly hospital announced Tuesday that many pledges have been uncollected, although final payments were due in June. The board is reminding the public having pledged subscriptions of their obligations. Subscribers are being asked to leave their contributions with John O. Mills, treasurer, at the Westerly Furniture company, or at the Washington Trust company.

Funeral services for Miss Charlotte A. Doty were held at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. C. Burdick, 9 Dixon street, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church of Westerly officiated. The bearers were Isaac G. Smith, Edward Burdick, Arnold H. Burdick and Thomas P. Nichols. Burial was in River Bend cemetery.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week seven applications for building permits involving an outlay of approximately $100,000, according to the owners, were granted at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. The largest of the seven permits is the one for the new bank building on Broadway to be erected by Peck-McWilliams Co. for the Dime Savings bank. According to estimates by the contractors, this building will cost approximately $75,000.

Work has already been started on the tearing down of the old building located on the property formerly known as the Shields building. The contractors have torn down two stories of the old structure and all that remains is the first story, which will be razed before the end of the week. The new building will have a 42-foot frontage and a depth of 75 feet and will be of brick and steel construction, with concrete foundation and granite trim. The bank building will be modern in all respects and its equipment will be of the most approved type.

Work has also been started on remodeling part of the Fay building on Franklin square. A part of the second story over Mara's drug store is being remodeled and a new plate glass front is being put in by Contractor P. F. Sweeney.

Work has been started on the foundation for a new dwelling house at 60 Dunham street for August Bergman.

At the tuberculosis sanatorium work is progressing on the new building and it is assuming proportions.

The permits issued by Fire Marshal Stanton are as follows:

To Mary A. McGrath; to erect a frame garage on Palmer street. The garage will be 8x20 feet, with concrete foundation and novelty siding.

To Contractor P. F. Sweeney, to make alterations to the present brick building known as the Fay building on Franklin square for the Max Gordon Corp. The alterations include putting plate glass windows on the second story and reinforcing with steel girders.

To P. F. Sweeney, to alter the present building at the corner of Broadway and Otis street, owned by Bert Caron. The work includes making over the present house into a three-apartment building and remodeling the garage into a cottage house.

To George Boucher, to add a frame veranda to the present house on Palmer street owned by Henry Allard.

To August Bergman, to erect a frame house at 60 Dunham street. The house will be 23x26 feet, with cement foundation and cellar. The house will have six rooms and bath, with hardwood floors and trim. The walls will be in hard-finish plaster. The exterior finish will be in composition shingles.

To George N. Zucher, to erect a frame garage 10x20 feet for Louis Novick off Fifth street.

To Peck-McWilliams Co., to erect a modern bank building at 35 Broadway for the Dime Savings bank. The building will be 42x75 feet, of brick and steel construction, with concrete foundation and granite trim. The estimated cost as set forth in the building permit is approximately $75,000.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were 13 sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week, an increase of 7 sales over the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $59,840 and $38,500.

In New London during the past week there were 13 sales of real estate, two less than for the corresponding week ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $70,700 and $74,350.

Waterford

The voters of Waterford, at a recent town meeting, voted an appropriation of about $30,000 to cover the cost of the erection of an addition to the present school building in that town. The school board and selectmen were authorized to select an architect to prepare plans for the enlargement and to appoint a building committee. The addition will provide four new rooms.

Essex

The plans for the Roman Catholic church in Essex have been revised to allow for the use of the foundation for the old edifice which was destroyed by fire. The changes provide for a frame building 30 1-2 by 71 1-2 feet. Bids are being received by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Custer, of Chester, Conn.

National Building Review

Building activities throughout the country, as indicated by the volume of permits issued and plans filed, begin the second half of the year on about the same basis as last year. In the 457 cities reported in the national monthly building survey of S. W. Straus & company, permits of $2,212,614,498 were issued for the six months period a loss of one per cent as compared with the first half of 1925.

There were indications, however, just at the end of the half year period of a rather pronounced upward movement. The 457 cities reported permits of $412,770,125 for June this year as compared with $383,851,634 for June a year ago, a gain of 7 1-2 per cent. The significance of the figures lies in the fact that the gain over May was substantially 5 per cent. Normally, there is a distinct falling off between May and June. Since 1918 this decline has averaged round 10 or 11 per cent. Last year when building activities were proceeding with unprecedented momentum, June permits were just about equal to those of May. Whether this June spurt marks the beginning of a period of even more intensive building activity than has ever before been experienced in the United States or whether the figures represent a considerable volume of projects that were deferred from the spring months due to unfavorable weather conditions, are matters that cannot now be determined.

An important feature of the semi-annual review of the national building situation is the continued gain of construction work throughout the south, notithstanding the spectacular activities that have been in progress in that section for the last three years. The 100 leading cities of the 13 southern states showed a gain of 26 per cent during the first half of the year as compared with the same months in 1925, and 11 per cent in June compared with last June.

The chief centers of activity were Florida, Texas and North Carolina.

Plans filed in New York city during the first half of the year were a little above $516,000,000 a gain of about 11 per cent over the first half of 1925. Judging from the large volume of new plans, building activities will continue to be carried on in New York more intensely than in any of the other major cities of the country. The six months report of S. W. Straus & company shows that the plans for construction filed in New York during the first half of 1926 were greater by several million dollars than the combined building permits issued in the next ten leading building centers of the United States, namely, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Washington, San Francisco, Boston, St. Louis and Newark.

New London

Five permits for the erection of private garages and two permits for the construction of private dwellings were included in the 13 building permits issued by the council Monday night. The number is about the average.

With several of the major building projects in the city completed and with others nearing completion, contractors and workers will be looking for new major constructions within a few weeks of the supply of building mechanics are to find employment. At present there are two major constructions of importance being contemplated but definite plans have not been consummated.

Work has started on a two-story frame cottage to be built for James T. Sexton in Vauxhall street. Specifications in the plans drawn by a local architect call for a structure 24 by 33 with all modern improvements and modern design.

Thomas Occhialini has started construction of a hollow tile bungalow 35 by 46 in Montauk avenue. The structure will have large rooms with fireplaces and modern fixtures.

The two-family duplex house built for Marie M. Grove in Marshall place has been completed. The new house is of modern frame construction with modern improvements.

The interior finishing work is being completed on the two-story frame cottage being built for B. M. Youngs at Ledgard and Vauxhall street. The new structure is of semi-Colonial design similar to the several new houses recently completed in that section.

The exterior work has been completed on the two-story frame cottage, 24 by 28, being built for Felix Nekdzweski in Bayonet street. The new house will contain six rooms and will be occupied by the owner when completed.

Workmen are completing a new roadway through Sbirley and Rockbourne parks where C. E. Schall, Inc., is making improvements for realty developments.

Work is now progressing on the interior of a new frame cottage being built for Harry Rakosky at 29 Waller court. The new structure is 25 by 23 and is designed for one family use.

The plastering has been completed on the new two-story frame dwelling being built for Josephine Dlugnencki at 324 Jefferson avenue. The structure is provided with two large verandas in front and is designed for two-family use with a one-story frame store building attached to the east side.

A frame garage, 12 by 16, has been completed for P. S. Fowler at 298 Vauxhall street.

The exterior has been completed for a two-story frame bungalow at Ocean and Evergreen avenues for Byron F. Wilkinson. The new house is 24 by 24 with an ell 10 by 15. The house is now being plastered.

The framework is nearly completed on the two-story cottage being built for Anthony Irlandi at 113 Ocean avenue.

An addition, 10 by 14, and extensive remodeling has been completed at the large family residence of H. O. Crandall at 48 Vauxhall street. The house has been repainted with a new sidewalk laid in front and a new garage 20 by 20 constructed in the rear.

Ground has been broken for a five-room frame cottage to be built for Walter Larsen in Raymond street. Plans call for a structure 22 by 24 feet. The foundation will be of concrete.

Building Permits

Thirteen applications for building permits, approved by Building Inspector Benjamin R. Linicus and recommended by City Manager Holt, were approved by the council and the permits granted Monday night.

Richard Warren, addition to garage, 7 by 21, Farmington avenue.

Robert Rome, altar roof, 28 by 30, 328 Montauk avenue.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

CO-OPERATIVES BECOME BIG FACTOR IN EGG MARKETING

Thirty per cent. more eggs were marketed co-operatively in the United States in 1925 than in 1924, it is estimated by the United States department of agriculture. A number of recently formed co-operative organizations reached their full stride as marketing agencies during the year and many of the older associations received larger quantities of eggs from their members.

Gains in the co-operative marketing of eggs were particularly large in Missouri, where county exchanges and centrally established assembling and packing plants have been developed. In Minnesota a substantial increase in the co-operative marketing of eggs was largely due to expansion in the business of the Minnesota Egg and Poultry Exchange, a federation of 27 local units with 23,000 members. This organization did not begin operations until the latter part of 1924. Yet in 1925 it handled a larger number of cases of Minnesota eggs than had ever before gone through co-operative channels in that state.

New co-operative associations organized to handle eggs began operations last year at Hannibal, Mo., Portland, Me., and Wauseon, Ohio. Fifty-eight co-operative elevators, creameries and stores began in 1925 to handle eggs as an additional service to their members. Large quantities of eggs were marketed for co-operative associations through co-operative sales agencies in New York, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Los Angeles and San Francisco. One association that handled New Hampshire eggs on the Boston market in 1924 went out of business before the close of 1925.

REGULARITY IN FEEDING MORE IMPORTANT THAN IN MILKING

Of all dairy operations, milking on most farms takes the greatest amount of time and to many persons is the most irksome task. It has commonly been assumed that cows should not only be milked regularly but also by the same man each time. Doubtless this has had much to do with the distaste many persons have for dairy work.

Experiments by the United States department of agriculture at the experimental farm of the bureau of dairying at Beltsville, Md., show that with cows that are average to good, milking may take place at irregular hours without any marked effect upon production. Whether very high producers would show similar results has not been determined.

It was found, however, that when irregular milking was accompanied by irregular feeding the production was lessened about 5 per cent. Apparently cows are more sensitive to changes in the feeding routine than to variations in the hours of milking. The conclusion is not to be drawn from these experiments that regularity in doing the dairy work is a matter of little importance, but rather that cows can occasionally be milked earlier or later than usual if there is something else to which the dairyman desires to give his time.

Though it is generally believed that a cow will produce more when milked always by the same person, the practice in many large dairies where there are several milkers is to milk the cows as they come, rather than to reserve certain cows for each man. At the bureau's experimental farm, 12 cows were divided into three groups of four cows each, and each group was milked regularly by the same man for 40 days. The 12 cows were then milked by the same three men in such a way that no cow was milked twice in succession by the same man. After 40 days the cows were changed to regular milking again for 40 days. The results show an increase of only about 0.05 per cent. in the milk and butter fat through steady milking by the same man. This is so little as to be almost negligible.

FEEDING WHOLE CORN TO PULLETS

The practice of feeding whole corn as all or nearly all of the grain ration at night in cold weather is becoming well established. In order to teach the pullets to like whole corn, it is advisable to start mixing a small amount into the scratch until they are eating nearly all whole corn at the end of the growing season.

As the pullets increase in size and the colony houses become crowded, and the weather becomes warmer, bushes and trees are apt to become very attractive to the pullets as roosting quarters. If the range is fenced to avoid danger from foxes and dogs, let the pullets go; the trees are the best place for them! The nearest approach to outdoor roosting that can be provided is a wire roosting shelter. Such a shelter can be built entirely covered with wire over a light frame, the roof being papered over the wire for protection. Plans and specifications for such a shelter will be provided upon application. This type of shelter is working in very well with the barracks system, replacing the more expensive roosting houses.

METHOD FOR CONTROL OF RED MITES

The European red mite is probably present to a greater or less extent in most Connecticut apple orchards. The number of mites found in many of the orchards has been small—especially where a miscible oil was used at the delayed dormant application. In some Connecticut orchards, however, the red mites are already present in serious numbers. The question is frequently asked as to what can be done in such orchards in the way of summer applications to check development of the red mites.

As most Connecticut apple growers who have had experience with this pest know, the standard recommendations for the control of European red mite are (1) a spray of miscible oil applied as a late dormant or early delayed dormant spray to kill the eggs before they hatch in the spring and (2) two or three applications of summer strength lime sulphur to kill the remainder of the young mites after hatching.

For those who have failed to control red mite to date, Dr. Garman of the New Haven experiment station suggests the following:

(1) To spray very thoroughly with lime sulphur 1 to 50, or, if burning is feared, use the formula: Water 100 gallons, liquid lime sulphur 1 gallon, finely ground sulphur 5 to 10 pounds, calcium caseinate 1 pound. Two or more applications may be needed.

(2) Or dust with a sulphur dust when the temperature is 85 degrees to 90 degrees F. or more. If such a dust can be applied when the temperature is 90 degrees F. or more for several hours after applying for better yet for several hours each on several consecutive days) a fairly high per cent. of kill can be expected. Nicotine sprays have not proved worth while for red mite, and the effectiveness of nicotine dusts is somewhat in doubt.

Growers who have red mite in their orchards should keep in mind the following points:

1. An infestation of 50 to 100 mites per leaf is sufficient to cause the leaves to turn brown and the fruit to be undersized and poorly developed.

2. Baldwin, Delicious and Northern Spy are the standard varieties more commonly injured, although when the mites are numerous all varieties may be affected.

3. Predacious enemies of the red mites are likely to be most numerous in July and August. Several species of ladybird beetles, thrips, etc., may decrease the number of mites in some orchards.

4. Dry weather favors the development of red mite, while a wet period helps to keep them in check.

GIVES SUGGESTIONS FOR SUMMER CARE OF CATTLE

It is the most comfortable cow that produces the most milk in summer, states the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. Instead of turning his cows into the field to swat flies and loaf in the shade, the dairyman will find that he can get more milk from them by feeding them on grain in he cool of the barn during the heat of the day and then turning them out at night to graze.

Following are some hints to the dairyman on the summer care of his cattle, as given by the institute:

1. Cows need lots of water. Keep it always available in a quantity they want.
2. Provide shade during hot weather, preferably in your stable in the heat of the day.
3. Let your cows graze at night when it is cool, but be sure that they can get water.
4. Screen your stable, if you can, to keep out flies.
5. Spray your cows in summer with a good fly preventive.
6. Be sure they are free from lice and other vermin.
7. Remember, a cow must be comfortable and well if she is to produce milk up to her capacity. Such care requires a little effort, but it pays big dividends.

GOOD FEED—EXTHA EGGS

While hens will live and even keep in fair health on poor rations, well-balanced, palatable feeds are essential to good egg production, says the United States department of agriculture. The additional costs of a good ration compared with a poor one is repaid many times by the extra eggs obtained. As a rule, the simplest feed mixtures composed of home-grown grains and their by-products, supplemented by sweet or sour milk or some animal feed rich in protein, such as meat scrap, will prove most profitable and will produce eggs at the lowest cost. All changes in the feed should be made gradually, as sudden changes may decrease egg production materially.

When I passed through the Change of Life, I was taking the Vegetable Compound and I had no trouble of any kind."—Mrs. ANNA McHENRY, 1005 E. Plum St., Marshall, Illinois.

Another Woman Helped

Philadelphia, Penna.—Mrs. Caroline Nagy, of 3717 Sears St., in a recent letter to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., says that after her child was born she was in a very weak condition. She could not seem to regain her health and went to her mother for advice. She told her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it had helped her when in like condition, and it has helped her mother also. So Mrs. Nagy started taking it. She felt better after taking the first bottle,—after taking six bottles her weakness and other troubles disappeared, and she is never done praising the Compound.

"In some families the fourth generation is learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

TATTOOED BROOKLYN GIRL AND CHUM DISTASTEFUL TO NEW LONDON FOLK

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 20.—Gertrude Delts and Anna Giacolone, each about 17, who stated that they resided in Brooklyn, but were married to sailors who, at present are at sea, were arrested this afternoon by Patrolman George Perkins charged with lascivious carriage. They will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

The girls stated that they came to New London from Brooklyn about two weeks ago and since then have resided in a lodging house, 95 Main street. This afternoon when Patrolman Perkins was passing through Main street a merchant complained to him because of the conduct of the girls, stating that a short time before they had engaged in a fight that attracted the neighborhood. Officer Perkins questioned the girls and was not satisfied that they were married and caused them to go to the police station where they were interrogated at considerable length, and this resulted in the pair being held for trial. The girls have been occupying two rooms and from residents in the vicinity of Main and Church streets, came the information that the conduct of the pair nightly was a disgrace. One of the girls has had the major portion of her limbs and body tattooed, so much so that she would be a fit subject for a side show in a circus.

BELIEVE MEAN HOBOES ROBBED A SMALL BOY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 20. — Police Sergeant Hick chased down, with the assistance of Officers John Cavanaugh, Hill and Farley, a gang of bummers who were complained against by a Bank street storekeeper. The gang gave their names as Frank Harrington, William Green and Joseph Murphy, and two of them had a police record. They were drink-sodden and their funds had run low for only 35 cents was the sum of money they possessed and that is believed to have been money of which they robbed a small boy when they met him near the store which sent in the complaint to the police office. Their stories did not check up to suit the court or the prosecutor, so it was not certain whether they were the robbers of the lad. The boy was so frightened that he ran away and the police were unable to find him later. A description of the bummers was so accurate that they were found when a search was made for them. They are now in jail where they will remain long enough for a thorough search for the lad who was robbed. He will, it is expected, be able to identify them.

Thomas Williams came in from Oswegatchie yesterday and got a load that a horse could not carry. He was found drunk and down in North Bank street. This morning he was prosecuted. "Be lenient with me," he implored the court. He promised never to be accused again if allowed to get out of town. Judge Prince decided that to get rid of Williams would be for the benefit of the city so he was allowed to take what money he had and depart for Boston. On his way from the court room Williams fell down a portion of the stairs, but he was not injured. Then he was locked up till the train left the station and he was put aboard it.

Catherupe Bruno pleaded guilty for the first time in many that he has been arraigned in the court for intoxication. He was released from jail about noon yesterday and before noon today he was back there doing time. Bruno is a shoemaker and a good one, but he seems not to be content to work at that trade. He has been arrested a score of times and has been treated in every known way to bring about a reformation. Jail does not seem to be the method of punishment that will fasten the lesson in his brain, nor does the imposition of fines. If Bruno was to be believed, he never drinks anything but cider and water. But he isn't always believed.

Medrick Roberts was sent to jail for taking liberties with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Ella Ricknett of East New London. Medrick went to her home yesterday and was so insulting that she asked for his arrest and was ready to appear against him in court today. Medrick evidently realized what was coming and wisely pleaded guilty so Mrs. Rickett did not have to accuse him in testimony. Roberts has a court record which was extended somewhat today.

The police conducted a man hunt for several hours last night, following the allegation of Evelyn Malloy, 17, of 66 Franklin street, who declared that she had been the victim of an attempted assault. The police give the girl's story credence, but they also are strong in the opinion that the girl accompanied her alleged assailant to the site of the assault willingly and without persuasion. The girl described the man as being about 40, about six feet in height, stout-build, reddish hair combed back and having brown eyes. He was dressed in a blueish gray suit and had brown shoes. She stated that the man had informed her that he formerly resided in Detroit and was now employed by the Connecticut Power company in this city.

According to the girl she was walking along Ocean avenue on her way to Ocean Beach about 3 o'clock when she was approached by the man and the two walked as far as Glenwood avenue, through which they continued until they reached Alewife Cove bridge. They then walked to the sandy shore for the purpose of making a short cut to the beach. While walking along the shore the girl declared that her companion attempted the assault, but by fighting him she managed to make her escape. She ran as far as the Farnam property, which interrupted further passage along the shore and after leaving the property she accosted a pedestrian and informed him of her plight. The man had an automobile stopped and the girl was conveyed to the police station where she related her story. Several officers were assigned to the case and a hunt throughout the beach and the streets and avenues [illegible] to the beach was made, but no trace of the fellow was found. The girl was taken in charge by Policewoman Jane Cassidy who escorted her home. Although the girl stated that she took the Glenwood avenue course and Alewife cove shore as a means of a "short cut", in reality that way was the most indirect course to take and a most lonely one. Motorcycle Officer Ray reported that he had observed the man and girl walking hand in hand on Ocean avenue, near Gardner avenue a short time before the girl appeared at the police station. Officer Ray stated that the man was walking with his hat in his hand and described him practically the same as the girl did, before he had heard of the description given by the girl.

The circulators of the referendum petition requesting that a city election be called for the purpose of allowing a vote to be taken on the question of city government, will undoubtedly be compelled to circulate another petition. City Clerk Julian D. Moran made another check-up of the signatures today and it is believed that close to 1200 signatures will be declared faulty because of their names not appearing on the city's voting list or the petitions not being properly signed. If this number of signatures are found to be invalid it will mean that another petition, containing at least 400 bonafide signatures will have to be circulated within ten days after the present petition is proven invalidated, in order to assure the calling of the special election.

The funeral of William H. Harrison was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elsie D. Harrison, 203 Bank street and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, among whom were delegations of members of Pequot lodge of Odd Fellows and Niagara Engine company. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth and members of Pequot lodge aced as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Two burglaries were perpetrated last night and from the character of both breaks it is apparent that the burglaries were committed by the juvenile type of thief. One break was at the grocery store of Benjamin Goldman, 119 Green street. When Goldman opened the store for business about 7 o'clock he discovered the break. A window on the Pearl street side of the store, which is left open during the warm weather and is protected by a metal screen, provided the means of robbing the place. The screen had been partially removed, but only sufficiently so as to permit the body of a very small person to pass through the opening. The only plunder obtained was about $1.50 in pennies and a small quantity of pastry.

The other burglary was at the confectionery and fruit store of Louis Katsis, 342 Bank street, corner of Lane A. Entrance to this store was by exactly the same means as that at the Goldman store. A wire screen that protected an open window on Lane A was ripped away, allowing the thief to enter. The plunder was about $3, found in the cash register.

An automobile driven by Mrs. T. H. Edson, 44 Perry street, struck Delia Kenyon, seven, of 13 Washington street, on the latter street this morning. The child was but slightly injured, suffering bruises and contusions.

James Gilhooley, 40 Union street, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. He was unable to obtain a surety on his bond of $100 for his presentation in the police court tomorrow morning and was locked up. The complainant is Gilhooley's wife, who accompanied the officer and prisoner to the police station and there she stated that her husband had struck her and had threatened to kill her and their little child.

New Haven police Monday evening requested the New London police to be on the lookout for two automobiles. One car sought is a Lincoln sedan bearing New York registration, 4-C6801, but the driver, a woman, is wanted more than the car, for the woman is charged by the former police with reckless driving and evasion of responsibility. The other car, a Cadillac, bearing Connecticut registration, 9478, was stolen from one of the streets there about 5 o'clock.

Allen Beckwith, night clerk at the Hotel Winthrop, is spending a few days with relatives in New York.

Mrs. John Leiper and infant son, of 93 1-2 Truman street; Henry Jakes, 80 Federal street; Mrs. John Rizenwich, 222 North Bank street, and Mrs. Lester Knott, 13 Amity street, patients at Home Memorial hospital were discharged Monday.

Clifford E. Wilbur, 34, of 15 Morgan court, Groton, died Saturday night at Lawrence hospital, where he had been a patient about five weeks. He is survived by his wife and two children, besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Wilbur, 201 Thames street, Groton. He was employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad as fireman at Midway and prior to that time was employed on the city's ferryboat Mohican as fireman. He was a member of Pioneer Hose company, Groton." Mr. Wilbur was born in Willington, but had resided in Groton since a youth.

The funeral of Orin A. Bunnell was held Monday at two o'clock at the Bunnell residence, Flanders, and was attended by a large number of mourners, many being residents of New London. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. The bearers were Maurice E. Sherman, Clarence W. Thompson, Frank Boyd, R. E. Hall, George Bathgate and J. E. Brown. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery, New London.

HARRISS BOY MISSING FROM MABREY'S, OCEAN BEACH

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 20.—A youth named Harris and who is staying at Mabrey's, Ocean Beach, with his parents, is missing and this evening the police were requested to aid in the search for him. The boy is 14, and no trace of him could be found after 12 o'clock this afternoon.

OVERDUE TAXES OF $177,000 GATHERED IN BY COLLECTOR

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 20.—Tax Collector Allen C. Richards announced this afternoon that the drive to collect back taxes amounting to $220,000 in order to meet the city's current expenses for the fiscal year, has resulted in $177,000 of that amount being collected to date. A balance of $45,000 is needed to prevent a deficit, but there is every belief that this amount will be obtained before the first of next month. The drive was the result of a vote by the city council and the matter was handled by Director of Law Thomas E. Troland and Collector Richards.

RUM CARGO WORTH $184,000 SEIZED OFF BLOCK ISLAND

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, July 20.—A coast guard patrol boat last night made one of the richest captures of a rum runner that has been made in local waters in a long time. The schooner, Anna Powell, from Nova Scotia, was seized off Block Island and will probably be brought to this port tomorrow, although it is possible that the schooner will be taken to New York. Aboard the schooner was a cargo of whiskey valued at $184,000. The schooner was sighted a considerable distance northeast of Block Island by the crew of the patrol boat and after several hours' chase, the craft was overhauled. A search of the schooner revealed the amount of liquor stored in her hold. It is not known, but it is understood that the cargo was intended for New York and New Jersey.

Mrs. John Cummings and infant daughter, of 32 Woodbridge street, patients at Home Memorial hospital were discharged today.

Mrs. Prusius Bailey, of 2 Latham street, Groton; Pearl Bunner, 12 Front street, and Mrs. Arthur Beckwith and infant daughter, 151 Lincoln avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Lester C. Chappell, Blackhall street, is entertaining her granddaughter, Miss Lucille Volmen of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Munson of Springfield, Mass., have returned home after having spent several days at Groton Long Point.

Mrs. Joseph E. Burr of Montauk avenue, has returned home after spending three weeks with relatives and friends in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire.

Complaint was made to the police this evening that youths were bathing nude at Green's harbor. Pequot avenue Patrolman Lawrence Feeley was dispatched to the beach, but failed to find any swimmers who were not properly attired.

Mrs. John F. Leipic and son, Thomas Joseph Leipic of New London, have returned to their home from the Home Memorial hospital.

William Zeckerow, 77, of Meriden, died this morning at the residence of Captain Nathaniel Greene, 137 Pequot avenue. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Plock, Meriden, and a son, William Zeckerow, Germany. Mr. Zeckerow came to New London Saturday to visit Capt. Green and while at the Greene residence was stricken with a shock.

The funeral of Clifford E. Wilbur, of Morgan court, Groton, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Wilbur, 201 Broad street, Groton, and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Acquaintances of Mr. Wilbur acted as bearers. Burial was in Colonel Ledyard cemetery, Groton.

Investigation into the alleged theft of $30 from Robert R. Morgan, Gales Ferry, and a lodger at the home of Edward Flynn, 36 1-2 Truman street, yesterday, has been concluded by the police and resulted in it being determined that the robbery occurred when the Flynn family was absent from the house and while Morgan was at his work at the Odd Fellows' home, Groton. There was no evidence of the place being forced and the police are satisfied that the robbery was an "inside job," or that the thief used a duplicate key to gain admission to the house.

NATIVE SAMOANS STILL FEAR OLD TIME OATH

APIA, Samoa, July 20 (AP)—White men who introduced the system of plotting land and the surveyor's methods of defining boundaries, brought with them to Samoa the white man's method of administering oaths.

So, officially, the native Samoan places his hand upon the Holy Bible to swear that title to a certain piece of land belongs to him. But those who have lived here long know that at heart the native does not have the degree of fear when an oath is taken upon a bible that he had for the old Samoan oath. Where grave issues are at stake he is apt to discard the modern form for the old one.

While the old manner varied in the different villages the common rite was to take a bunch of grass and lay it on a stone or other object that represented the family or village God. The contesting parties would say with hand resting on the grass, "In the presence of this whole assembly, I lay my hand on the grass. If I have declared falsely may I suddenly die."

It often happened that one making a false oath would be seized with superstitious fear that would overcome him or cause him to confess. The meaning of the grass was that, should the oath be false, he and his entire family should be exterminated from the face of the earth and their habitation covered with grass.

Types of French Women

PARIS, July 20 (AP)—Undiluted blue blood was essential before a portrait could figure in an exhibition which President Doumergue has just opened.

The 70 photographs of society women, grandmothers, mothers and daughters on view represent an effort to establish the true type of the aristocratic French woman. In order that this type might be purely French, no photograph is shown of any female member of the French aristocracy into whose family a foreigner has entered by marriage during the last 200 years.

Duchesses, countesses and marquises responded readily to the appeal made to them by the Countess of Mortemart, who initiated the scheme, the more so as the money raised by the admission fees to the exhibition will be handed over to the anti-tuberculosis dispensaries run by the countess.

America will be able to draw its own conclusions as to the French woman's type, as the photographs are to be shown there after the exhibition closes in Paris.

A man's ideal figure usually has a dollar mark in front of it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Local screen fans are promised their fill of entertainment in a huge double feature attraction of unusual excellence at the Breed theater today and Thursday.

The Reckless Lady, a Robert Kane First National picture is booked as the big feature.

Belle Bennett, Lois Moran, Ben Lyon, James Kirkwood, Lowell Sherman and Charlie Murray, head the all-star cast. The film is an adaptation of the Sir Phillip Gibbs novel of the same name. Thomas Holding, Marcia Harris, Julia Hurley and Edwin August complete the cast.

The Reckless Lady tells the story of a great love between mother and daughter and of the sacrifices of the former to preserve the happiness of the latter. The majority of the scenes are laid in Monte Carlo, the playground of the world. The colorful and spectacular carnival procession, with its gayly decorated floats and its hundreds of people in an unheard of variety of costumes, figures prominently in the picture.

The second feature is an underworld picture of unusual strength. The People vs. Nancy Preston, in which Marguerite de la Motte and John Bowers play the featured roles. The story deals with crook life in the underworld and there are numerous hair-raising incidents including revolver battles, street fights and prison escapes. The support includes among others David Butler, Frankie Darro, William V. Mong and Gertrude Short.

Broadway Theater

A new and real entertaining program of vaudeville and photoplays opens at the Broadway theater tomorrow for a three day engagement.

There will be as usual five excellent Keith-Albee vaudeville acts.

The photoplay is Ermine and Rhinestones. It is a modern up-to-the-minute story of the present craving for excitement and the utter disregard for consequences that now holds the so-called fast set in its grip. Written by Louise Winter, it tells of a certain set of wealthy Long Islanders who stop at almost nothing to get the thrills their jaded appetites call for. There is the fashionable gold digger who wants to hold her fiance, a young man of wealth and good standing from the middle west, but who at the same time seeks to keep up her illicit love affair with the husband of her best friend. There is the little irresponsible flapper, the everlasting cocktail parties, the notorious road houses and the hard working, capable business girl, who finds it difficult to live and be straight.

Ermine and Rhinestones is excellent motion picture entertainment. It will hardly do for you to miss it. Edna Murphy, Niles Welch, Ruth Stonehouse, Colt Albertson, Sally Crute, Bradley Barker and Marguerite McNulty. Each and every one of them favorites, well suited to the parts assigned them and decidedly competent players.

PRINTING REPLACES PEN ON COLLEGE SHEEPSKINS

ANN ARBOR, Mich., July 20 (AP)—Printing presses have supplanted penmen in inscribing the names of graduates of the University of Michigan upon their degrees.

Seven years of experiments preceded the handing out of the first printed sheepskin to a Michigan graduate. The first problem was the ink, the usual printers ink creating a smudge, failing to absorb properly and failing to dry properly. Finally an ink prepared for printing on celluloid solved the problem. Used on the vellum, it gives a brilliant black, not to be easily distinguished from the indelible inks formerly used by the penmen.

Then it was found that not only did the margins of a sheepskin vary as much as three quarters of an inch, but that trimming the margins until they were square bettered the situation but little. Press registration was eventually accomplished by establishing colored points on the press by which the vellum was lined up, these points showing through. The vellum was then held in place and largely protected from soiling by a "frisket."

In printing in the lettering, 48 point Old English is used for the name and a script similar to the body of the diploma for the date. The cost of printing is estimated to be about a fourth of that of hand lettering.

CLUB WOMEN INDEX ARTS BACKGROUND OF INDIANS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 20 (AP)—Esthetic traits of the Oklahoma Indian are being emphasized to club women in a series of programs designed for that purpose.

An index of literature dealing with the origin, history, religion, folk lore and music of Indian tribes that have their home in Oklahoma has been prepared by Mrs. Czarina Conlan, chairman of the Indian welfare committee of the Oklahoma Federation of Women's clubs. Intended as tentative material for Indian programs, the index is available to all women's clubs, Mrs. Conlan said.

The programs are intended to remove the impression that the battle cry and the war dance are still the prevailing forms of aboriginal expression.

FAVORITE JEWELRY OF SOME MOVIE ACTRESSES

CULVER CITY, Cal., July 20 (AP)—Most every woman has one piece of jewelry that is her favorite and motion picture stars and players are not exceptions. As a rule, the favored jewel will be seen in every picture in which the actress apears.

Pauline Stark, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player, has as her choice an interesting pendent of Lalique and in the center is a tiny dancing figure of onyx. Tiny diamonds encircle this figure, being set in the Lalique. This is worn on a black satin ribbon.

Carmel Myers seldom is seen without her crown. This is worn at the throat instead of on the head. It is a miniature crown made into a pin and is an interesting antique that she brought back from Rome. This crown is of old gold and in each point a tiny pearl is fastened.

Claire Windsor's wedding ring is her favorite piece of jewelry. Instead of the regulation platinum band Miss Windsor wears a tiny chain around her finger. The links of this chain are platinum and are set with diamonds.

None of these pieces is remarkably elaborate. Their appeal lies in the fact that they are unique.

FISHING FROLIC FEATURES TARPON CLUB TOURNAMENT

PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss., July 20. (AP)—A fishing frolic is planned for the annual fishing tournament of the National Tarpon Club, which will bring anglers of national prominence to the Mississippi Coast on August 5-10.

The tournament this year will give members an opportunity to display their ability and in the event of adverse weather conditions, will insure a few days of good fishing. No limit is set for telling "fish tales," but the club will keep accurate data during the tourney.

Vice President Dawes is a charter member of the organization and is expected to participate this year.

FILIPINOS USING WHEAT AS FOOD IN LIEU OF RICE

MANILA, P. I., July 20 (AP)—Consumption of wheat flour in the Philippines has increased in the last few years. Figures of the bureau of commerce and industry show that although rice is the chief staple the Filipinos are using bread as a supplementary food generally and in some cases as their principal article of diet.

Wheat importations last year were 76,000 tons as compared with 45,000 tons in 1921. Four fifths came from the United States.
